Wallace Vote Twice Breaks Senate Tie In CCC Favor

Bill to Restore Funds and Save Agency Still Faces Conference, House

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Vice President Wallace twice broke a tied Senate vote late yesterday to tip the scales in favor of restoring funds for continuing the Civilian Conservation Corps. The question of the agency's future, however, must still be threshed out in conference and before the House, which has once voted to liquidate it.

It was the Vice President's second opportunity to exercise his power as President of the Senate to break a tie—he missed the first chance last March by remaining at a luncheon where he was host during a tie vote on the question of admitting Argentine beef to this country.

Wallace threw his vote with the group led by Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada and other Western Senators, to approve an appropriation of $76,529,800 for the CCC, after the first roll call found the Senate divided, 32-32.

Vote Trade Gains Nothing

A second roll call, brought up by a standard parliamentary maneuver to insure that the action would not be reversed immediately, again brought a 32-32 tie, and again Wallace cast the deciding vote in favor of the CCC.

Between the first and second roll calls, it was learned, one who voted against the CCC, Senator Tunnell (Democrat) of Delaware left the chamber in order to catch the 6 p. m. ferry at Annapolis to return to his home in Georgetown, Del.

His vote was made up by that of Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas who had not voted the first time. The result was a straight trade of one vote that did not affect the totals. However, had Tunnell been present for the second vote the opponents of the CCC funds could have won by one vote, depriving the Vice President of the opportunity to break a tie.

A moment after the CCC funds were approved, the Labor Federal Security appropriation bill, of which they were a part, was also approved on a voice vote, carrying increases totaling more than 98 million dollares over the total of $1,058,951,860 approved by the House.

That the increases face a stormy ride through the House had earlier been indicated by the objections of several Representatives that the House had been giving in too much to the Senate on appropriation increases.

Headed for partial trouble are the

D. C. Calls 200 More to Get Eklund Jury

With the summer court recess approaching, 200 more veniremen were ordered to appear Monday to assure getting a jury in the District Court trial of John Eugene Eklund, accused as the "sniper slayer" of a 17-year-old Negro.

Since Monday the court has examined 201 prospective jurors. Most of the talesmen were rejected either for pre-formed opinions in the case or scruples regarding the imposition of capital punishment.

Eklund, who was convicted of first degree murder June 6, 1941, but won a new trial, sat pale, though patiently and with apparent interest, as the examination of jurors was repeated over and over again—201 times in four days.

The 27-year-old student is accused of shooting to death Hyland McClaine of 2021 Thirtieth Street Northwest, while the young Negro was walking with his girl friend across the K Street Bridge last October 15. McClaine's death occurred under circumstances similar to those in three other Negro murders, all attributed to a mysterious "sniper" who singled out Negroes for his victims and shot from behind at close range.

Eklund was sentenced to die in the electric chair last year, but the new trial was granted when it was learned that Herbert Ray, a leading Government witness, had committed perjury in testifying under oath that he had no criminal record. Ray had served a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for forgery and housebreaking under the name of Luther Ray.

Decorated twice by the King of England, recipient of the Croix de Guerre with palm and star, Lieut. Draper L. Kauffman, 2236 Cortland Place Northwest, added another to his medals yesterday when the Navy awarded him the Navy Cross.

The presentation was made at a joint ceremony in which Secretary Knox presented a Distinguished Service medal to Capt. Frank D. Wagner, of Pottstown, Pa. The captain's citation read for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service" as commander of Wing Patrol 10 during operations against the Japs in the Far East.

A son of Admiral and Mrs. James Kauffman, the 31-year-old naval lieutenant received his newest decoration for unloading and taking apart a live 500-pound Japanese bomb that failed to explode on the grounds of Fort Schofield, Oahu, Hawaii, after the Japanese attack on December 7.

Lieut. Kauffman made it possible to salvage all pieces of the missile for study by the Bureau of Ordnance here.

His distinguished career has carried him to various places on the globe. It includes graduation from the Naval Academy, service with a commercial steamship line, when he resigned from the Navy; joining the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps with the French army on April 16, 1940.

Taken prisoner by the Germans on June 19, 1940, he was confined for nearly a month. Upon his release, he was commissioned sub-lieutenant in the British Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve and, several months later, a lieutenant in the Royal Navy.

For more than a year he was in the British service as bomb and mine disposal officer, resigning to enter the United States Naval Reserve.

Before going to his Hawaiian assignment, he was on duty here in the Bureau of Ordnance.

For his services, Lieut. Kauffman was commended by the British Admiralty on March 25, 1941, and was decorated by King George on April 5, 1941, and again on October 31, of the same year. Also he was Weekly Gas Ration Fixed At 3.69 Gals.

2-or-3-Cent Price Increase May Be Announced Today

Details of the permanent plan for doling a basic weekly ration of 3.69 gallons of gasoline to motorists in the District and 17 Eastern States, starting July 22, were made public yesterday by the Office of Price Administration as that agency prepared to raise the price of motor fuel.

Announcement of a higher gasoline price, expected to be between 2 and 3 cents above present prices, may be made at OPA today. These were the other gasoline rationing developments yesterday:

1. Temporary extension of gas rationing to the Middle West to help increase petroleum movements to the East was asked by mayors of Eastern Seaboard cities at a conference attended by Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes and Director of Defense Transportation Joseph B. Eastman.

Rationing was suggested for western New York, western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan "and such other mid-West States as may be necessary." The mayors brought up the subject of extension of gas rationing, an issue in which President Roosevelt's lightning scrap rubber collection is supposed to be a determining factor, with the exception that rationing in the Middle West would stop when a new Texas-to-Illinois pipeline is finished in about six months.

2. OPA ordered suspension of deliveries to 64 gasoline stations and garages in the metropolitan areas of New York, Newark and Philadelphia for violation of rationing regulations. Paul M. O'Leary, acting deputy administrator in charge of rationing, said the suspensions were for periods of from 15 to 30 days.

Mileage Broken Down

Except for special classes of motorists, all passenger car owners will be issued an "A" rationing book, containing 48 coupons good for 4 gallons each and to last a year, OPA announced. These books will be issued when motorists register for rationing in public schools through-

House Stands Pat Against Cut In Wheat Price

Farm Appropriation Bill Returned to 'Hopeless' Conference

The House yesterday returned the buffeted agriculture appropriation bill to what was described as a "hopeless" conference tie-up, after rejecting for the second time Administration proposals to sell surplus wheat below parity.

The House in a series of votes refused to change its position on any of the farm provisions in conflict. Only Thursday the Senate had declined to budge from its own.

Thus, with contrary "instructions" by the two Houses, conferees will enter the second phase of their fight over policies with little chance of breaking the deadlock before Tuesday's fiscal year expiration of current farm funds.

As the June 30 deadline neared, beyond which no Government departments technically can operate without clearance of new fiscal year appropriations, at least half a dozen agencies faced possible exhaustion of funds.

Other Funds Pending

Interior Department funds were returned to conference on Thursday, after House ejection of a compromise report. The Labor-Federal Security bill went to conference only yesterday, with a conflicting Senate provision reviving CCC. The House was still awaiting its committee's report on slashed funds for the OPA. The big 43-billion-dollar War Department bill still must clear the Senate Committee and the Senate. WPA appropriations were still in conference. And final action remained to be taken on the State-Justice Department bill and the second deficiency measure.

Members of the two appropriations committees said they could not recall in recent years any such last minute jam on supply bills.

A prediction that the President would veto the farm bill unless provision was made for below-parity release of surplus wheat and corn for feed and industrial purposes failed to sway the House from its stand for full parity, but the Administration picked up some votes.

The count against the Senate compromise was 177 to 124 compared with the June 9 House vote against

'Step in Right Direction'

Proposal for D. C. Delegate In Congress Wins Support

A proposal by Representative Paddock (Republican) of Illinois to give the District a non-voting representative in Congress was enthusiastically indorsed last night by the executive board of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The board, acting for the full federation during its summer recess, described the proposal as "a step in the right direction" in a resolution adopted at its meeting at the home of Hugh Keiser, 4807 Arkansas Avenue Northwest.

Earlier Representative Paddock said he was drafting a resolution to put into effect his proposal, made in the House Thursday, that Washington's right to an elected delegate be restored. He said he hoped to have the legislation ready for presentation to Congress next week.

"The decision of Congress will certainly depend largely on the attitude of the Washington people," he asserted. "If there is a large public desire for this form of representation, I am certain that Congress will give careful attention and consideration to the proposal."

In originally proposing the authorizing of a District delegate, Paddock emphasized that the step would be only a stop-gap which should lead to District autonomy. He pointed out that a complete reorganization could not be undertaken during the present emergency, but said that his proposal would be a step toward correcting unsatisfactory conditions in the meantime.

Other members of Congress who have sponsored legislation in the past to give votes to District residents indicated approval of the principle of Paddock's proposal, but little comment was forthcoming on

Senate Votes 8½ Billions For Navy

Carriers Stressed In Huge Bill; Debate On Historic Shift In Policy Is Secret

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday in secret session debated the Navy decision to concentrate on airplane carrier construction and then sped to the White House an $8,550,000,000 naval authorization unanimously underlining that policy.

It was the first closed Senate session on legislation in 18 years and recalled many dramatic executive debates in the chamber during World War I.

For an hour and 20 minutes the Senate discussed the Navy's historic policy shift before ordering the guarded doors opened. Then, with galleries looking on, the largest single Navy building program in history, subordinating the once mighty battleship to its plane-bearing successor, was rushed to passage.

A futile effort was made by Senator Clark (Democrat) of Missouri, to write the new policy into rigid law. Clark's amendment, prohibiting construction of any more battleships unless work has been started, was defeated viva voce after colleagues urged complete "flexibility" in naval planning.

Walsh Moves for Secrecy

"I'm not going to vote to send a message to the Mikado or the Axis powers to come on over because we aren't going to have any more battleships," declared Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas.

Connally said battleship construction is not being abandoned, as he understood the Navy's decision, but that new work on the heavy vessels will be deferred until "their long range and heavy armor" again become a war factor.

It was Senator Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, who asked the Senate to debate the Navy's building policies in private "in the interest of our own country and its welfare and its military organization."

The $8,550,000,000 bill, already approved by the House, itself told the story of the post-Midway transition to the carrier as the "backbone" of the fleet.

Omitting any new provision for battleships, it authorized additional construction of 500,000 tons of airplane carriers, 500,000 tons of cruisers and 900,000 tons of destroyers and destroyer escort vessels, at a total cost of $7,500,000,000.

Billion for Small Vessels

In addition, reflecting the parallel emphasis on light craft with speed, the bill authorized the swift building or acquisition of 1000 small vessels, for coastal defense patrols, mine sweeping and like purposes. Their total cost: $1,050,000,000.

"The bill under consideration will of necessity require a discussion and presentation of the policy of the Navy with relation to the building of battleships and airplane carriers, and perhaps open up some other aspects of our Navy problem," Mr.

U. S. Tank Division Reported In Egypt as Fighting Spreads; Reds Check Foe in Ukraine

Bitter Battle Rages In Kharkov Sector; Losses Curb Nazis' Fury at Sevastopol

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow (Saturday), June 27. With enemy activity increasing along the whole front, Soviet forces in the Ukraine battled attacking Germans in a great melee of men and machines last night after dropping back before the pounding of the Nazis, the Russians reported today.

In the Crimea Sevastopol's defenders beat off one enemy assault after another, the Soviets added.

"Our troops in the Kharkov direction fought with the attacking enemy forces," said the midnight communique, indicating that Marshal Timoshenko's defenders had turned and brought a halt to the German advance.

With the increasing activity heralding a possible general German offensive, the Russians said the Nazis were throwing waves of tanks and infantry at their troops after the enemy offensive had rolled past the important rail junction of Kupyansk, 60 miles southeast of Kharkov, and to the Oskol River, an eastern tributary of the Donets.

Drive "Concluded," Nazis Say

(The German account of the fighting in the Kharkov area claimed that the Nazi offensive southeast of the industrial city "may be regarded as concluded" since it had achieved its purpose of straightening out the front there. Still another German announcement claimed the capture of Izyum, 70 miles southeast of Kharkov.)

The Russian communique said: "As a result of fierce battles, populated places continually are changing hands. We are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy."

(The Russian communique indicated that the Red Army had halted its backward movement in the Ukraine. It was the first such indication since the Soviets acknowledged last Tuesday that the Germans had opened a drive and had taken the initiative on the Kharkov front.)

The Germans, attempting an air raid on Moscow, last night, turned tail before Soviet fighters and a hurricane of exploding steel sent up by ground batteries, the communique reported. It listed six out of 14 enemy bombers destroyed without a single Soviet loss.

Repulsed at Bryansk

In a ground attack, the Nazis hurled an infantry force against Russians in the Bryansk sector, southwest of Moscow, and penetrated the Soviet front line at one point but were sent reeling back, the Russians said.

The Nazis left 160 dead on the battlefield, the communique said,

Here's a Story to Prove War Hasn't Dulled Roosevelt's Sense of Humor

Despite the strain of planning world strategy with Prime Minister Winston Churchill, President Roosevelt found time to tell the British leader a joke.

Here's the story:

A sailor walked into an auction room, and found a parrot being auctioned off. The sailor bid $10, but was raised to $15, and in turn raised the ante to $25. The bidding went on, and the sailor matched the offers, and the parrot was finally knocked down to him for $45.

"That's plenty to pay for a bird," the sailor told the auctioneer. "Can the parrot talk?"

"Can that bird talk!" replied the auctioneer. "Why he was bidding against you."

U. S. Built 1500 Tanks, 4000 Planes in May

BULLETIN

London (Saturday), June 27 (AP).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill returned to London today. (Earlier Story on Page 2.)

Progress Report

Announcing the completion of nearly 4000 planes and more than 1500 tanks in May, President Roosevelt said yesterday that "we are well on our way toward achieving the rate of production which will bring us to our goals."

He warned, nevertheless, against overconfidence and said there were serious production problems ahead, some of them arising particularly from shortages of raw materials. These, he added, already are receiving careful consideration.

In addition to the planes and tanks, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that May production included nearly 2000 pieces of artillery and antitank guns, and more than 100,000 machine guns and submachine guns.

The Nation's war-production goals announced last January were 185,000 planes in 1942 and 1943, together with 120,000 tanks and 55,000 antiaircraft guns in the same period.

The President's statement was handed to reporters by his secretary, Stephen Early.

The Roosevelt report was the first disclosure of production progress since Pearl Harbor. Ordinarily, he said, the Nation does not release figures which might give aid and comfort to the enemy. But, he added:

"I am going to give today just a few which are definitely going to give the Axis just the opposite of 'aid and comfort.'"

After announcing the figures, he went on to say that:

"While these figures give you some idea of our production accomplishments, this is not time for the American people to get overconfident. We can't rest on our oars. We need more and more, and we will make more and more."

Though Axis plane production is a closely guarded war secret, President Roosevelt's report probably means this country now is turning out planes at a faster rate than all its enemies put together. The more than 1500 tanks rolled off assembly

Bremen Burns Hours After 'Biggest Raid'

More Bombers Than Ruined Cologne Blast U-Boat Works, Base

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, June 26.—Fires kindled last night at Bremen, principal target in what was probably the Royal Air Force's biggest night so far, were still burning this afternoon in that port, heretofore a great German arsenal for the battle of the Atlantic.

British reconnaissance planes hunted Bremen out by daylight to study her ruins and brought back that word, announced here tonight.

Relays totaling more than 1000 bombers converged on Bremen last night in a precision movement at first facilitated by the moonlight and the northern light and later by the beckoning glare of bombset fires which studded the city.

German twin-engined night fighters, searchlights in their noses, challenged the attacking waves. At least two of these were shot down.

Cosmopolitan Crew

Aircraft of the Royal Dutch Naval Air Force, Polish and Czech squadrons and the Royal Canadian Air Force's squadrons participated with the R. A. F. bomber, coastal and army cooperation commands in the battering of Bremen, German's second largest port.

Pilots said that some of the "many large fires" that glowed through the clouds rivaled the aurora borealis. The attack was jammed into 75 minutes, or a quarter hour less than the recent all-out assault on Cologne.

Early tonight, American-made Boston bombers attacked Le Havre, while other squadrons swept the French coast from Cherbourg to Boulogne. Two R. A. F. planes and one German fighter were destroyed.

It was the third of the great city-by-city annihilation raids, and indications were that the number of attackers exceeded the 1130 which razed Cologne on May 30 and the 1036 which devastated Essen two nights later.

Hundreds in Diversion Raid

The Air Ministry announced that a second force of bombers and fighters made intensive harassing attacks on German airdromes in the Low Countries. This latter force was believed to have been in the hundreds.

Although the night's total loss was 52 planes, highest in R. A. F.

Rear Guard Action

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, June 26.—The Battle of Egypt was fast developing tonight in continuous clashes of Axis advance groups and British covering forces less than 200 miles from Alexandria.

United States Army Air Force Liberators struck hard at Tobruk, the closest supply port which German Field Marshal Rommel can use to supply and maintain his full-scale advance.

[According to the United Press, the Melbourne radio said a United States motorized division of 11,000 men had arrived in Egypt. The Tokyo radio, quoting Ankara reports, said all American troops in Iraq and Palestine had been moved to Egypt, and that they comprised about half the 11,000 United States soldiers in the Middle East.]

30 Miles From British Base

The main elements of Rommel's striking force, aggregating two German armored divisions and one Italian division, had attained at last reports a point 30 miles west of Mersa Matruh.

Supported by mobile infantry, these principal Axis tank columns were proceeding along a wide desert avenue some 15 to 20 miles from the coast.

Smaller enemy units were along the coast, and others, considerably southward, reached the western rim of the Qattara Depression, an inland cauldron of soft sand below sea level, where they were dealt with by British armored patrols.

The British Eighth Army itself was reported digging in on a 40-mile line, flanked on the right by the Mediterranean at Matruh and on the left by the supposedly impenetrable Qattara sink, awaiting the battle which will determine whether Egypt can be held until reinforcements arrive.

So far as could be determined the main Axis and British forces had not collided, but in view of the delay in battle-front communications this could not be said for certain.

In Cairo, United Nations informants insisted there was every reason to believe the enemy could be held unless Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's army, badly hammered in the three-week defeat in Libya, goes completely to pieces. They said there was no reason at present to believe that it would go to pieces.

Both on a "Shoestring"

They reiterated that Rommel, although he has thrown all his striking power into his advance, is operating on a shoestring just as are the British. Up to now he has manipulated this shoestring more skillfully, but as he advances, his problems of communications and supply become more difficult.

(This view was not entirely shared in London. There, the natural advantages of Ritchie's Matruh line failed to allay anxiety over the impending battle, particularly in view of doubt over whether he had salvaged enough guns and other heavy equipment to back up his infantry.

(To London observers it appeared that Rommel was bringing up a heavy enough mobile force to take full advantage of any sudden break-

Army Unites Civil, Military Air Traffic Under Gen. George

By Griffing Bancroft
Washington Bureau of the Chicago Sun

Predicting an ever increasing use of giant cargo carrying planes, the War Department yesterday announced creation of a unified air transport command with sweeping powers over both civilian and military American air traffic throughout the world.

Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, 48-year-old veteran flier, was named head of the new command. He thus becomes virtual air czar with authority to determine what people and what supplies will be given priority for plane transportation.

Simultaneously, General George—at present head of the Army's ferrying command—held a press conference at which he disclosed that:

1. Huge four-motored cargo planes, equivalent to the largest bombers, already are in operation carrying supplies and "bigger and bigger cargo planes are coming."

2. That the use of gliders to carry cargo is "an immediate problem and no doubt will soon greatly increase our capacity for air transportation."

3. That an even stricter system of priorities for civilian passengers on air lines is in prospect, with every purchaser of an air ticket subject to losing his seat if someone else whose need to reach his destination is greater shows up at the airport.

The new air transport command, effective July 1, will take over the operation of the 100 commercial planes previously requisitioned by the Army, and will control the priorities both on passenger flight and military transportation of supplies, as well as the work of the ferrying command—delivering planes to all parts of the world.

This will consolidate work which previously had been done by the ferrying command, the service of supply and the air cargo command.

In discussing the work of the new command, General George said that one of its functions would be to carry mail to and from troops overseas.

"The morale of a soldier often depends on the frequency with which he gets a letter from his girl back home, and we can see that he gets it in three days instead of three months," the general said.

General George was asked to what extent he believed air transportation would help solve the United Nations' shipping problem.

"I can see absolutely unlimited

U. S. Forces Show Off Might For British King and Queen

By Rice Yahner

With the United States Forces in Northern Ireland, June 26.—King George and Queen Elizabeth, for the first time in this war, have watched United States forces demonstrate the power with which they intend to help British armies in repulsing any German invasion of the Island Kingdom.

In a full-dress mock battle, the boys from the United States put on a show which paraded everything from the operation of an electric doughnut maker to medium tanks in their full striking power.

One member of the palace entourage who has followed the royal family for 12 years said:

"It was the best show put on during the war and the King seems happier than I have ever seen him."

Accompanied by United States Ambassador John G. Winant, the monarchs spent one full day of a three-day visit to northern Ireland chatting and dining with United States troops and bouncing around in jeeps.

At the Army's Ulster encampment, they applauded a precision drill by Iowans, saw antitank gunners score 14 direct hits on a moving target and ate roast beef in the enlisted men's mess hall.

At the beginning of their day, Their Majesties reviewed part of the Armored Force, watched the Infantry swing past, and rode in bouncing tanks through pits and over bunkers while sirens wailed over the din of make-[illegible]ve battle.

3 Billions War Aid Will Go to Russians

Roosevelt-Churchill Plan Will Pour Arms Into Soviet Fronts

By Thomas F. Reynolds
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have reached complete accord on new global strategy and their plan last night was being translated into three billion dollars of lend-lease aid to Russia, the logistics of a second front and staggering American production of war material.

The White House disclosed yesterday for the first time that Soviet representatives have been intimately involved in the strategy conferences between the Prime Minister and the President.

The White House statement was indicative of the progress of the strategy talks. The plan for a supreme United Nations blow against the Axis now has been devised, and the problem now resolves itself into how to transport and supply the troops on a second front, how to continue the flow of material to Russia, and how to continue acceleration of war production by America's matchless industrial machine.

Litvinoff at Parleys

Underlying the pledge of Britain and the United States to approach the "urgent tasks" of opening a second front this year, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early announced that Soviet Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff conferred extensively Thursday night with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

"The Russians have figured from the beginning in these conferences and still are," said Early. "The Russian Ambassador, Mr. Litvinoff, the President and the Prime Minister have held extended and most important conferences, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull also met with them.

"The meeting with Ambassador Litvinoff was another of a series of conferences in which over-all and detailed surveys are being made. The conferences with military, naval and air officers—meaning those of Great Britain, the United States and Russia—are taking place simultaneously. The most recent of the conferences was that held yesterday. The British and American conferences are continuing."

More Arms for Russia

In Moscow, Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, who negotiated the mutual assistance compact between the United States and U. S. S. R. in personal conferences with Mr. Roosevelt, disclosed that the new agreement which replaces the Moscow protocol which expires June 30 calls for delivery of three billion dollars in war materials to Soviet fighting fronts. Under the new understanding, fewer raw materials will be forwarded, and in their place will be sent fighter planes and dive and medium bombers, guns, tanks and fabricated equipment.

"Last November, the United States of America decided to accord the Soviet Union a loan of one billion dollars to pay for munitions deliveries to the Soviet Union," Molotov said in a statement to the supreme soviet of the U. S. S. R. "As for the new program of deliveries, the United States fixes its total value at three billion dollars. Thus we have a further substantial increase on the military-economic assistance rendered the Soviet Union by the United States of America as well as the consent of Great Britain to further improve munitions deliveries.

War Sidelights

Nazi Killings Of Czechs Put At 800 Total

London, June 26 (AP).—Reports reaching Czech government sources through neutral countries indicated today that the total of victims in the continuing Nazi reprisals since the killing of Reinhard Heydrich, Gestapo chief for Bohemia-Moravia, total at least 800.

Czech sources estimated that at least that number had been slain in Bohemia-Moravia including those killed in the wiping out of the villages of Lidice and Lezaky, but "we are convinced there are many more which have not been announced."

Reuters heard the Budapest radio announce today that 18 more Czechs had been shot in Prague and 9 in Brunn.

Bulgars Doom 18 Reds

Berlin, June 26 (Radiocast Recorded by U. P., New York).—A Bulgarian courtmartial today sentenced 18 Russian saboteurs to death and seven to life imprisonment, the D. N. B. news agency reported from Sofia. Two others received minor sentences.

The defendants were said to have entered Bulgaria secretly by parachuting from planes or by landing from submarines at isolated coastal points. One of them, Radinoof, was a Bulgar emigree who reached the rank of colonel in the Soviet army.

Working France

Vichy, June 26 (AP).—A proposal that French workers be conscripted for labor in Germany should enlistments not fill German needs was made today by Francis des Phelippon, leader of the French labor front.

Paris newspapers headlined a demand made over the Paris radio by a German representative who said:

"Germany sacrifices the flower of her youth every day; and what is France doing all this time?"

Paris Condemns Five

Vichy, June 26 (AP).—Five persons, of whom one is at large, were sentenced today by a Paris tribunal to death on the guillotine, six to life imprisonment at hard labor and four to prison terms of from 5 to 20 years on charges of participating in a food riot.

The riot started among women in a waiting line at a grocery on May 31. Some of them started throwing out packages to the crowd when fighting started. Two policemen sent to the scene were killed.

Weak Defense Scared Tokyo, Witness Says

By the Associated Press

Ankara, June 26.—An eyewitness to the United States air attack on Tokyo last April 18, who was in a Tokyo street when the raid occurred, said today the Japanese were thrown into panic and depressed by the feeble defense.

The story was told by a national of a neutral country who has just arrived here.

"The daylight raid," he said, "was a complete surprise and shook the people's confidence, as the government had boasted that American planes would never be seen over the capital.

"Tokyo's close-packed, highly-inflammable buildings were spared as the planes went on to bomb targets between the capital and Yokohama and other important industrial centers."

He said foreigners were not permitted outside of Tokyo to inspect the damage which, he said, apparently was heavy.

"I was on the street when the bombers came over," he related.

"Many persons showed panic, rushing for cover.

"I heard no anti-aircraft guns. Japanese pursuit planes were outdistanced.

"Some Japanese commented on the superiority of the American aircraft. Japanese newspapermen, questioned why the Japanese could not located where the planes came from and intercept them, replied that they flew too fast and too high.

"The people insisted that Japan was going to win the war, but I got the impression that they were very much afraid of the United States. The press spoke of a long war and some people talked of it lasting 10 years."

The traveler was in Manila when the Japanese entered the Philippine capital and went to Tokyo from there by air, ultimately reaching Turkey by rail via Manchukuo and Russia.

Wthin Manila, he added, he saw soldiers slap pedestrians for disregarding traffic lights and heard reports that the situation was much worse in the country, where there were cases of violence and rape.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the Filipinos are still with America," he said.

Axis Forces Drive 100 Miles Into Egypt

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

U. S. BOMBERS STRIKE AT TOBRUK— Axis forces (A) under Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel had driven at least 100 miles into Egypt yesterday, advancing in three columns (black arrows), British (B) were expected to make their stand somewhere before Mersa Matruh. British patrols dealt with Axis thrusts toward the Quattara Depression and Axis forces were not expected to try to cross that arid area. United States Army bombers pounded Tobruk harbor and R. A. equipment, including medium and light tanks, armored cars, field hospitals, kitchens and still more secret weapons and other materiel.

Queen Elizabeth asked tanned Sergt. Reuben Krage, of Elyria, Ohio, half a dozen sharp questions about his howitzer.

"It is a beautiful weapon," he replied.

Later, he said "she was a 'swell girl.' She talked like she knew something about guns. You would not have known she was a Queen."

The Queen also questioned Lieut. Jewett A. Dix of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., about his gas mask.

Next the royal party went to the messall.

While Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, commander of American forces in Northern Ireland, sat between the King and Queen, 58 officers and men filed by the kitchen and received the same meal as the royal party.

It was roast beef, peas, tomatoes, pear salad, cherry pie and coffee.

Then the King and Queen viewed a demonstration of weapons of the field organization of modern Infantry divisions.

The Queen took Sergt. John Murrary of Des Moines, Iowa, a radio set so small that it could be held in one hand, and talked with Pvt. Earle T. Teague of Statesville, N. C., who was miles away.

Earlier, while watching a close order drill by a unit, mostly from Villisca, Iowa, commanded by Lieut. Alfred E. Moss of Washington, D. C., the King said to a British general: "We had better introduce this at once."

The royal entourage came to Ireland in the cruiser Phoebe.

Army Truck Crashes

through by the familiar German tactics of swift encirclement which, if successful, might wipe out the bulk of Britain's Eighth Army. London estimates of Rommel's tank strength in Egypt ranged from 230 to 500 or 600, his supporting armored and supply vehicles from 1500 up, and there were some experts who believed he could conceivably bring up 100,000 men for the assault.

(Strategically, the situation was viewed this way by a former cabinet member:

("If Egypt goes, our control of the Middle East and our chances of aiding Russia through Persia (Iran) go with it. A defeat in Egypt would open the way for Axis control of Africa, Europe and Asia through possession of the main crossroads of the Eastern Hemisphere."

Matruh Called Last Ditch

(An informed source in Cairo was quoted in London as saying that the British position at Matruh represented a "last ditch" stand.

("There is practically nothing else between this position and Alexandria and Cairo," he declared grimly.)

The fact that United States four-motored Consolidateds concentrated on Tobruk harbor last night—in cooperation with R. A. F. Wellingtons which raided the town—appeared to indicate that Axis supply ships already were using that port, despite demolitions hastily effected by the overwhelmed British garrison last weekend.

Earlier the United States and R. A. F. squadrons had twice made heavy attacks on the main Axis supply post of Bengasi. Today British submarines were disclosed to have joined long-range torpedo bombers in assaults on the Italy-Africa sealanes, destroying three Axis supply ships, one filled with ammunition.

Advance Lines Strafed

R. A. F. and South African Air Force bombers and fighter bombers were slashing again at the advanced enemy columns, carrying out particularly heavy attacks on transport moving at the edge of the desert plateau near Bir Abu Misheifa, 80 miles southwest of Matruh, and also directly west of Matruh.

The Germans themselves were losing no time in moving air force bases forward with their tank columns. Axis planes on landing grounds at Sidi Barrani, which the British evacuated only two days ago, were under R. A. F. attack.

Many observers here felt that the situation might well be saved by large numbers of heavy bombers to reinforce the Liberators and Wellingtons now pounding at Rommel's supply lines.

Nazi Example?

London, June 26 (AP).—Reuters heard the Italian radio announce today that 10 members of an "armed band" captured last April after a pitched battle at Monte Nanos, near Gorizia, on the Yugoslav frontier, had been executed by a firing squad at Fort Brevetta, Italy.

Six others condemned had not yet been executed while seven more were sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment.

Chinese Move Up for Assault On Nancheng

Chungking, June 26 (AP).—The Chinese reported today that their assault forces had moved into position south of Nancheng for an attempt to storm the walls of the southeastern Kiangsi Province town where the Japanese were halted in a drive toward the northern border of Fukien Province.

Brisk fighting also was reported near Lishui, 125 miles south of Hangchow. The Japanese attack in this direction is aimed at the Lishui air base, second best in Chekiang Province. The largest base, at Chuhsien, already has fallen to the Japanese.

Japanese attempts to break through Chinese defenses southeast of Kwangfeng, just across the Kiangsi border from Chekiang, were reported repulsed.

Tonight's high command communique, however, admitted that the Japanese had retaken Kinki, in eastern Kiangsi, which the Chinese had wrested from the invaders earlier in the week.

The communique recorded belated reports of heavy fighting last week in northern Honan Province, some 600 miles north of the Kiangsi battle area, in which the Chinese inflicted more than 2000 casualties on Japanese forces attacking their positions in the Taiheng Mountains.

South African Port Fires on Plane

Durban, South Africa, June 26 (U.P.).—Antiaircraft guns went into action against a plane which flew over Durban early Wednesday night, unidentified but believed to have been on reconnaissance from an enemy surface craft, it was announced tonight.

How to write a Help Wanted Ad that will PRODUCE RESULTS

Hiring people has more than one business man going around in circles. With employment in Washington up 43% over last year, the number of available men and women is fast diminishing. Yet, jobs ARE being filled—every day. Here's how you can use Washington Post Want Ads to help fill that gap in your office, machine shop, sales force, store or home . . .

1. Tell ALL in your Post "Help Wanted" Ad. DON'T make your offer vague. An extra line or two describing fully the type of job, hours, working conditions, salary or commission, can make an important difference in the response you get.

2. Make it easy for applicants to reach you. Tell them exactly WHERE to write or to appear. Include your phone number, suggest appointments.

3. Select the RIGHT applicants by stating your requirements as to experience, training, education, special licenses, et cetera.

4. After writing the ad, put yourself in the position of a job-seeker READING the ad. Would YOU answer it? Experiment with changes until it sounds interesting to you.

5. Don't give up after the first couple of days. That third or fourth day, when your ad was "killed," might have delivered a first-rate applicant.

WPB Answers Murray's Blast on Scrap Steel Collection

Unwarranted, Says Cabot; Cites Figures

Paul C. Cabot, deputy chief of the War Production Board's Bureau of Industrial Conservation, yesterday described as unwarranted an attack by C. I. O. President Philip Murray on what Murray called the Government's "almost criminal" failure to collect steel scrap.

When the bureau first started its salvage activities, said Cabot, "some 40 to ... steel-making furnaces were down for lack of scrap.

"As of March 2, the official report of the American Iron and Steel Institute indicated that there were 20 furnaces down for lack of scrap," the WPB official continued, in a letter to Murray.

No Furnaces Down as of June 15

"As of June 15, according to the official report of the institute, there were no furnaces down for the lack of scrap.

"This has all been accomplished in the face of the largest production of iron and steel that this country or any other country has ever seen and during a period when many normal sources of scrap have been lost or greatly diminished."

One phase of the bureau's collection program, said Cabot, has boosted scrap collections from 102,882 tons in February to 905,920 tons in May. Of the total collected in this period, about 1,650,000 tons were iron and steel scrap, the official declared. One manufacturing company working with another section of the bureau has reported collecting 1,300,000 tons in rural areas, Cabot added.

Obsolescent Machinery Headed for Scrap Heap

New York, June 26 (AP).—A program designed to bring industry's idle "semivaluable" machinery to the scrap pile for use in the war effort, because after the conflict "it will probably be obsolete," will be undertaken soon by the National Association of Manufacturers, it was announced today.

Malcolm Muir, chairman of the war committee of the association, said at the monthly meeting that the effort to utilize idle machinery for the manufacture of guns would take the form of an "educational program."

"If machinery is sitting on the sidelines now, at this high peak of our war production, it almost certainly follows that this machinery will be of little use in the huge mass production effort required when we get back to creating consumer goods," he said.

Muir said the N. A. M.'s educational program was designed to reach industry and public alike, and would be part of the gigantic scrap metal salvage campaign to be started within the next few weeks.

...rs Made ...d Ohio ...el Strike

By the Associated Press

Lorain, Ohio, June 26.—Informal discussions here plumbed prospects for ending a strike of some 3500 National Tube Co. pipe-mill workers, who walked out to enforce demands for unspecified wage adjustments.

The C. I. O. United Steel Workers arranged after the strike started yesterday to meet again tomorrow for presentation of any peace proposals.

The mills are on a seven-day week devoted entirely to war production. The union holds a contract with the National Tube on a continuing basis, requiring either the union or management to give 60 days' notice of desire to reopen it. William F. Donovan, the union's district organizer, has declared the walkout "unauthorized and illegal."

The contract provides the normal steel industry basic minimum wage of 72½ cents an hour, with 78 cents for welders and higher rates for some classes of skilled men. A spokesman said the pipe-mill average is between 95 cents and $1 an hour.

Not involved are some 6000 workers in other departments. A new blast furnace was scheduled to be blown in today, but the fire-lighting was postponed until the dispute is ended.

At Akron, Ohio, meanwhile, a two-day strike of 60 General Tire & Rubber Co. millroom employes, tying up a total of 500 workers in the plant's tire and tube division, ended today.

The 60 employes, member of the C. I. O. United Rubber Workers, had refused to work alongside 25 aliens reinstated after being laid off following Pearl Harbor. The strikers' spokesman, Elmer Lehto, said they had reached agreement that the aliens would take two-week vacations to provide time for transfers so that none of the present millroom employes would be displaced.

Sherman Dalrymple, International U. R. W. president, termed the strike unauthorized.

2 Committees In Fight Over Mail Rates

Proposed increases in rates on second and third class mail, included in the House Ways and Means Committee's $5,924,000,000 tax bill, may be taken from the measure and submitted to the House Postoffice Committee for study, it was learned last night.

Several members of the latter committee yesterday questioned the Ways and Means Commitee's jurisdiction to approve higher rates without action by the committee having direct jurisdiction on mail matters.

Representative Ploeser (Republican) of Missouri, said he regarded mail rates as "a service charge" rather than a tax, and as such the proposed increases should be considered by the Postoffice group.

Chairman Romjue of the Postoffice Committee was out of town, but ranking members of the committee were expected to confer before making a direct bid for jurisdiction.

The Ways and Means Committee proposed to make up some 81 million dollars in Postoffice "losses" from carrying second-class mail by directing the department to impose rates sufficient to pay costs. Similarly, under the pending bill, the department would be authorized to increase third-class rates to make up a 21 million-dollar deficit from deliveries on that class.

Annual revenues from second-class mail, including newspapers and other publications, were estimated at $23,840,000. To meet the loss on second-class mail might entail rates more than four times those prevailing, it was estimated.

Why Ban Fairs, Keep Racing, Stefan Asks

Representative Stefan (Republican) of Nebraska criticized Joseph B. Eastman, Defense Transportation director, in the House yesterday for requesting discontinuance of county fairs and similar activities while permitting "professional racing and other sports which attract large crowds" to continue.

"Trains and bus lines," Stefan said, "show placards about the availability of transportation to these race tracks and other places where sporting events occur. These attract tremendous crowds which certainly use untold amount of gasoline, rubber and certainly use a great amount of our transportation facilities.

"If Mr. Eastman wants our farmers to close up the county fair programs and wants our farm boys and girls to stop displaying their livestock, which is the basis of our food, on the ground that the crowds which attend our county fairs and 4-H Club fairs use up too much gas and rubber I suggest that he be consistent and give the same suggestion to those race tracks and other sports where there is very little to be gained toward winning of this war . . ."

Saving Would Be Slight

Madison, Wis., June 26 (AP).—Farmers attend fairs only once a year, so canceling the expositions, as suggested by the Office of Defense Transportation, would prolong the lives of cars just one more day, Ralph M. Ammon, State Agricultural Department director, declared today.

Ammon said an ODT objection to fairs on grounds farmers should save rubber to get their products to market was faulty "since the farmer does not haul his products in the back seat of his family car."

"The farmer travels only a short distance to the fair and then only once a year," Ammon said. "Even if he did use his car to market his produce he could not force it out of operation more than a day sooner."

Senate Group Again Charges Rubber Delay

The Senate Agriculture Committee charged yesterday that dollar-a-year men in the War Production Board's chemicals branch were holding up production of synthetic rubber from grain alcohol because they were fearful of postwar competition with companies with which many of them had been associated.

"Such meticulous care to avoid the possibility of postwar competition," the committee said, "may bespeak a high degree of business shrewdness, but it likewise portrays a serious failure to appreciate the necessity of keeping America on wheels and winning the war."

The committee urged Senate approval of legislation to establish a rubber supply agency which would be required to have rubber produced from alcohol and cited evidence obtained at hearings by a subcommittee headed by Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa in support of its recommendation.

Alcohol Is "Quickest"

"The subcommittee has had undisputed evidence presented to it by outstanding chemists and engineers of national reputation," the committee report said, "to justify the conclusion that the quickest way to bring about the production of synthetic rubber, with the use of the least amount of critical materials, is through the conversion of alcohol from grain or forest products to butadiene, the principal ingredient necessary for the manufature of synthetic rubber."

"There is no explanation by any responsible official of why this country is setting up a program for the production of synthetic rubber gave consideration only to untried laboratory experiments from petroleum," the report continued, "which will require twice the time and many times the critical material needed to produce the same synthetic rubber from alcohol.

Charge Aides "Fearful"

"The only plausible explanation seems to be that the dollar-a-year men in the chemicals branch of the War Production Board were fearful that the war might end suddenly and that there might then be some surplus industrial alcohol that would provide competition for companies with which many of these officials have been associated for a long period of time."

The committee also contended the production of synthetic rubber had been handicapped and delayed by an apparent lack of coordination within the governmental departments charged with the problem.

OPA Holds Out Hope of Larger Sugar Ration

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Office of Price Administration yesterday told the American consumer he might get a higher ration of sugar, but insisted that "widespread reports of bulging warehouses" gave a distorted picture of the country's available supplies.

OPA said it was making "further studies of the sugar situation to determine whether prospects for our future supplies will now make possible" a moderate increase" in the present weekly ration of a half pound per person.

There was nothing in the OPA announcement to indicate what was meant by a "moderate increase." An agency spokesman said OPA has "nothing definite in mind."

Final decision on a ration increase, if any, will depend principally upon prospects for sugar shipments during the next six months from Puerto Rico and Cuba and upon the rate of consumption under rationing.

Within 10 days or two weeks OPA expects to be able to improve its present consumption estimates on the basis of information now being received.

The announcement quoted price officials as stating "flatly" that while sugar stocks now on hand are "somewhat greater than they had been able to count on," the supply situation of itself does not "justify any increase in the ration."

Available supplies in the hands of consumers and others were declared to be 50 per cent below those of a year ago, with stocks held by primary distributors 20 per cent below last year's and total supplies one-third less than 1941.

"The real question is how much sugar is going to be brought in from the Caribbean area," officials said. "Despite advance uncertainties, receipts were fairly good in April and May. If we can plan a continuation of this improved situation (depending on shipping priorities and submarine sinkings), we will feel justified in liberalizing the sugar ration without danger of creating a new shortage that will require a later pinching down of the ration to below even present levels."

The necessity for unloading sugar ships in southern ports not equipped to handle large quantities of commodities explains why some sugar warehouses are bulging, OPA said. Storage facilities used for sugar in normal times now accommodate other commodities, it was explained.

These, and other factors, OPA said, make sugar storage a "growing problem, but they do not alter the fact that the total amount of sugar on hand in the country at the present time is far below normal."

Curran Warns Businessmen Of Crime Wave

Take your seat in the jury box to help the Government fight increased crime arising out of the war, Edward M. Curran, United States District Attorney, urged at the annual luncheon of the Better Business Bureau yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Crime costs every man, woman and child in this country $125 a year in taxes," Curran said. Thirty-seven murders take place every day and a burglary is perpetrated every nine minutes, he stated. Crime is bound to increase with the war, Curran said, calling blackouts "an aid to the murderer and the burglar."

Edward C. Baltz, secretary of Perpetual Building Association, was elected director of the bureau to succeed Y. E. Booker. Other new officers are James W. Hardey of Woodward and Lothrop, vice chairman; Hulbert T. Bisselle of Riggs National Bank, treasurer; R. H. B. Lyon of Lyon and Lyon, counsel; and Arthur J. Sundlun of A. Kahn, Inc., assistant treasurer.

"The bureau is cooperating fully with various governmental agencies in connection with the war program," Booker said in his annual report.

Proper care to prolong the life of goods is treated in 27,000 leaflets on 27 different subjects now ready for distribution by the bureau, Booker said.

Other speakers were Sidney F. Taliaferro, former Commissioner for the District; C. Melvin Sharpe, James W. Hardey and Col. Leroy Herron.

New York, June 26 (AP).—Thomas Lamont, director of United China Relief, declared today the knowledge that the Chinese have had America's constant sympathy and friendship "has been a great factor in buttressing their fighting spirit during these grim years of Japanese onslaught and ferocity."

"But," he added, "we must spell out that sympathy of ours in ways of tangible help."

London, June 26 (AP).—T. O. M. Driberg, a Daily Epress coxlumnist who ran as an Independent, won the Maldon by-election to Commons today from the government candidate, R. J. Hunt, National Conservative, with a plurality of nearly 6000 votes.

The election was to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Col. Sir Edward Archibald Ruggles-Brise, Conservative.

The defeat was the government's fourth in the seven elections since March. Seven other by-elections are pending.

and suffered heavy additional casualties.

In the Kalinin sector between Moscow and Leningrad, the Germans threw an unsuccessful attack in force against a hill commanding a junction of two rivers.

On the northern front the Germans were reported making daily air raids along the Karelian sector in an effort to cut Soviet communications to Murmansk, a port of entry for Allied war aid. In one engagement, the Russians said an outnumbered Soviet squadron attacked a German force of 23 bombers and 18 Messerschmitt fighters, knocking down four enemy bombers and one fighter.

In the bloody battle for Sevastopol the main German effort was being directed at widening a wedge in the north side of the fortress while reserves were being brought up for a new onslaught.

[Capture of an "important height" on the Sevastopol front by German troops which drove forward under cover of a heavy artillery barrage and screaming dive bombers was acknowledged tonight by the Russian army newspaper Red Star.

[At least 2000 Germans were killed in the assault, it was stated, and extremely heavy fighting continues.]

As a result of their enormous losses, the Nazi attacks were declared diminishing as reinforcements were awaited, but the Red Army's position there still remained exceedingly grave.

Red airmen Thursday were credited officially with knocking out 89 German tanks and more than 200 troop and supply vehicles.

Every inch of ground on the Kharkov front was reported by Tass, official news agency, as bitterly contested and yielded only after punishing casualties had been inflicted.

Despite German claims, there was no evidence of a rout and Tass said Soviet troops—bolstered by fresh reinforcements—were maintaining a straight, unbroken line and in doing so were piling up enormous German casualties.

"The Sevastopol defenders—including marines and sailors of the Black Sea fleet—are repulsing attacks of Fascist troops," the high command said. "Artillerymen in the last few days have turned back more than 30 attacks by superior enemy forces.

"At heavy cost the enemy succeeded in breaking through one battery and encircling it. The artillerymen then called for fire from neighboring Soviet batteries, directing their fire. The Hitlerites who had broken through were thus annihilated.

Reds Bomb Nazi Forces Massed in Finnish Port

London, June 26 (AP).—The Free French independent news agency, in a dispatch from Moscow, said tonight that more than 100 Soviet bombers and dive-bombers attacked a large German fleet in a Finnish port near Leningrad, sinking several troopships and setting fire to fuel dumps and other installations.

The Russians lost one plane during the attack, it was stated.

4000 Planes, 1500 Tanks Built in May lines during the month were enough to fit out three or four armored divisions.

The plane goal for 1942, as set by Mr. Roosevelt in January, was 60,000 aircraft, requiring a monthly average of 5000 for the entire year, to be followed by a further increase of 125,000 in 1943. When a policy of withholding plane production rates was put into effect last fall the national output was about 2000 a month.

Widely accepted plane production figures credit Germany with between 2500 and 3000; Japan from 400 to 600 and Italy with some 200 a month.

The manner in which tanks have been completed has prompted expressions of satisfaction from Government officials for months.

Under the organization plan in effect last year, some 400 were required to equip a United States armored division, two-thirds of them medium tanks of 28 tons. Changes since then have not been disclosed.

the specific provisions which he is sponsoring.

Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas said that the proposal was a step in the right direction, but that he hoped enfranchisement of the city would not stop there. Capper is co-author with Representative Sumners (Democrat) of Texas, of a still-pending constitutional amendment which would give the District the equivalent of statehood. Sumners had no comment on the Maddock proposal, pointing out that it had not yet been introduced and he had not been able to study it.

Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat) of Maryland, a member of the House District Committee and sponsor of previous proposals to give electors to the District, also declared that he favored national representative for the city, but withheld comment on the delegate proposition until he had an opportunity to study it.

Representative Celler (Democrat) of New York, who introduced a bill in the seventy-fifth Congress organizing an elected municipal Government, was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Closer Contact for Citizens

The Citizens Federation board said the chief benefit of a District delegate in Congress would be the resulting closer contact between Congress and citizens of Washington. Creation of such a post, the board resolved, would be an admirable step toward self-rule in the District, full-fledged representation in Congress and District suffrage.

Among other resolutions adopted by the board, with Executive Vice President Harry S. Wender presiding, was one urging the Commissioners to eliminate their "gag rule" prohibiting department heads from giving information on matters unfavorably acted upon by the Commissioners.

awarded the Croix de Guerre with palm and star by the French.

Admiral Kauffman, his father, is commandant of the Seventh Naval District and director of the Gulf frontier. The young lieutenant was accompanied to the office of the Naval Secretary for his citation, by his mother and his sister, Miss Betty Lou Kauffman. Previous to entering the Naval Academy, Lieutenant Kauffman attended St. Alban's School of Washington, and Kent School, Kent, Conn. He captained the Naval Academy crew during 1931-33.

At the joint ceremony in Secretary Knox's office, the citation of Captain Wagner said the information secured and furnished by the units of his command was "invariably timely and accurate" despite conditions under which the flights had to be made, with the enemy commanding the air in that sector.

8½ Billions Voted Navy in Senate

Walsh told the Senate in moving for secrecy.

"That ought not to, in my opinion, or in the opinion of the Navy, be discussed in public lest it would be helpful to the enemy. While there have been rumors about what that policy of the Navy is, yet it has not been authentically stated, and I am in a position, from information given to me by the Navy, to state that policy. There is nothing sensational about the request. Nothing sensational is going to be said in executive session."

Recent concentration on carriers was first disclosed in the House by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Mr. Vinson, House author of the building measure passed yesterday by the Senate, told reporters that work on all battleships not laid down was being deferred to make way for carriers. Mr. Vinson later told the House that merchantmen also were being converted into carriers as fast as possible. Neither he nor Walsh disclosed numbers.

Rushing Work on Carriers

On Thursday, Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, a member of the Naval Committee, had informed the Senate that the Navy is now rushing work on 11,000-ton carriers, of from 60 to 75 plane construction, that can be commissioned in 18 months. He said the 500,000 tons provided in the bill was substantial but in his judgment would not be adequate for a long war. Mr. Byrd urged revision of the naval building program "so that whenever possible, airplane carriers may be substituted for heavy battleships, or for any other vessels which are not so important as airplane carriers."

Mr. Walsh's report to the Senate yesterday was believed in line with secret testimony before his committee earlier in the week by Vice Admiral F. J. Horne, vice chief of naval operations. Following that conference Senator Walsh said Horne's testimony, could it be made public, would give the people "genuine optimism as to the future."

Yesterday's secret debate over the policies under discussion came publicly to the fore in Senator Clark's motion to write into the legislation a ban on further new battleship construction until such time as the Navy asked Congress to change that policy.

Senator Walsh Objects

"The evidence is overwhelming, and asquiesced in by the Navy Department itself, that there should be no more new battleship construction at this time," Mr. Clark said. "When the Navy decides material should again be diverted to battleships, they can come back to Congress for the authorization. . . . This simply carries out the policy of the Navy Department itself."

Mr. Walsh objected to the amendment, saying it would have a "freezing" effect on naval construction, and several other Senators took a similar view. Senator Ellender (Democrat) of Louisiana said he thought the policy should be "left entirely to our naval officials."

Senator Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, entered the debate to warn against "tying the hands of our Navy."

He said Mr. Walsh, in his executive session report, "made it very clear that the day of the battleship is not past; that it's time of utility will come again in contests of a long-range and heavy armament nature."

Put to a vote, Mr. Clark's amendment was defeated without a record vote, and the bill, unchanged, was promptly passed.

Bomb Fires Still Blaze in Bremen history, informed persons said this was less than 5 per cent of the participating aircraft (thus indicating that more than 1040 planes were used.)

In retaliation, German raiders dropped incendiaries on an East Anglia city early Saturday morning, but "the raid was neither long nor heavy.")

Bremen is the home of Deschimag Werke, which builds submarines, and a Focke-Wulf factory, making sea-raiding Condor planes. In addition it has large shipyards, warehouses and oil refineries.

It was the ninety-fifth bombardment of Bremen.

American-made Lockheed Hudsons made up part of the bomber force, while Douglas Havoc fighter-bombers helped disorganize the German defenses by attacking many airdromes.

In the series of massive attacks moving slowly northward across western Germany, industrial experts in Britain estimated conservatively that 25 per cent of the industrial production of Cologne, Essen and Bremen combined had now been knocked out.

What Big Raids Cost In Lives and Money

London, June 26 (INS).—A check of the statistics involved in the "more than 1000 plane" raids on Cologne and Essen afforded a key to the extent of last night's undertaking at Bremen.

Here are the figures applying to the Cologne and Essen raids combined:

Airmen killed or captured, 400.

Total British planes lost, 79.

Value of planes participating, 600 million dollars.

Cost of planes lost 24 million dollars.

Cost of fuel consumed 11 million dollars.

Cost of bombs dropped, 12 million dollars.

Total men involved in air, 12,000.

Total men involved on ground, 240,000.

The fact that the British losses were higher last night—52, compared with 44 at Cologne and 35 at Essen—was believed attributable to the fact that more planes were used, rather than to increased effectiveness of German defenses.

Cary Grant Naturalized

Los Angeles, June 26 (AP).—Cary Grant, 38, British-born movie star, was granted American citizenship today in a class of 300, and said he would seek to enter military service. Grant expressed his pleasure at being eligible to volunteer "my services to the country that has treated me so kindly."

Russian Relief Art Exhibit Scores With Crowd of First-Night Notables

Soviet Masters Offer Paintings And Sculpture

With the announcement that the Russian War Relief drive was well on its way toward attaining the goal of $100,000 set for Washington, sponsors of the campaign opened a Russian art exhibition with Russian music and dances at the United States Chamber of Commerce last night before a large throng of Washington notables.

The exhibition contained both canvases and sculpture by Russians and Russian-born American citizens, together with 12 paintings by one native-born American, William Gropper, who has frequently used Russian backgrounds in his work.

Edward Rowan, assistant chief of the Treasury's Art Section, head of the art committee of the Russian War Relief, arranged the show with the aid of a group of well-known laymen and artists.

Many of Gropper's powerful drawings and canvases deal with life in wartime Russia and with the ordinary vicissitudes of the present-day farmer, soldier and factory worker.

Likewise arresting the attention of the guests were a series of paintings of everyday life in Russia by Anatol Gussatinsky, whose works were brought to this country by Mme. Litvinoff to save them from Nazi bombing. Four pencil drawings by Mme. Litvinoff are included in the current show, executed impromptu. At least one of them is said to be the product of her pencil while listening to a public speaker with whom she shared platform honors.

Corcoran Assists

In addition to the work by Gropper, and Gussatinsky, and the offhand sketches of Mme. Litvinoff, who had achieved a reputation as a satiric caricaturist when she lived as a young girl in England, the canvases of the Russian-born American citizens evoked particular interest. In this group, the Corcoran Gallery had loaned two of its most important contemporary paintings, "Lunch" by Bernard Karfiol and "Still Life" by Maurice Sterne.

Other Russian-born artists shown are Mitchell Siporin, Edward Millman and 30 paintings from the Duncan Phillips collection, by such nationally known painters as Burliuk, Gikovsky, Karfiol, Sterne, Tchelitchev, Weber, Kantor, Meyrowitz, Walkowitz, Breinin and Johan Graham. Graham, it is reported, is the Russian-born son of a Scot who lives in Russian Ukraine in a village now in the possession of the German invading forces.

The sculpture on display in the patio of the Chamber of Commerce Building proved just as impressive. Several pieces aroused keen interest and curiosity, among them a wood cirving entitled "Air Raid" by Froelicher, which shows a mother and child walking through the streets during an air raid. The poignant concern of the mother to protect the child by pressing it spasmodically to her body in almost animal fashion was commented on by several European exiles present last night, who had experienced air raids in the Nazi-conquered countries.

Wood Carving Popular

"Ramsay MacDonald," by Epstein, a favorite bronze familiar to Washingtonians, was loaned by the Corcoran Gallery. While a portrait in heroic bronze of the President drew a group of admirers, the head of a girl carved in cocobola wood by Chaim Gross created a minor sensation by its fusion of realism with idealization. Two pieces executed for United States postoffices were on display, "Hawaiian Mailman," by Louis Slobodin, and "Colonial Mailman," by Berta Margolies.

Other sculptors represented in the exhibition are B. Russin, N. Kez, Josef Hovell, Nat Werner and Pietro Lazzari.

Anna Sokolow, the well-known dancer, executed a series of dances with Russian themes. The music for the occasion was furnished by the District Recreation Concert Orchestra under the direction of Van Lier Lanning. Works by the following composers were played: Tchaikowsky, Rimsky-Korakov, Dvorak, Saint-Saens, Rossini, Yradier, Beethoven, Mozart, Strauss, Drigo, Kreisler and Brahms.

Dancer Encores

The Russian War Relief drive in Washington is under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

Upon request by several guests who had seen Miss Sokolow dance in Mexico last year, when she was invited to make a tour of the provinces at the invitation of the President of Mexico, the dancer gave several numbers that had proved very popular below the Rio Grande, in addition to "Youth Song" by Doussaevsky, "Lullaby" by Gretchaninor, "The Exile" by Alex North and "Ballad in a Popular Style" by Alex North.

'PEASANT' ATTRACTS ATTENTION—An exhibition of Russian paintings and sculptures was opened last night in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building as part of the Russian War Relief Drive to raise $100,000 for the purchase of medical supplies for that beleaguered nation. Mrs. Albert Lion, jr., and Mrs. Bowmans Smith are examining the canvas, "Peasant," one of the 12 specially chosen paintings by William Gropper, American artist, who uses Russian farmers, workers and soldiers in his sketches.

8 War Planes And Marlene Promote Bonds

Eight war planes and Marlene Dietrich will be at the National Airport today and tomorrow to help the sale of war bonds and recruiting for the Aviation Cadet Reserve.

The planes range from a captured German Messerschmitt to a British Spitfire and a training glider. You know Marlene.

All were at the airport shortly after noon yesterday, the planes to land and Miss Dietrich to greet them.

Then Miss Dietrich sold war bonds to airport throngs—many, many of them. Later she repeated the demonstration of her sales ability at Lansburgh's department store.

Here's the program for today and tomorrow:

rally at Jelleff's Department Store; 9 p. m., Earle Theater.

Tomorrow, 11:05 a. m. (flyers only) WJSV broadcast from Fort Belvoir; 11 a. m., Miss Dietrich at Walter Reed Hospital; 2 p. m., Airport dinner; 3 p. m., bond sales rally at the Airport.

The planes, incidentally, the like of which America hopes will play a big part in beating the Axis, have been lined up at the airport where the public may view them today and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The spectacular showing of fighter craft, one of the few such exhibitions ever held here, is part of an extended tour by the "Cavalcade" and was expected to attract thousands of spectators. With the arrival yesterday, a German fighting plane made its first appearance over Washington's buildings.

The Messerschmitt, 109 single-seater fighter plane, was piloted by Capt. Elmer McKesson, 29, native of Richmond, Va., graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and former Pan American Airways pilot.

This plane's greatest enemy, the British Spitfire which broke the Nazi air blitz over England in the early fighting, is also exhibited.

The other ships are a British Beaufighter, two-engined, which helped beat off the Nazi night attacks, piloted by Capt. William Rigglesworth, 27, of Eau Claire, Wis.; an American P-39, the famous Aircobra, piloted by Capt. Horace A. Hanrs, 28, of Armington, Ill.; an American P-40, famous American pursuit ship, piloted by Lieut. T. B. Marxson, 24, of Lafayette, Ind., former Purdue University football star; American L-1A, one of the converted O-49's built originally for artillery observation, a ship so slow flying that it can practically hover, piloted by Lieut. Luke Cartwright, 23, of Baltimore, Md.

A war savings rally will be held from 11:45 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. today (Saturday) at the War Bond Station at Eleventh and G Streets Northwest, featuring a concert by Abe Lyman and his band and entertainers.

Board Rejects 22 Draft Appeals; 3 Win Delay in Induction

The District Board of Appeal has rejected the appeals of 22 selective service registrants, most of them Federal Government employes, who sought reclassification from their current 1-A status, but recommended 60-day stays of induction for three of the men.

Names of those whose appeals were rejected, their ages and occupations are listed below:

Nat Lewis Schein, 28, employe of National Labor Relations Board; Odous George Ryder, 24, General Accounting Office clerk; Charles Ryland Anderson, 27, Welfare and Recreation Association employe; Dalton F. Johnson, 21, unemployed; Harold Wolman, 24, War Department clerk; Abraham A. Fielding, 37, Social Security Board examiner; Raymond S. Baker, 34, tea company salesman; Alex Rabins, 21, Georgetown University student; Lewis A. Stone, 35, a language teacher at Landon School; William Weisman, 24, Naval Ordnance Laboratory employe; Milton Weinberg, 24, junior clerk-typist for the Surplus Marketing Administration; David Zuessman, 26, Social Security Board employe.

Walter Hill Espey, 36, Government Printing Office employe; Joseph T. Norris, 28, bus driver; Lee Fook Lee, 34, laundryman; Fredrici I. Wem, 30, Postoffice correspondence clerk; Robert D. Francis, 29, Federal Works Agency employe; Daniel J. Finnegan, 34, grocery clerk; David Bernstein, 26, Veterans' Bureau employe; Bertram S. Koel, 22, statistical clerk for Social Security Board; Daniel Cohen, 23, Brooklyn Navy Yard supply clerk, and Alfred C. Lassise, 34, whose occupation was listed as "unknown."

The appeals of three men, to be reclassified from 1-A to 3-A, were granted. They were Otis Lee Patterson, 26, truck driver; Frederick Goettker, 36, St. Elizabeths Hospital attendant, and Andrew F. Travis, 29, a messenger for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Wesley Hoebner, 33, a yard superintendent for the Edmonds Art Stone Co., was reclassified from 1-A to 2-A for a period of two months. He had appealed for a 2-B classification.

The cases of Edward J. Roche, Robert Granat and William F. Patterson, were returned to their local boards for further information.

Status of Police Eager To Enlist Still Muddled

The status of police officers who want to enlist in the military services was regarded by policemen as being "still muddled" last night, in spite of what the Commissioners had indicated as decisive announcements by the Navy Department and the Selective Service.

Earlier yesterday Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox had agreed to a Commissioners' request that police and firemen not be accepted for enlistment or commissions unless they have obtained the approval of the Commissioners. The Commissioners also said they believed they could guarantee military deferment for any member of the forces. Selective Service Chief Lewis B. Hershey last week gave "assurance" of this—but there is still no written order for blanket deferment.

The order from Knox does not alter the picture very much, so far as the individual policeman is concerned. He has had to get the Commissioners' approval for military leave anyway if he would be assured of his job after the war, and few have wanted to sacrifice their jobs permanently for enlistment.

Wallace Twice Breaks Senate Tie on CCC

CCC funds. Representative Engel (Republican) of Michigan, who led the House move for liquidation, said late yesterday that he intended to force the CCC funds again to a House vote, and he expressed his belief that the result there would be the same as it was last time.

Among other increases approved by the Senate were:

A five-million-dollar fund for a national occupational inventory to be conducted by the Social Security Board.

Establishment of a $7,500,000 loan fund to aid college students of engineering, chemistry, physics, medicine, dentistry, pharmacy and the like, whom the War Department wants to see finish their education.

A 15-million-dollar fund for venereal disease control, eight million dollars more than the House total.

An expected fight in the Senate over the National Youth Administration program, following the pattern set by the House, failed to develop, and the agency's funds were actually increased by a three-million-dollar fund to finance loans for needy students in secondary schools, offset partly by a cut from five to four million dollars for college student NYA loans.

General George, a native of Somerville, Mass., entered the Army during the last war as a private and emerged as a lieutenant.

Paramount Wins Bioff Graft Suit

New York, June 26 (AP).—A suit by six stockholders of Paramount Pictures Corp. to recover $100,000 from present and former directors of the company for sums paid to Willie Bioff and George E. Browne, labor leaders convicted of extortion, was dismissed today in Supreme Court.

Justice Carroll G. Walter held that "Paramount Pictures Corp. was not the giver of a bribe, but a submitter to an extortion" and that "a payment of corporate funds by way of submission to an illegal exaction is not necessarily the diversion of such funds from legitimate corporate purposes."

Gulf, Atlantic Scene of 2 New Ship Sinkings; Japs Attack Canadian Vessel Off West Coast

The Navy announced yesterday that a medium-sized British merchant vessel had been torpedoed off the East Coast of South America and that survivors had landed at a United States East Coast port.

Earlier, the department had issued word that a small United States merchant vessel had been torpedoed and sunk several weeks ago in the Gulf of Mexico with the survivors having been landed at a Caribbean port. Five men are missing from the latter ship.

The Navy said the British ship was hit by a torpedo early in the morning about two weeks ago. The crew took to the boats and stayed by the vessel 15 hours before hoisting sail and heading for the mainland. Out of 60 men aboard, two are missing.

Ottawa, June 26 (AP).—The Canadian Navy announced today that a Canadian-built merchant ship had been brought safely to a West Coast Canadian port after "a determined attack" by a Japanese submarine. There was no loss of life.

The navy's brief statement gave no details of the attack because of security reasons. Similarly, there was no announcement of the place of the attack except that it occurred "off Canada's West Coast." Some damage was done to the ship.

The attack on the Canadian-built merchantman was the first reported submarine operation against shipping off the Canadian West Coast, although several attacks on shipping have occurred in United States Pacific waters.

Tells Victims He Is Baron Von Spiegel

Clearwater, Fla., June 26 (AP).—An Army lieutenant, survivor of a ship torpedoed in the Caribbean, said today the commander of a submarine that sank his ship identified himself as Baron Von Spiegel, former German Consul at New Orleans.

"The submarine surfaced," said Lieut. John Paxton, "and the commander addressed us in perfect English, introducing himself as Baron Von Spiegel.

"He gave us directions to land, but not trusting his directions, we rowed in the opposite direction and reached land within four days without the loss of a single life in our lifeboat."

Von Spiegel had commanded a German submarine during World War I. The sinking of Lieut. Paxton's ship had previously been announced by the Navy.

Ship Ripped by Torpedo In Port After 12 Days

A Gulf Coast Port, June 26 (AP).—A sturdy American cargo vessel—with half her starboard side blown away by an Axis torpedo—has completed an incredible 12-day voyage home, the Eighth Naval District revealed today.

Even the officers were amazed at the craft's performance when they viewed the damage in a Gulf port drydock. However, the ship will sail again as soon as the gaping hole in her steel plates is repaired. The officers and men of her crew are ready to take her out.

Only two men were injured, neither seriously, when the ship was torpedoed at 6:05 p. m. on May 22 in the Caribbean. The missile from an enemy submarine, which was not sighted, struck amidships on the starboard side.

Survivors of May 4 Sinking Make Port

A Caribbean Port, June 26 (AP).—Twenty-three survivors of a United States merchantman, torpedoed in the Gulf of Mexico May 4, have arrived here full of praise for the liferafts that saved their lives when their ship settled beneath the waves only 12 minutes after being struck.

Five men are missing, and believed dead, as a result of the encounter with a large German submarine two days out of a Gulf port. The missing men were never seen after a torpedo ripped into the vessel's starboard side at 10:40 a. m.

the same proposal of 125 to 57.

"I believe this bill will be vetoed if the House insists on its provision," Representative Cooley (Democrat) of North Carolina had warned. "Don't tie the hands of an agency of this Government while we are in the midst of a national crisis."

Representative Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, broke with the leadership on the issue to oppose the compromise. Cannon insisted "there is only one question involved: Are you going to vote to get the farmers' pay? Are you going to vote to destroy parity?"

His colleague, Representative Cochran (Democrat) of Missouri, took the floor for the compromise. He told members that unless the Senate provision was accepted, none of the grain surplus could be used either for feed or industrial uses, including manufacture of synthetic rubber and war-needed alcohol, without paying 100 per cent of parity for Government stocks.

More Compromises Rejected

After accepting minor conference compromises on forestry appropriations and funds for the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the House proceeded to reject similar compromises on major House cuts under Senate appropriations.

Representative Tarver (Democrat) of Georgia, conference chairman, vainly proposed that the House agree to $32,500,000 for farm tenancy, half way between Senate and House appropriations.

He likewise failed to "split the difference" with a $37,877,557 outlay for farm rehabilitation services and a $97,500,000 compromise amount for farm security loans and grants. Each proposed compromise on the House farm economy stand was subjected to a roll call vote. On each vote the House stood by its own reduced figures.

U. S. Steel Will Use Newspaper Advertising

New York, June 26.—The United States Steel Corporation will begin next week the first national newspaper advertising campaign in its 41-year history, a series intended to tell how the company is taking part in the war effort.

The first advertisements will appear next Tuesday in 263 dailies in 168 key market and steel plant communities.

The company said space taken would range from 900 to 1200 lines, and that the first insertion would be followed by three others at intervals of a wek or ten days.

Copy will employ a "news bulletin" technique.

Rigid Schooling Slated for WAAC Officer Contingent

Candidates for officer commissions with the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps can prepare themselve for a school schedule that runs five full days and a half-day on Saturday, with "company administration" the course that gets most attention.

Drill—without arms—has a prominent place on the curriculum, as does physical training, "including athletics."

Other subjects filling up the school day will be: Defense against chemical attacks, map reading, recruiting, property accountability, mess management, military customs and courtesies, punitive articles of war, wearing and care of uniform, leadership, ceremonies, defense against air attack, military sanitation, first aid and personal hygiene, the WAAC and current events.

Before beginning their real school work the WAAC's will be "processed" by undergoing vaccinations, inoculations, drawing their uniforms and getting [illegible] set up.

Col. Scott, Georgian, to Head Fighter Squadrons in China

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, June 26.—A lanky, daredevil fighter pilot from Macon, Ga., Col. Robert Scott, was assigned today to command the American Army's first pursuit planes in China, the Twenty-third Pursuit Group of the United States Army Air Forces.

The pursuit group will replace the American Volunteer Group on July 4. A small number of the A. V. G.'s aces was expected to be inducted into the group when their Chinese contracts expire next month.

Scott's appointment was announced by Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander in chief of the United States Air Forces in this theater.

All aircraft and equipment now in the hands of the A. V. G. will be turned over to Scott's group. These planes include new Kittyhawks which were supplied to the "Flying Tigers" after it was decided their organization would be absorbed by the Army.

Of 43 battle-tested A. V. G. pilots still flying over China's Yunnan Province, only four are reported to have chosen thus far to be inducted into the Army on Independence Day.

It was considered possible, however, that Scott's brilliant record and personal qualities may induce others to make the transfer rather than return to the United States and go back into the Navy and Marine Air Forces or commercial airline jobs whence the majority volunteered for service last year.

Scott, a 34-year-old former West Pointer, saw action for 10 weeks during the Burma campaign, when he was credited with many daring solo flights over the Japanese lines.

Baby Injured In Crash Six WeeksAgo Dies

The death of an 8-month-old boy at Children's Hospital was declared an accidental Maryland traffic death yesterday after an autopsy was performed at the District Morgue.

The victim, Bobby Tucker of Fort Washington, Md., died of a fractured skull received in an automobile accident on Route 2 near his home, May 11, according to Dr. James I. Boyd, deputy medical exominer for Prince Georges County.

Bobby, it was reported, was brought to Providence Hospital by his mother, Mrs. Susie Tucker, after the accident and no apparent injury was discovered. His mother brought him to Children's Hospital, Thursday.

Two Washington policemen were injured yesterday when their scout car crashed into a telephone at Forty-ninth and Fitch Street Northeast.

Private Ralph S. Warner, 46, Eleventh Precinct, driver of the car, said he swerved to avoid striking two dogs in the roadway. He suffered cuts and bruises and a broken rib.

Warner's partner, Private Clarence Chaney, 50, received cuts and bruises to his head. Both officers received first aid at Gallinger Hospital and Chaney was transferred to Emergency Hospital.

Two young Washingtonians and a Virginian were injured last night when their automobile plowed into the rear of a parked intercity bus south of Alexandria.

Taken to Alexandria Hospital were William S. Crawley, 23, of 489 G Street Southwest, in serious condition with a fractured thigh and other injuries; Eugene Brooks, 20, of Baileys Cross Roads, Va., head injury, and Miss Louise Ashby, 20, 707 Fifteenth Street Northeast, severe head lacerations.

Police reported the bus had flares out, according to the law.

Alien Waiters Under Scrutiny; May Lose Jobs

Waiters, maids, bus boys, bell hops—in fact, all hotel and night club employes who come in contact with the public—may be without jobs shortly unless they are naturalized citizens of the United States.

Personnel managers here for weeks been expecting an official Department of Justice request to dispose of such aliens, but the employes themselves are not responsible for this action.

Real reason for the anticipated regulation, informed quarters believe, is that officers in a "party mood" may be tempted to talk shop, thus letting out secret information that could fall on alien ears.

Official word from the Department of Justice has been withheld because waiters' unions, already hard-pressed to fill demands for hired help, cannot supply substitutes on short notice. There is even reason to hope that the order may never come, although local hotels have refrained from hiring unnaturalized men because they were warned some time ago that the FBI request was imminent.

In four big local hotels, only the ranks of waiters are affected seriously. Bell boys are, for the most part, Americans, and the same is believed to be true of maids.

Head waiters, however, are inclined to shudder at the thought of losing trusted employes of long standing—many of them associated with the same staff for 15 years of more—to replace them with untrained helpers. Waiters of any description are notably scarce anyway, they point out

In one downtown hotel, three waiters already have been dismissed and, according to the maitre d'hotel, directed to move at least 75 miles away from the site of any military operations, such as munitions plants or Army forts.

In another, the head waiter is fairly confident that his regular staff is made up only of citizens and will remain practically intact, but he is less certain about the citizenship of those hired only for the summer months.

"Frankly, though, I don't think there's much danger of military secrets being disclosed around here," he observed. "Most people that do the talking, don't know the time of day."

Wilbur Carr, Ex-Envoy, Dies

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 26.—Wilbur J. Carr, 71, of New York, former Assistant Secretary of State and more recently United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, who often was called the "Father of the American Foreign Service," died unexpectedly tonight at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The former Minister, recalled to the United States after this country closed its legation in Prague in March, 1939, entered the hospital May 29 for treatment of chronic asthmatic bronchitis and his release was expected in a few days, hospital attaches said.

He was stricken suddenly tonight with a heart attack, they added. No member of his family was at the hospital when he died.

State Department publications often called him the "Father of the American Foreign Service" because, they said, he had done much to change the Foreign Service from a system of political appointees to a service of career men.

Carr was appointed Minister to Czecho-Slovakia in 1937, after having served 45 years in the State Department. He started work as a $100-a-year clerk in 1892 and rose to the position of Assistant Secretary of State, which he held from 1924 to 1937. He succeeded J. Butler Wright as Minister to the Czech capital in that year.

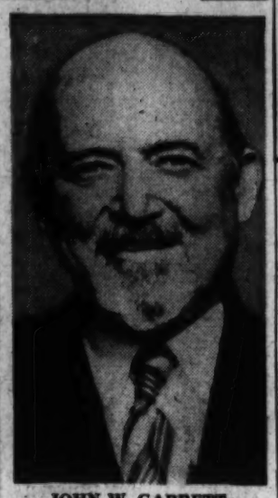
Career Diplomat

J. W. Garrett, Ex-Envoy To Italy, Dies



JOHN W. GARRETT

John W. Garrett, 70, former United States Ambassador to Italy and a career diplomat over a period of 30 years in Half a dozen capitals of Europe and South America, died yesterday at his home in suburban Baltimore.

Although he was in failing health for over a year, his condition did not become critical until several weeks ago. Private funeral services will be at his home. His widow is the former Alice Warder, whom he married in Washington in 1908. They met in 1905 in Berlin.

Garrett entered the foreign service by appointment of President Theodore Roosevelt in 1901 as secretary of the legation at The Hague, and wound up his career as Ambassador to Italy from September, 1929, until 1933.

Served During World War 1

His busiest years abroad were in World War days, when he was sent to France by President Wilson as a special agent of the State Department. For nearly three years he had charge of German and Austro-Hungarian civilian prisoners of war. He also visited detention camps of regular war prisoners. At the request of the French government, he inspected German prison camps in 1916.

He resigned from the foreign service in 1920 to seek the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Maryland, but lost in the primary to Senator Joseph I. France, who was running for reelection.

President Hoover appointed him Ambassador to Italy in 1929, after he had retired to private life. He had served as Secretary General of the Arms Limitation Conference in Washington in 1921-1922.

Two years after he had retired from his post in Rome, Garrett was decorated with the Grand Cross of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus, highest honor bestowed by the King of Italy upon any person other than royalty

Collected Art Treasures

Private wealth enabled Garrett to indulge his artistic tastes in art collecting in foreign countries. His wife was an authority on modern painting and a notable hostess of the diplomatic corps wherever he was stationed.

Garrett was born in Baltimore May 19, 1872, the son of T. Harrison Garrett. His father and an uncle, Robert Garrett, headed a private banking firm which dated back to 1840 and which was one of the backers of the first railroads across the Alleghenies. The future diplomat attended Princeton University, graduating in 1895. He was made a partner in the family bank, but left it to accept the appointment to The Hague.

Gen. McClure, Commander In 1918, Dies

Brig. Gen. Nathaniel F. McClure, 76, who lived in Washington since he retired in 1929, died at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday following an illness of several months. He had served in six foreign countries and in at least 14 States.

Burial with military honors will be in Arlington Cemetery following rites at Fort Myer Chapel at 10:30 a. m. Monday. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Mamie Chapin McClure of the Wardman Park.

As quartermaster, General McClure built the first post in the Philippines, Camp Stotsenburg. At the outbreak of World War I he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general, commanding at different times the Sixty-ninth Infantry Brigade and the Thirty-fifth Division. The latter he commanded for five weeks, during which time some part if it was always in the front line. He also served as chief of staff of the line of communications and commanded base section No. 5.

Born in Crittenden, Ky., General McClure received his appointment to West Point through John G. Carlisle, then Representative from Kentucky, later to become twice Speaker of the House and Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland. Entering the military academy September 1, 1883, he was called "Sept" by his friends, a nickname which followed him through his life. Always active in organizing class reunions, the last he attended was in 1937, the fiftieth of his class. At that time he wrote biographies of its members and a class history which was published the following year.

General McClure was a member of the Military Order of the Carabao, association of Army, Navy and Marine Corp officers in the Philippines formed during the insurrection there. He was a distinguished graduate of the Army School of the Line, and a graduate of the Army Staff College and the Army War College.

Rev. Harry V. Porter to Mark 8th Anniversary of Pastorate

'Christ at Grips With Our World' Is Sermon Topic

THE REV. HARRY PORTER

The Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor of Westminster Church Memorial Presbyterian Church, Seventh Street near E Street Southwest, tomorrow will mark the eighth anniversary of his pastorate there, preaching at 11 a. m. on "Christ at Grips With Our World."

Mr. Porter is a graduate of Penn State College and received his theological training at Princeton Seminary. In 1934 he was called directly from the seminary to become pastor of this historic church in which many of the old Washington families have worshiped for nearly a century. Dr. Benjamin F. Bittinger, pastor of the congregation for 38 years, stated over 50 years ago that "a spirit of improvement seems to be characteristic of the congregation."

This spirit was evidenced by the burning of a note just a year ago freeing the church from a $25,000 debt. A short time ago when the old Marvin Methodist Church was closed because of the widening of Independence Avenue, a number of members transferred to Westminster Church and a very generous check was sent to the church upon the sale of the Marvin property.

It is planned that this money will be used by the Sunday school during the coming fall and winter to contact and interest many of the children and families of the community in the work of the church. The church has three young people's societies and is represented by four softball teams. A vacation church school is being planned before the opening of the public schools.

One hundred young people will have a dinner at the church at 1 p. m., and at 2:30 p. m. they will have a recreational program in Rock Creek Park, in the Sixteenth and Kennedy Streets area. The Rev. John Gensel, summer assistant pastor, will speak at vespers there at 7:45 p. m. on "The Islands of Contrasts." Cars will leave the church at 7:30 p. m.

Douglass Calls War 4 Great 'Civil' Conflicts

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

World War II is actually a cover for four civil wars being fought simultaneously "on more than merely second fronts," Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University, declared last night at Western Maryland College.

He addressed churchmen from many parts of the District and Maryland converging today on this campus for the opening of the second annual Methodist young adult assembly of the Baltimore Conference.

Dr. Douglass told delegates that Civil War No. 1 is concerned with the political process, No. 2 with the economic process, No. 3 with the religious process, and No. 4 with the private person's process.

"To discover an abiding stability in the contemporary influx and confusion," he said, "our age must look to the classical world. It must revive the classical idea of decorum in conduct by reestablishing balance and proportion in living. It must overcome the contemporary anarchy of imagination by unifying man's aspirations and awakening an ethical imagination with the symbols of faith. Our hope is to recover the best of Greece and the noblest of Palestine."

The Rev. Ernest K. Emurian will speak today at 9 a. m. on the theme of "Worship in the New World," after which discussion groups will meet. District meetings are set for 1 p. m., and recreation from 2 to 5 p. m. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, will address tonight's banquet on "Legislating a New World." An informal sing and devotions will follow.

A sunrise communion service is set for tomorrow at 6 a. m. Final business sessions will take place at 8:30 a. m. and discussion groups from 9 to 11 a. m. Dr. F. L. Gibbs, representative of the Methodist Board of Education of Nashville, Tenn., will speak tomorrow at 11:15 a. m.

"Preparing a Christian World Order" is the general theme of the conference. Walter A. Graham of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., is director of the Baltimore Conference young adult work, and assembly dean.

THE PUBLIC IS CORDIALLY INVITED

"O, JESUS, THOU ART STANDING"
BISHOP WILLIAM W. HOW

O Jesus, Thou art standing
Outside the fast-closed door,
In lowly patience waiting
To pass the threshold o'er:
Shame on us, Christian brothers,
His Name and sign who bear:
O shame, thrice shame upon us,
To keep Him standing there!

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This popular hymn is said to have had its inspiration in the verses of a beautiful poem, and in Holman Hunt's famous picture, "The Light of the World" depicting the figure of Christ, crowned with thorns, carrying a lighted lantern, knocking at a closed door

Dr. Hollister and Wife Feted Upon Silver Anniversary

The congregation of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase Circle, last night tendered a reception to the Rev. Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor, and Mrs. Hollister upon their silver wedding anniversary. The official date is tomorrow.

The Hollisters were married in 1917 during his pastorate at Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Dr. Hollister was born in Troy, N. Y., and educated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., and Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

During his 16 years' local ministry, Dr. Hollister has been among the guiding spirits behind interdenominational work through the Federation of Churches. He was federation vice president and one time chairman of its social service committee.

Dr. Hollister's deep interest in social service work has been reflected in the success of the Temple Recreation Center at Tenth and N Streets Northwest, launched in 1939 through the efforts of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Federation of Churches, Temple Baptist Church, and various other organizations and individuals. The pending sale of Temple Baptist Church property forced the center's closing on June 15.

The Hollisters have three children. Elizabeth, 21, is a senior at Mount Holyoke College. Mary, 19, is a senior at Colby Junior College, New Hampshire, and William H., 13, is at home.

Our New Judges

Washington has good reason to be gratified over the judicial nominations for the two local courts which were sent to the Senate on Thursday. Every appointee appears to have been carefully selected. Indeed, the high caliber of the legal talent chosen for both the consolidated Municipal Court and the new Municipal Court of Appeals surprised many citizens because of the terrific political pressure that had been applied in favor of certain candidates for these posts.

William E. Richardson, who is to be chief judge of the appellate court, is the only man indorsed for that post by the executive committee of the District Bar Association. Judge Cayton's elevation to the appellate court from the municipal bench is a particularly happy choice because of the bitter political fight that had been made against the propqsal to name him chief judge of the Municipal Court. Undoubtedly Judge Cayton had earned the chief judgeship of the tribunal which he has served faithfully for many years. As father of the Small Claims Court and of many other judicial reforms, he could not reasonably have been denied a promotion. Considering the rivalry which developed in the fight for that chief judgeship, however, the public interest has probably best been served by promoting him to the appellate court. The third member of this tribunal, Andrew M. Hood, is also an able lawyer and a man of unusual judicial temperament.

Two of the appointees to the Municipal Court, George P. Barse, the future chief judge, and Brice Clagett, had previously had Bar Association support for appointment to the higher District Court. Nathan R. Margold, solicitor of the Interior Department, and Aubrey B. Fennell have both won places of trust and distinction in their profession. Judge Casey's work in the Police Court entitles him to a new term on the consolidated bench. Taking the appointments as a whole, the caliber of the men selected is sufficiently high to arouse speculation as to whether the jurisdiction of the two local courts may be still further extended to relieve the burden on the District Court.

At the moment, however, the problem is to get these two tribunals into operation without further delay. The nominations were so late in coming that both courts will find it impossible to begin functioning on July 1, as contemplated in the act creating them. But, assuming that the Senate will promptly confirm the nominees, the District will soon have the best judicial system in its history.

Pound Foolish

Congress has been so laggard in eliminating unnecessary expenditures in this time of war that we are likely to fall easily into the habit of applauding every cut made in nonmilitary appropriations bills. But not all the cuts that are being made can be justified and not all those that could be justified are being made. Yesterday, for example, the Senate—by virtue of the tie-breaking vote cast by Vice President Wallace—approved the expenditure of approximately 77 million dollars to keep the CCC alive, even though it is no longer necessary. But it allowed to stand in the same bill sharp cuts in the appropriation for the Children's Bureau.

The blunt fact is that many boys and girls will be drawn into wartime jobs within the next year. Indeed, many are already working in armament factories and elsewhere. Their labor will become more and more an essential part of our war effort. Now this fact gives particular emphasis to the work of the Children's Bureau in enforcing the child-labor regulations of the Fair Labor Standards Act. With children being pressed into industry and commerce for the duration, the least the Government can do is to see that their health, welfare and morals are not undermined. But both the Senate and House have voted to cut $28,000 from the fund for enforcement of child-labor regulations.

Another cut will curtail investigations into the conditions under which children are living in areas given over to war industries. This cut will also hamper the work of organizing daytime care for the children of mothers in war industry. And it will render the bureau less able to bring out the facts as to the increasing delinquency of children under the stress and strain of war. A comparatively small sum would enable the bureau to render invaluable service in the adjustment of child labor and child care to a wartime basis. Instead, the Senate has voted a large sum to keep boys in CCC camps where they will be of relatively little service to their country. There is no question as to where the emphasis should be shifted in the conference committee.

Unified Command

A demand for the unification of command has arisen both here and in London out of the experience in Libya. As advanced in London, it means that Mr. Churchill shall be either a full-time Prime Minister or a full-time Minister of Defense. Now he is both. Mr. Churchill's opponents insist that he step down as Minister of Defense and give that position to a military chieftain. Much the same demand has arisen in this country. The critics of our present system insist that the President should be either Commander in Chief or President; indeed, in some quarters the cry has gone up that Mr. Roosevelt should be appointed commander in chief of the United Nations.

These proposals can be put in perspective by an examination of the present setup. As Minister of Defense as well as Premier Mr. Churchill in effect has attained precisely the same position as Mr. Roosevelt constitutionally enjoys in our country. Our President is Commander in Chief, and that is precisely what Mr. Churchill is. Helping them in their respective countries are joint staff committees representing the three service arms. These joint staffs are joined together in the combined staffs committee sitting in Washington. Washington, in short, is the No. 1 seat of United Nations strategy. When Mr. Churchill is not in Washington, his deputy, Marshal Sir John Dill, acts in his name. Thus on the strategical plane we have (1) interservice cooperation in both countries, and (2) international cooperation.

It still remains to be proved that any change in this system is desirable. Indeed, it is difficult to see how it could be made in America. Under our system the President is Commander in Chief. If there were a Napoleon in sight, there might be some point in suggesting that some way might be found for delegating that part of the President's functions. The same comment applies to Britain. If there were a really outstanding three-service mind available, there might be an argument in favor of a delegation of the strategic function that Mr. Churchill has assumed. But no evidence exists that the conduct of this war outside Russia and China could be left in better hands than those of Mr. Churchill and our President. To be sure, they are not military geniuses and they have made mistakes. But the United Nations—fighting men and the men behind the lines—have implicit faith in their leadership. That must be the yardstick of judgment. Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek—that is the quadrumvirate back of whom a great host of mankind is confidently on the march to eradicate the Prussian cancer from the world's body politic.

However, since neither Roosevelt nor Churchill claims to be or is a Napoleon, our two leaders must perfect the organization and the strategy of the war effort, or risk a succession of defeats. As to organization, there are two glaring reforms to which we have already drawn attention. One applies only to the United States, and that is that procurement should be wholly vested in the WPB under Mr. Nelson. Civilian control of procurement is firmly established in Britain. The other reform is that the production chiefs of both the United States and Great Britain should sit with the strategists on the combined staffs committee. Some such link, according to Mr. Nelson, is to be established in a forthcoming reorganization of the WPB. That is gratifying to know, but it cannot be sufficiently emphasized, in the light of recent events, that time and Mr. Hitler will not wait upon slow learning.

Undoubtedly a supreme commander will have to be appointed for the specific purpose of taking charge of those operations when the United Nations seize the initiative in Europe. We must not flounder along as in the last war till events thrust another Foch upon our war effort. Here is a problem for our two leaders. Soon they must make a choice. And when thye have made it, that man should have their entire confidence. It is just as important to arm the commanders in the field with responsibility as it is to arm their men with weapons. That is one of the secrets of the Russian success—a success which has been achieved even though Stalin runs the war as well as the state.

Lezaky

Another monument to the savagery of Hitlerism comes from suffering Czechoslovakia, where a small community named Lezaky has been razed in further reprisal for the assassination of Heydrich the Hangman. The same fate that attended Lidice has been meted out to Lezaky: the males have been shot, the women removed to concentration camps, and the children sent to educational institutions. Thus the new order continues to function in occupied Europe. Of course, it was never intended to be an order in the sense of a system of government in which the conquered would be permitted to work and live in a decent society. The Nazis imagined that they could reduce the conquered to servitude. That was to be the new order—an order in which men and women would suffer themselves to be browbeaten into working for the betterment and higher glory of Nazi overlords. It is the oppressed who are making a disorder out of this kind of order.

Never did the Nazis commit a greater mistake than to imagine that men who had once lived in freedom would ever tolerate slavery. "Who overcomes by force, hath overcome but half his foe," said Milton. Not all the brutality of Nazidom—a brutality which is carefully inculcated in the army and Nazi elite—can quench the spirit of resistance which will rise up and crush the modern Huns who are responsible for Lidice and Lezaky as soon as the freedom army lands on European soil. There is no question that deliverance will come. The only question which is raised by the horrors that are spreading over Europe is how vengeance can be kept in check by the relieving armies. For Lidice and Lezaky—and every occupied country has similar places—can not be razed out of men's memories; they become flaming pledges of a day of retribution.

Quality Control

Price control is not assured by merely setting maximum sales prices for goods and services. To protect the consumer it is also necessary to maintain quality standards. For if the consumer has to pay a fixed price for an inferior product or a poor substitute, price control becomes a snare and a delusion. In time of war, to be sure, with many products scarce or no longer available for civilian use, some deterioration of customary standards of quality is inevitable. But that is a very different matter from a deliberate lowering of quality for the benefit of manufacturers and merchants operating under price ceilings.

Reports reaching Price Administrator Henderson indicate that across the border in Canada variety and quality in goods and services are being "ruthlessly sacrificed" to maintain price ceilings. Resolved that similar abuses shall not develop here, Mr. Henderson has assured the American Standards Association that the OPA plans "to utilize to the fullest extent the facilities, publications and data of recognized standardization bodies throughout the country." We are led to hope, therefore, that the authorities will act vigorously to prevent evasions of price orders by a lowering of quality.

There are, of course, innumerable kinds of articles on merchants' shelves to which it is impossible to apply standardized tests of quality. There will undoubtedly be many disputes, too, over the adequacy of substitutes for familiar articles that are no longer obtainable. Nevertheless, official vigilance, combined with cooperation from industry itself, should enable us to maintain standards of quality fairly well for most articles of mass consumption. That is as much as can be reasonably expected, and it is enough to protect consumers from a particularly vicious form of concealed exploitation.

Peter's Mission

King Peter's appearance before Congress and Washington's newspaper clubs has indorsed the advance notices of him. He joins the disarming boyishness of his age with the high seriousness of his position. He promises, indeed, to be the son of his father, King Alexander, who knew the trade of being a King as few crowned heads in Europe did. Alexander would be happy to see his son single-mindedly devoted to the triune kingdom in this hour of its tribulation. For the youthful King's patriotism is evident in everything he says and does. Americans will like the way that he expects help from America, both now and after the war. Among allies who are enlisted in the greatest common cause in history there is no need to supplicate. Besides, Yugoslavia is still fighting, and as a focus of open resistance the Yugoslavs are pinning down many thousands of Germans.

In the mountains at least 100,000 guerillas are serving today under the fabulous Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch. They are a running sore to Hitler and his occupation army. They need aid to make them even more troublesome, and the King is their spokesman as well as their sovereign. It is not food that Peter wants for his guerilla people, but arms. Ways and means may now be canvassed for heeding the King's plea that supplies be dropped on the Chetniks' fastnesses. In the meantime let us pay tribute to Yugoslavia through King Peter. He and his country are a living example that to overrun a country is not necessarily to conquer it. As long as a Chetnik lives, Yugoslavia will still take toll of the victors. And in the final day of reckoning King Peter's undaunted people will be found on the march for their own freedom and the liberation of humanity.

SONG FOR A WINTER

The wind is savage, and the storm.
Bird eats bird, and the song dies.
The snake curls on the pulseless form.
An iron dagger roams the skies.
As life and hope and love recede,
Death is a vaunter with his whips.
And it is no more strange to read
The shape of the word, war, on lips.
The world is trembling on its knees;
Our fingers fall from the things that drown.
Between shores on the seven seas,
The good grey ships go down, go down.

Letters To The Editor

An Appreciation

I am writing to express my appreciation of the newspaper service The Post is now furnishing Washington and vicinity. I have been a reader of the Washington newspapers for 29 years and the service that your paper is now giving is, in my opinion, superior to that of any paper published in Washington during that period. I have heard other persons express the same opinion. Possibly, even a Washington editor will not object to being told that his efforts are appreciated.

One of the main faults in Washington newspapers has been that they lacked guts enough to have an independent editorial policy that would criticize public officials in places of power and influence. The Post has this, and its editorials are enlightening and constructive, and on occasion deservedly severe. Its news service is comprehensive and reliable with an attractive avoidance of sensationalism.

It has always seemed to me that there is a field in the realm of our foreign relations for the cultivation by Washington newspapers of closer bonds and more friendly political and commercial ties with the countries south of us. That field has been neglected in the past. Articles such as those by Virginia Prewett tend to develop that field, and go a long way to overcome in the minds of the representatives of those countries in Washington foolish and ill-advised talk sometimes indulged in by members of Congress and other Federal officials. Your paper in cultivating that field is rendering a great service to our foreign relations similar to that rendered by many great foreign newspapers to their governments.

Before The Asylum

Among the things I'd like to know
Is why the sun gives such a glow
For only Japs, on Kiska.

And why the fog lies day and night
For only us, so we can't fight
The busy Japs on Kiska.

I always thought the winds and tides
Were way beyond the taking sides
Of even Japs on Kiska.

That what is fog to us must be
To them a fog quite equally
On Jap acquired Kiska.

Perhaps I'm wrong. I wouldn't know.
Perhaps the sunlight's really snow.
Perhaps forked lightning's awfully slow.
Perhaps I'm nuts and ought to go
To what was once OUR Kiska!

I have read with great interest your comments in The Washington Post on the nomination of Thomas F. Meaney.

Your appreciation of the issue involved is very heartening.

British And American Taxes

While not wishing to support unreservedly the proposal for a $25,000 limitation on all incomes, I would like to make two comments on your editorial "Super Tax" in The Washington Post for June 17.

In the first place, must it not be admitted that "opportunity" means for the mass of Americans an opportunity to advance from, say, $12 a week to, say, $50 or $60 a week, or for most Americans who have had the advantages of higher education or who possess unusual talents, to advance from, say, $1500 a year to $5000—or in extreme cases to $10,000 or $15,000. It is pertinent to note that except for the President, the Justices of the Supreme Court and Cabinet officials, the highest salary in the Federal service is $12,000. When only 11,000 out of over 50 million income receivers would be affected, such a tax would not have much real relevance to democratic "opportunity." The path of immigration to the new world has indeed been trod by millions who wished opportunity, but not many have come to our shores in the past century with any hope in mind of more than achieving substantial freedom from oppression or bettering their material position by rising above European incomes which represented, in our terms, fantastically low levels.

In the second place, the comparison made in this editorial between British and American wartime tax systems does not tell quite the whole story. The following points may be added to your statement of contrasts between British and American wartime fiscal measures:

1. Nearly half of British central government tax revenues were raised by the individual income tax during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1942. In the United States only about one-quarter of Federal revenues will be yielded by the individual income tax during the fiscal year which will end this month.

2. The British have not placed much reliance on a sales tax as a means of raising revenue. They have, it is true, a form of sales tax called a "purchase tax" but this tax yields a minor amount of revenue, totaling less than 5 per cent of central government tax revenues in the last fiscal year. It has other differences from any Federal sales tax which would be imposed in this country; it is collected at the wholesale level, rather than the retail; and it is primarily intended as a means of curtailing consumption—a goal which conflicts squarely with the aim of raising revenue.

3. The British income tax system is so devised that it includes a form of undistributed earnings tax. That is to say, corporate income is either paid out in dividends and the individual recipient taxed heavily, and equitably, through his personal income tax (collected at source with later adjustment) or, if corporate income is not paid out, the corporation itself pays income tax on the undistributed portion of its income.

In the United States today it is largely because of the probability that much corporate income will escape taxation that the corporation must be regarded as a fiscal "milch cow." There are constitutional problems surrounding the alternative of imputing corporate income to stockholders' personal incomes, and the business community recently experienced a strange and powerful reaction against the other alternative of a form of undistributed earnings tax. Given this impasse, it is necessary to apply income taxes directly against corporate income instead of in the more equitable manner against each stockholder's private income as corrected by his personal family and financial status.

Big Aircraft Carriers

Major Seversky's article regarding battleships and airplane carriers certainly hit the nail on the head.

Anyone with any vision or realism would have agreed with Gen. "Billy" Mitchell that air power, which is really a long-range gun on wings and a very speedy one at that, could cover more ocean and strike at a greater distance than any guns on a floating platform and could knock that floating platform out in short order.

That was about a generation ago, and the former Assistant Secretary of Navy, admirals and Navy Department are at last beginning to acknowledge that General Mitchell was absolutely right and that the battleship is not so hot as an offensive weapon. In fact, about all that we have heard of other battleships during this war is the fact that they were sunk.

A generation is quite a length of time and aviation has and is progressing very rapidly, but the Navy men still seem to believe and want enormous aircraft carriers, which would have been fine 10 years or so ago, before the present flying fortresses were developed, but for this time certainly look foolish. Small carriers, carrying scouter and fighting planes to all the heavy long range, land-based bombers, which can be used in this war shortly will be worth far more than enormous unmaneuverable, vulnerable, aircraft carriers, to be sunk with all their skilled air mechanics, personnel and planes, which may be available in 1944 or later.

Scoops Japs

To those gardeners now engaged in picking off Japanese beetles I wish to suggest a method which I found most practical. Use the ordinary coffee tin can and cover its bottom with a thin coat of lubricating oil. The beetles, once in the can, will grease themselves up because of their proclivity to dig under. Naturally when once oiled they cannot fly and others that follow into the can suffer the same fate from contact with the oily lot. Because of their downward swoop when disturbed the beetles just naturally fall in when the can is placed under them. The best time for doing this is near sunset or early morning. During the day the beetles are much more alert, but after sunset they cling stubbornly to foliage. To reach high trees and vines use a pole with such a can secured to its top with a nail near the top edge of the can so that it will swing level when the pole is held at any angle, thus enable "scooping" the Japs.

Any cheap oil, or castor or cooking oils, can be used in very small quantity without unpleasant odor and risk of spilling.

Congress Discredits Self

Why are those farm bloc men—Aiken, Bankhead, Capper, McNary and Thomas—permitted to hamper our war effort? Hasn't someone told these A B C Senators we're at war?

And why is the anti-Henderson bloc allowed to go on playing patronage politics while Tobruk falls and our whole cause is in mortal danger? Why don't their fellow-members rise up in righteous wrath against them? Or has it always been that Congress is for itself, first, and to hell with America?

Doesn't it look as if Congress is again conniving a "dastardly plot" to discredit Congress?

The Post Impressionist

Heritage For Invasion

The Japanese attack on Alaska should certainly not have surprised the average intelligent American.

Since 1906 there have been Japanese studying the topography of the country and taking notes of other important matters of interest to hostile invaders.

That Alaska would eventually be conquered by the Emperor has been impressed not only on the low-class Japanese, but on the Indians of North America as well.

As far back as 1913 the Northwest Mounted Police perceived a growing restlessness and obstinacy in the Indians who lived near the boundary line of Alaska. When rebuked by the officers for this sudden change in their behavior, some of their leaders sullenly remarked, "When yellow man come from Japan we have good time." The officers reported the matter to their superiors, but further questioning yielded no additional information, the Indians being either unwilling or unable to reveal other than that the Japanese would obtain control of the country.

In 1920, a young man of Japanese extraction who was considered very intelligent by his bosses quit his job as a United States mail carrier and became a freighter in the Alaska country. Three years later he resigned this position and moved to Japan.

That some, if not all, of the Japanese in Alaska were in communication with their home government was indicated when Commander Tokutaro Hiroga of the imperial navy and an attache to the Japanese Embassy in Washington, boarded the steamer Admiral Sampson at Seattle, bound for Valdes, in September, 1911. His purpose, he stated to newspapermen, was to make "a tour of Alaska." Although this was near the end of the summer season, when tours of Alaska are uncommon, the commander's trip caused no comment. However, had he been a Russian or German naval officer, a hue and a cry of "peril" would no doubt have been raised in the press along the Pacific Coast, particularly at that time.

We can now assume with a fair degree of certainty that Hiroga, with native cunning, made the excursion to receive reports and to issue orders for further fifth column activities in that region.

But the espionage during that period was not confined to Alaska.

The wily Japanese government received all the essential information they required regarding the Panama Canal in 1912.

In May of that year, the International Navigation Convention met in Philadelphia, being composed of one or two delegates from each of the interested countries. But Japan sent five representatives, the increased number being explaind by the leading member, one Toisuka Harada, who stated that they had come to gather information which they intended to utilize at similar work in Japan. Further, he glibly stated, they would be "most pleased to examine the wonderful improvements of the Mississippi and the engineering work of the Panama Canal, if the American Government would be so kindly."

The designing Jap strategy worked perfectly. Harada received permission from the authorities at Washington to spend sufficient time in the Canal Zone to make a complete study of the construction, maintenance, operations and protection of the Panama Canal.

As the canal is looked upon as one of the most important factors in the present war, all this information gathered by Harada and his colleagues might be of the utmost value to the Japanese government today.

Although the above incidents took place some three decades ago it does not require a great amount of intelligence to surmise that, in the intervening years, many similar cases of true Nippon trickery and deceit were perpetrated upon an unsuspecting American Government and its people.

For 25 years prior to Japan's war on China it was common knowledge that its government was spending hundreds of millions of dollars yearly on war materials and storing them in vast warehouses ready for immediate use. But when asked why the need for such colossal preparations, the men of Nippon were always ready with a quick, grinning reply, "Defense, please."

The American people may have fallen for this explanation but the Samurai or upper class of Japan were too proud to believe that any nation could invade Japan without meeting the same fate as did the Mongolian invaders in the 13th century, and they pounded these thoughts into the heads of the lower classes.

Consequently, the hope of the conquest of American territory and of the rich spoils of war has helped the lowest of the Japanese race carry their burdens of poverty without complaint.

These poor, deluded souls have been led to believe that, when Alaska is conquered, Japanese troops will be landed at several of the most important spots in that country. As they land, so this information reveals, the Japanese flag will be hoisted, and Alaska declared to be a "province of Japan." From that moment the law of Japan will prevail according to which the entire Territory, with every branch of the sea or ocean touching it, belongs to the Emperor. All the land, water, the trees, the mineral in the ground or above it, the animals of any kind on land or in the sea will be controlled by the Japanese authorities.

The question as to why Japan is so desperately eager to procure Alaska is easily answered. In the first place the condition of its people will be bettered both financially and economically. In possession of that great and rich Territory, millions of Japanese farmers who are practically starving in their native country will find homes on a fertile soil which will support them in affluence. Millions of the laboring class will go to work in the Alaska gold, tin and copper mines. The gold will help fill the coffers of a much depleted Japanese treasury, help pay off the national debt, reduce the taxes and last but not least in the eyes of a militaristic people the conquest of Alaska will furnish the means to increase their army and navy.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Hoover-Gibson Book

IN THEIR BOOK, "The Problems of Lasting Peace," Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson have done what earnest men must do if they know enough of these problems to understand how difficult they are. They have raised more questions than they pretend to be able to answer. Thus the first two parts of the Hoover-Gibson book are a memorandum of some of the things that must be taken into account in preparing for peace, and the third part is a suggestive, yet a tentative and very elementary discussion of the armistice and peace.

LIPPMANN

THE GREAT VALUE of this third part is that it shows that Messrs Hoover and Gibson have come independently to practical conclusions which are essentially the same as those on which the United Nations are now acting. The defect of this third part is that it seems to have been written without taking into account, perhaps even without close knowledge of, the constructive diplomacy of the past four months.

The period opened with the signing on February 23, 1942, of an agreement with Great Britain by which the lend-lease machinery was set up to become, as the President has just told Congress, "the first of our concrete steps in the direction of affirmative post-war construction." Similar agreements were signed with China on June 2 and with the Soviet Union on June 11, and they are being offered to our other Allies. The spirit and purpose of these agreements is, it would seem, wholly consistent with what Messrs Hoover and Gibson advocate in the discussion which begins on page 204 of their book. But what they write there would have gained in actuality if they had discussed what is actually being done.

During the same period there have taken place the extremely important diplomatic negotiations which are marked by Mr. Sumner Welles's two speeches, by the declarations of war with Bulgaria, Rumania, and Hungary, by the Anglo-Soviet alliance, and the Molotov visit. Here we see in formation the decision to have a rather long policed armistice during which, by doing justice and by providing for relief and rehabilitation, the conditions and the mood for a lasting settlement can be developed. Messrs Hoover and Gibson lend the weight of their personal authority to this general procedure.

This is a notable event: Governor Landon has already indorsed the Hoover-Gibson book; Mr. Willkie's position has never been in doubt. Thus we may take great comfort in the fact that there is a high degree of unity of opinion among our political leaders.

ON THE MORE advanced problems of the peacemaking the Hoover-Gibson book has almost nothing to say. It does recognize the existence of the extremely perplexing question: with what kind of German government can a lasting peace be negotiated? The authors' answer is: with a representative government. This is, no doubt, right. Ferrero, who has discussed the problem more thoroughly than anyone else, has come to the same conclusion: that legitimate governments, which alone can make reasonably dependable agreements, are in the modern world governments which depend upon popular consent.

The application of the principle is, however, difficult. For when Hitler falls, there will not exist in Germany a representative government to replace him, and therefore it remains to be seen and decided what kind of provisional German government the United Nations would be able to recognize. This is a problem of great moment, which will become a problem of extreme urgency, and it cannot be left out of a memorandum on the problems of the peace.

THE GENERAL weakness of the book is that it discusses peace in the abstract and in general, and has almost nothing to say about how to make peace with Germany, Japan, and their satellites. Thus the two most important references to Germany are a paragraph on the disarming of Germany and one which is entitled "German Unity."

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson hope for the total disarmament of Germany to the point where "the whole officer and military caste" would be excluded from serving even in a police constabulary. This is indeed a drastic recommendation made, as they say, to bring about "the disappearance from the world" of the German warrior caste. However, the authors do not think this can be done. It is "too much to be hoped for in this world."

In the light of this admission, which seems to me quite correct, we must consider what Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson have to say under the head of "German Unity." For if the warrior caste will somehow persist for at least some long time to come, then the question of what is to be comprised by German unity is the greatest problem of the peace. What the authors say is that "there can be no lasting peace with a dismembered Germany . . . the sound course is to give the Germans an incentive for abandoning their old ways and becoming a peaceful nation."

AGREEING about the incentive, let us ask ourselves what is "a dismembered Germany"? Does German unity mean the Germany of 1870 or of 1919 or of 1942? Does "Germany" include Austria which it never included before Hitler? Does it include Bohemia which it never included before Hitler? If Austria recovers her historic independence, if Bohemia recovers her independence, will "Germany" have been dismembered? Messrs Hoover and Gibson will have to face questions of this sort when they write the sequel to this book. For these are, among many others, real questions which will have to be answered, and they cannot be answered without passing beyond generalities.

IT IS evident, however, that the authors have written a provocative book in a spirit of enlightened good will, and that is unquestionably a service for which their many friends will be grateful.

Suppressing Facts

IT IS about time for an interim report on the campaign of Communists and racketeers in the union movement, and their stooges and dupes, to compel the suppression of facts revealed, and opinions expressed on the basis of those facts, in these dispatches.

Material at hand to date shows that this demand, backed in some cases by threats against individual papers, has been expressed by resolution or by editorial in union publications in New York, Louisville, Denver, Bridgeport, Youngstown, Akron, Waterbury and Salt Lake City.

In New York the local chapter of the Newspaper Guild, in whose affairs the Communist influence always has been dominant, asked the chief of staff to see to it that soldiers overseas be not allowed to read in The Stars and Stripes the extent of the Communist influence and racketeering in unions. Such information was not fit reading for American soldiers who, naturally, might be disquieted about this state of affairs on the home front. There was no suggestion that as a more satisfactory solution the Communists be deprived of their influential position or that thievery by extortion and by other means be stopped.

THE TRADE UNION RECORD of New York, which purports to speak for unions of the A. F. L. in the metropolitan area, echoed this demand, as, of course, did the daily organ of the Communist Party which had damned Roosevelt as a tool of British imperialism until Hitler attacked and thereafter, until Pearl Harbor, reviled him because he did not put the United States into the war on Russia's side at once.

The Union Cat, published by Caterpillar Local 105 of the C. I. O., next reported that the C. I. O. council of New York was demanding a congressional investigation of these dispatches and their suppression by the press. The Cat said the council was circulating petitions to this effect throughout the country, one count in the indictment being that these articles had called for radio attacks on unions by "scab-minded reactionaries."

This referred to a proposal that equal radio time be allowed to genuine pro-labor debates to refute the propaganda of the professional unionsers, particularly as concerns communism, graft and goon terrorism. The anti-Americans and apologists for anti-labor crooks have things all their own way on the air and their ballyhoo goes without challenge.

In Fort Wayne the C. I. O. council addressed a circular letter to firms advertising in the News-Sentinel asking the threatening question: "Does your financial support of the News-Sentinel through your advertising indicate that you support its antilabor and antiwar policies?" The unions of the council, by the exercise of the terroristic discipline adopted from the Communist Party, might try to prevent their members from patronizing such merchants and thus suppress the paper. The News-Sentinel, incidentally, had exposed, without denial, the activity of Parks Kreachbaum, the council's secretary, in a Communist-front, antiwar organization which evaporated when Hitler struck Russia.

Communist groups have often denounced real or fictitious examples of control of the editorial policies of daily papers by box-office pressure exerted by advertisers, but in this case the C. I. O. council demands such pressure in the interests of Communists and racketeers.

The Communist Party of Louisville, Ky., is very direct. It just calls on the Louisville Times to throw out the copy.

The Denver protest, published in the Colorado Labor Advocate, is amusing because it was initiated by the Building Service Employes' Union, the old Scalise underworld racket, which was exposed in these pieces. These dispatches and Tom Dewey took the crooks off the necks of the rank and file, and now the Denver local calls for a State-wide boycott of the Rocky Mountain News for continuing to print similar exposes.

THE WATERBURY American printed a letter from someone in New Haven, calling himself William B. Cahn, "State Organizer," and purporting to speak for "literally thousands" and, in statelier language, told him to roll his hoop. In Akron, Paul M. Fessenden, executive secretary of the Industrial Union Council, took it on himself to demand suppression in the name of "a large majority of the population" and all of "organized labor," including, of course, the millions of looted and oppressed captive union members who joined only because they had to and would quit in a minute if they could. The Bridgeport Post had the same request from a committee composed of Communists who suddenly went patriotic when Hitler attacked Russia, and in New York the party-line office workers of the C. I. O. had hysterics over mention of the obvious and touchy fact that Communists employed in confidential office jobs, being Communists and thus bound by no ethics of honor, naturally would filch and betray to the party the secrets of their employers.

There are miscellaneous others of the same sort and more are coming in, but to date I have heard of no cancellations of this column by editors on this account.

Argentina Walks Softly

By Virginia Prewett

But Her People Back The Allies

FOR THE PAST two years the great majority of the Argentine people and the controlling group within the Argentine government have had very divergent views on what Argentina's international role should be. This has led the Argentine nation to a position that has not been at all clear cut. It has not been generally understood abroad, especially since Argentina's action at the Rio conference blocked an unanimous New World break with the Axis.

No one at all close to the situation has ever seriously believed that Castillo and the group that have supported his conciliatory attitude toward the Axis are motivated by admiration of Hitler or that they are looking forward to a place for Argentina within the Nazi New Order. The gist of their point of view is this: That the Second World War is not Argentina's war. That it is their duty to guard Argentina's interests from the grave economic repercussions of the war. That the best way to do this is to walk the fence. This set of ideas of course has no novelty for Americans who read our own isolationist press before Pearl Harbor.

WITH THIS attitude determining the official acts of the Argentine government and coloring the news that comes from there, it has been difficult for us here to realize that the Argentine people are very much in disagreement with it. It is nevertheless true. During 1941 and early this year, both before and after Pearl Harbor, I was in Latin American countries to gather fact and official and unofficial opinion on relations with us. In no country was there so strong and evident a popular enthusiasm for the Allied cause as in Argentina. Nowhere were our national leaders, first of all Roosevelt and Hull, more admired.

The Buenos Aires press is the most vigorous in Latin America and one of the world's first. Except for shady subsidized publications such as we have scores of here, it was hitting hard against the Axis. Argentina has old resentments against both the United States and Great Britain, arising out of economic irritations. But they normally do by far the greater part of their business with Great Britain and would like to do a great deal more with us. They do not have a satisfactorily functioning democracy, since controlled elections are a commonplace. But they have the largest middle class, the most homogeneously European population, the highest standard of living and the highest level of popular education of any of the Latin American countries—they are in fact more like the United States than any other country.

Above all, they are a free, proud and independent people. For this reason, if for no other, they are against the Axis.

A consistent policy of the Castillo government has been to regard this popular feeling as dangerous to Argentina's best national interests. Their plan has been to hold it in check—since mid-December by press censorship and denial of the right of assembly—while they continued to keep on the best terms they could with Spain, Italy, Japan and Germany as well as with the United States and Great Britain.

THEY HAVE justified this on the basis of economic necessity. Argentina's economic life depends on her huge agricultural exports, notably corn, beef, oats, wheat, flaxseed. Her commerce has normally been with Europe, mainly Great Britain. Except in years of drought here, she has always bought far more from us than she sells to us.

War cut off Argentina's continental markets and cut into her traffic with Great Britain. Some of her products still get there, but Britain cannot ship back to her the supplies that she has to import—manufactured articles, and semimanufactured materials for Argentina's industries. The sterling that pays for Argentine products is piling up in London, since under the Roca agreement it can only be spent for British goods. Argentina, then, has lost large European markets and cannot use the money for products that she still sells there in order to buy supplies from us. With very little foreign exchange available, she has the double problem of holding up an agricultural economy dependent on foreign sales and manufacturing industries dependent on foreign materials.

THE CASTILLO government has so far been very successful in doing this. The main prop to agriculture has been government purchase of surpluses. Argentina has been burning corn in factories for two years and supports prices on numerous agricultural products. By walking softly with the Axis, they have continued to sell some supplies to them, particularly to Spain. This has been with British consent, for no shipments could get through the blockade without the British navicert. Their swing to American sources of supply in 1940 has been facilitated by a 110 million dollar United States loan. Our purchases of wool and canned meat and leather have greatly increased since then. All this has served to keep money flowing through Argentina's economy and to conceal the fact that it is essentially suspended by the bootstrap of government subsidies, loans and financing. The country is so rich that observers agree that this process can be kept up for some time before a collapse threatens. Argentinian financial minds have hoped that it would carry them through the war.

The one weak point has been supplies for Argentina's industry. The government cannot draw a draft on the treasury for materials that the country doesn't produce. They look to us for these materials and we have been giving priorities on essential needs. This has shifted the point of stress to shipping. Argentina has a fair-sized national merchant marine. If her ships could be safe on the seas, she might squeeze through the war emergency as the Castillo group had hoped to and have maintained her "neutral" policy in order to do.

The most recent developments in this situation indicate, however that the Castillo group will be one more of the many who in various nations have thought that they could buy off for their country by placating the Axis. Argentine ships taking supplies from the United States to Argentina are being sunk. The latest sinking has been so bold that Germany's claim of "mistake" and her belated apologies will sound hollow. The Castillo group will learn from this what Argentine opinion has strongly felt for over two years that you can't do business with criminals.

Canadian Labor

By Janet R. Keith

Employer-Employe Relations

"BETTER employer - employe relations have got to be brought about. Better personnal relations means better personal relations between employer and employe. It does not mean paternalism; the employe does not want nor ask for paternalism. He simply asks to be recognized as a responsible citizen."

This is the theme being preached constantly these days by Elliott Little, Canada's National Director of Selective Service. If he preaches it long enough and hard enough, it may have a decisive effect on Canadian war production and Canadian labor relations. Canada's counterpart of Paul McNutt, Little is a 42-year-old electrical engineer who worked up the hard way to a top niche in the pulp and paper industry. When he became the country's manpower boss in March of this year, he set himself the goal of mobilizing the population for total war in six months. So far he has done a good job, and he has established for himself a reputation for speaking plainly and honestly.

CERTAINLY he spoke plainly enough in a recent address to the hardboiled Canadian Manufacturers Association, of which he himself is of course a member. He made it clear first of all that Canada is rapidly approaching the point of extreme labor shortage. "If you think you can go to your own gate any morning and pick up a few men to fill vacancies on new jobs, I suggest that you drop that idea right now."

There are four sources of additional labor for war industries: workers diverted from peacetime occupations; reclaimed unemployed; utilization of women; absorption of youths from schools. But increasing the number of workers will not be enough. There must, Mr. Little stressed, be maximum efficiency in every plant. And it was the responsibility of employers to achieve maximum efficiency through improved relations with their employes.

"To those who don't want good relations or don't appreciate their value, I say: The country can't afford to have you as an employer at any time, particularly in wartime. You must change your ways. Waving a flag in a workman's face and calling on his patriotism cannot be a substitute for decent treatment. You cannot write a memo about it and accomplish it. It must be an attitude, a frame of mind, a recognition of existing facts and conditions which can be turned to mutual advantage for an employer and an employe—and for the country."

Mr. Little admitted that there were unreasonable elements in the ranks of labor, but he thought that labor trouble would decrease if management faced problems squarely.

"The government of this country has indorsed the principle of collective bargaining. You cannot use the sincere cooperation of labor to erect a barbed wire fence against trade unions. And unions must not use your cooperation as an open door to the closed shop."

Mr. Little's advice to the manufacturers comes at a time when the formation of management-labor boards, similar to those advised by Donald Nelson in the United States, is just getting under way in Canada. The government is requesting all holders of war contracts to form committees for the purpose of increasing production "by means of studies of plant efficiency, encouragement and study of workers' suggestions, and similar proceedings." All questions of wage rates and union recognition are barred from consideration. The government will not be a third party nor will it stand as an arbiter. There will be no compulsion on the formation of committees from the Department of Munitions and Supply.

THE EXPERIENCE of the United States would seem to indicate that this type of committee can serve a very useful purpose. Already committees are functioning in at least 900 American war plants, employing two million workers. A recent survey on their efficiency was conducted by the magazine "Mill and Factory. Of the plant managers questioned, 87 per cent said that labor had not tried to use the committees as a means of encroaching on management's functions; 96 per cent said that labor had not tried to change the committee into a bargaining unit; 74 per cent said that labor had used the meetings in a sincere effort to increase production; and 81 per cent said that worthwhile suggestions from employes had increased. Of the employers who said that the committees had not improved employer-employe relations, the majority were careful to point out that relations were already good before the committees were formed.

The government can advise the formation of such committees, help plants to find workers, assist with training of workers. But the government cannot regulate plant efficiency. In the last analysis that is the responsibility of individual employers.

"One thing we have noticed," says Mr. Little, "is that the firms which are on good terms with their employes haven't come down to Ottawa crying about absenteeism or inability to get men. It is our experience that any company with good employer-employe relations can take reasonable regulations in its stride . . . Many employers come galloping to Ottawa. What do you expect us to do? Do you expect us to stand around with tommy guns in our hands, or send squad cars to round up your employes every morning?"

Maximum plant efficiency will be achieved only when employers get employes to help them run the job. They must go actively after employes' advice and the full use of their experience, instead of trying to run everything from the front office. Men will do far better work when they know they have some part in administering the work before them.

"Make your men your teammates," concluded Mr. Little, "and nothing on God's green earth can stop the people of Canada from achieving a production that will amaze us."

Pay Increase Ordered

WLB Edict Boosts Phelps Dodge Scale

The War Labor Board yesterday ordered a wage increase of 50 cents a day, and a $4.90 daily minimum, for employes of the Phelps Dodge Corporation, and for the first time unanimously voted a maintenance of union membership clause.

The board also ordered a vacation of 48 hours at straight time for employes with a year or more of service.

The company operates copper mines and smelters in Arizona.

The case was decided by a six-man board with industry, labor and the public equally represented. George H. Mead a paperboard manufacturer, who participated in the case, became the third member of the employer group to concur in a maintenance of membership order.

The union maintenance clause provided that employes who are members of one of the unions involved in the case on next July 13, or who joined thereafter, shall remain members of the union during the life of the agreement.

Union Representatives Split

Both A. F. L. and C. I. O. unions were involved in the case, and their representatives on the board split over the wage issue. Thomas Kennedy, nominally the C. I. O. member of the board, wrote a minority opinion saying nothing less than a minimum of $5.10 was justified. Robert J. White, the A. F. L. member, wrote an opinion concurring with the board majority and sharply differing with Kennedy's views. He said the panel report was unanimous, and that Kennedy offered no evidence that its conclusions were arbitrary.

The board said the A. F. L. Metal Trades Unions were bargaining agents in the case for 5390 employes and that the C. I. O. International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter workers was agent for about 700 employes.

Louis S. Cates, president of the Phelps Dodge Corp., later issued a statement saying that the corporation would comply with the directive, but added it would observe the maintenance of membership order "only because of its belief that a refusal to obey might prejudice the country's war effort."

"This corporation has always believed and still believes in the right of an employe to decide for himself not only whether he wishes to become a member of a labor union, but also whether he wishes to remain a member of a union. We adhere to that position," Cates declared.

Board Gets Other Disputes

Secretary of Labor Perkins certified to the War Labor Board yesterday these industrial disputes:

World Bestos Brake Lining Corp., Paterson, N. J., and a C. I. O. textile workers union. Wages and the union shop are in dispute. About 230 are affected.

American Smelting & Refining Co. (Globe plant) Denver, Colo., and the C. I. O. International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. The issues are wages and job classification affecting about 150.

Walgreen Drug Stores, Chicago, and the C. I. O. International Longshoremen and Warehousemen and the Chicago Drug Workers Association (independent). A dispute has arisen over the recognition of an exclusive bargaining agent. About 350 are affected.

Chemicals on Hand Sufficient for Trees

The shortage of vital chemicals due to the war will not affect the spraying of Washington's trees this year, it was stated yesterday by the trees and parking division of the District government.

Arsenate of lead, a deadly poison, is the chemical used and the supply remaining from last year plus fresh stocks received before the shortage developed, will be sufficient to cope with the District caterpillar problem for this year, at least.

The reason for the surplus stock from the previous year, it was said, is that the caterpillar scourge has been under control for the past three years, lessening each year the need for the poison. The Southwest and Northwest sections of the city are the most heavily affected, it was said, with elms and sycamores the chief sufferers.

Issue of Speed of War Output Not Likely To Win G. O. P. Many Votes in Campaign

Princeton, N. J., June 26.—Would the war effort go ahead faster if the Republicans had greater power in Washington?

With elections approaching in November, many a Republican candidate is hoping to use the argument that the war production would be speeded up if the G. O. P. were in the saddle.

Judging by the results of a study of the public's views on this issue, the Republicans have not built a good case for themselves on this particular score.

The survey, conducted by the Institute in all the 48 States, shows that those voters who think the war effort would go faster under the G. O. P. are more than offset by those who think it would actually be slowed. A sizable number say it would make no difference or are undecided about the matter.

To discover how important an issue war production is likely to be in winning votes, this question was put to the public in the survey:

"Which way do you think the Government's war effort would go ahead faster—if the Republicans had more power in Washington, or if the Republicans had less power in Washington?"

Faster if G. O. P. had more power	21%
Faster if G. O. P. had less power	31
Would make no difference	27
Undecided	21

More than four months remain before election day, but it seems clear at the present that if the Republicans are counting on making an issue out of charges of inefficient New Deal administration of the war effort, they will have anything but a sure-fire issue.

The G. O. P. used the argument that "we can do it better than the Democrats" in both the 1936 and 1940 Presidential campaigns. While polls showed considerable public dissatisfaction with the New Deal on domestic issues in 1940, the war in Europe was largely responsible for Mr. Roosevelt's reelection.

Current poll results on the political situation emphasize clearly that the Republicans still lack an issue which will win for them a majority of the independent vote so necessary to victory.

If Congressional elections were held tody, the Democrats would gain about 10 seats in the House, the most recent Institute poll shows.

Aesthetes Agree Statues Should Stay—Unless They're Needed

Washington has a flock of statuary which would look better whittled down so as to fit into the working end of a cannon pointed at Messrs. Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini, but getting persons here competent to judge to point out the offending pieces is comparable to having teeth pulled.

All of it, according to various personages at art galleries and art schools throughout Washington, has some value—historical, if not aesthetic.

They said so yesterday when queried on their reaction to the War Production Board's announcement Thursday that famed Statuary here and elsewhere may be used to feed the war industries if the Nation's metal drive ever lags far enough behind to make it necessary.

Most frequently singled out for oblivion, "but don't quote me, please," was the equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson in Lafayette Park which a number of authorities agreed is pretty terrible.

But in the next breath they recalled that when it was erected in 1853 it was the first equestrian statue in the United States. This fact alone, they said, makes it worthy of preservation.

On three separate occasions, a reporter had quoted to him a proverb which sounded like Latin and which every one concerned was good enough to translate. "Concerning taste, there is no dispute," it ran, and one source attributed it to an unidentified lady who gave forth with the bit of wisdom just after she kissed a cow.

Other than Jackson's statue, nobody was willing to point out pet hates in the field of local statues and monuments.

"What I dislike, someone else may find very significant," appeared to be the general attitude. They didn't want to offend anyone—after all, some of the worst statuary, they said, represents years of work on the part of some sculptor. And even the most horrible pieces, it was pointed out, were admired in their time.

No one took very seriously the possibility that the statuary will be melted down into bullets or other war material.

Joseph Goss Cowell, art director of the National Art School, put it very nicely:

"I don't think it will ever be done. But if the time ever comes when the necessity exists, then the destruction of this statuary will be relatively inconsiderable compared to the things we've got to preserve."

Chest Maps United Drive

Washingtonians yesterday were asked by the Community Chest to hold themselves "in readiness for the greatest appeal to generosity for human welfare" the city has ever seen.

The appeal will be the united effort of several organizations, including the Community Chest and the U. S. O. to establish a community war fund.

An introduction to the appeal by Director Herbert L. Willitt, jr., points out that during the World War era the Community Chest plan brought "order out of chaos," unifying appeals that spread themselves into tag days, benefits and drives, "which were burdening the lives and pocketbooks of private citizens."

Washington, like several other cities, has reached the point where something must be done, it was stated, "to conserve the time and energy of volunteers, to avoid overlapping and duplication, to eliminate waste in costs of conducting separate campaigns, to raise more money for human needs."

Among objects for which more money is needed in Washington were listed problems growing out of increased juvenile delinquency, increased number of "transients," family problems of service men, and recreational lags.

Birth of a Glider

A glider pilot, speeding through enemy skies with troops to seize an airport or munitions to bolster a ground force, has to know his stuff. Lives of American soldiers and the outcome of vital missions depend upon his skill. He must take a transport or cargo glider off the ground smoothly behind a towing airplane, keep it in its place in an aerial train through all kinds of weather, and cut loose and land in "dead stick" fashion at any designated objective. Learning to do this takes practice in training gliders designed for high speed and equipped with the same kind of flying instruments and two-way radio the pilot will use in combat.

Training gliders to fill this bill are now coming off the production line for the

Glider Pilots' Insignia

Army Air Forces. One of the factories engaged exclusively in manufacturing them is the Laister-Kauffmann plant at St. Louis, Mo., where the accompanying pictures were made. It is turning out the TG 4-A, a two-place glider which weighs less than 500 pounds and takes a minimum of scarce materials to build. Jack Laister, the designer, is famous in amateur glider and soaring circles.

The training gliders produced at this and other plants will be used in the glider training program which the Army Air Forces opened recently to all applicants between 18 and 36 who can meet the physical and mental requirements. Enlistments for this training are being accepted at Army recruiting stations throughout the country. Selected graduates of the glider schools will be appointed second lieutenants in the Army of the United States. Others will be given staff sergeant ratings with flight pay. All graduates will be authorized to wear the glider pilot wings insignia.

Here's How to Spend the Weekend

Gasoline and tire rationing may keep you from the beach, but there's no reason why anyone should be forced to forgo the pleasures of a sunny resort simply because he can't get there.

If it's swimming you want, Washington has a host of outdoor pools, and if you like swimming without the sun, then there are some indoor bathing spots, too. All are reachable by bus or streetcar. And some of the outdoor pools will even throw in a sandy beach if you need that background to complete the picture.

And if it's just a general, all-day outing that's desired, try Rock Creek Park. If you've never really "done" the park, you'll be amazed at what it offers.

All of which is by way of prelude to introducing you to three Montgomery County, Maryland, misses who set out with a photographer for The Post to show how a day at the beach can be brought virtually to your back yard.

Housewife May Save Time and Energy By Orderly Procedure in Buying

This is one of a series telling how women can adjust household activities to war-time living conditions

By Martha Ellyn

"I NEVER have time to do all of the things I should do, let alone the things I want to do." So complains the average woman.

Martha Ellyn

Did you ever notice that the woman who accomplishes the most worthwhile things has exactly the same number of hours in a day as the one who constantly sighs and says, "I just don't have the time."

The woman who has time for Red Cross, First Aid, war relief activities, church, running a home and entertaining friends, is also the one to arrive at a social function first, looking serene, attractive and happy, while Mrs. Never-Have-Time arrives in a dither.

An outstanding example of a woman who accomplishes many worthwhile things and yet meets the many social demands of her life in a gracious manner is Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the Federal Security Administrator and recently appointed Chairman, Man Power Commission.

Does Many Things

Mrs. McNutt is a tireless worker in all civic and war-time activities. Be it China Relief, Share-Your-Car, National Symphony Orchestra (she is a talented musician), education, Good-Will Industry, Community Chest, USO, Mrs. McNutt is always one of the prime movers.

With increasing demands on time, increasing difficulty in deliveries and transportation, Mrs. Average Homemaker is obliged to have a plan of operation. How does Mrs. McNutt meet this problem? By a planned program.

"Eliminate the unnecessary and do the important things first," advises Mrs. McNutt. In effect that means clear out the bric-a-brac cluttering our lives. "I am a list-maker," continued Mrs. McNutt. "I jot down things as they come to my mind and then each morning I have a clearance and plan the necessary things I must do. In the case of shopping, I always make a list. I realize that the merchants have a definite problem serving the increased shoppers in Washington, I make up my mind before I go shopping what I want to buy so that I will not take unnecessary time of the clerks and may cut my shopping hours to the minimum."

Shopping Trip

Makes a list of items to be purchased. Takes envelope bag which unfolds to shopping bag size with her. Leaves her home at the Shoreham Hotel by taxi or bus. Arrives store with assembled list so that she can buy things by floor. If she is buying a wedding present of silver, or gloves, veiling and buttons, she buys these all on the first floor before going on to other floors to buy a dress, shoes, blackout curtains and household wares.

Hose being on the list, Mrs. McNutt acquaints herself with the information about the new rayon hose so that she can buy by denier and not by the thread. Since silk and nylon are not plentiful she does not take her time hunting for them.

Going to third floor for a dress she tells the clerk the type of dress, the size and the approximate price she wants to pay. If the dress does not need alterations, it is taken home in her shopping bag to save delivery service.

Fills Her Bag

Blackout curtains, sold on the seventh floor, also go into her shopping bag. Shopping completed, Mrs. McNutt leaves the stores with all "carriable" purchases in her bag so that she can conserve tires, gasoline and man power.

Shopping time cut to a minimum, Mrs. McNutt arrives home with full shopping bag, not "worn to a frazzle" but with conserved energy to do the other things on her planned program.

Woman Whose Husband and Father Are Lawyers Defends Alimony as Legal Discipline Judiciously Imposed Upon Men of Irresponsible Temperament

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Both my father and my husband are lawyers and while they do not specialize in divorce cases, they and their firms do handle them. We often discuss alimony (hateful word!) as a matter of general or specific interest. Having grown old in his practice, and having seen much of life, my father sometimes expresses the thought that women, in their rush for "independence," are going to stampede, with the result that many of their laboriously won, socially protective legal gains will be trampled underfoot, to the great detriment and distress of the less self-reliant type of women.

In the light of this background, I cannot feel that alimony, legislatively indorsed and specifically awarded by court, is to be construed as a vindictive penalty imposed upon men by greedily scheming females,—which is the view your correspondent of June 19, who signs herself "Independent Woman," seems to hold. It is apparent that she believes she has arrived at her view objectively, since she bases her deduction on certain "case histories" that have come under her observation. Yet the fact is that she does have a bias,—a bias which is not entertained by either the legal fraternity or the courts of this country.

It goes without saying that divorce and all its by-products,—alimony included,—are bitter fruits to taste, whether by husband, wife or child, for any reason. Yet surely we must agree that the enlightened men and women who pioneer indefatigably to procure just and equitable legislation for all citizens of this democratic country, and the conscientious and disinterested jurists who hear and rule upon divorce cases, are animated only by searching considerations of justice and merit,—when stipulating alimony as a divorcee's due, in certain clearly defined conditions.

Bearing in mind, then, that alimony is authorized by law in every instance,—as a form of redress to which the woman is justly entitled,—we cannot take at face value your correspondent's scathing appraisal of the provision as "an insult received with deadly regularity the first of each month: a humiliating reminder of the price a man is willing to pay for his freedom from a wife who was a failure." This is still more or less a man's world; and men's allegiance to each other is one of the better kown facts of life. Thus, it isn't likely that the judge and juries (mostly male) who pronounce "man-made justice" in divorce cases would be so outrageously prejudiced in favor of women as to uphold them in dishonest practice.

I consider it more probable that those dauntless pioneers in the social field who brought about our present laws governing divorce and alimony; and that those judges who study the evidence in every case, to determine how justice may be done, have embraced the conclusion that the only way to bring some men to terms with responsibility is by way of their pocketbooks. I suggest that an alimony remittance, paid "with deadly regularity the first of each month," is a continuous reminder to the man that he broke faith with an irrevocably binding obligation; and that the shame of the "bought freedom" arrangement dishonors him and not his former wife.

WOMAN READER.

Gives Scriptural View Of Marriage and Divorce

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Divorcement was legalized on the theory that it would implement mankind's pursuit of happiness,—by enabling married couples manifestly unsuited to each other to obtain release from a bad bargain.

Actually, however, the very existence on the statute books of "liberal" divorce laws,—such as "Maria M.," your correspondent of June 19 advocates,—is the strongest guarantee of mistaken marriages. Nothing is more conducive of misery in marriage than hasty, ill-considered unions, snatched in the knowledge that freedom may be regained if so desired.

Only when both parties enter marriage with the sober realization that they are taking each other "for better or for worse, until death do us part," and with the sincere purpose of making every personal sacrifice and concession necessary for the permanent success of the union—only then has the marriage a chance to make good, and the participants a chance to find happiness with each other. The very nature of the contract requires each to voluntarily surrender his individualistic views and ways, in the interests of that common undertaking upon which they are embarked. Only the sacrificial spirit defined in the familiar saying, "Bear and forbear," can guarantee success. And the exit marked "Liberal Divorce" was not designed to foster that spirit. Furthermore, the person who has negligent recourse to easy divorce will never find happiness anywhere.

It is idle, however, in any case, to argue the import of divorce, or the man-made laws which make it possible. Whatever views society or the state may take in the matter, a marriage once made can never be really set aside. The laws of Nevada (from whence "Maria" comes) or the laws of any other State can no more make a man unrelated to his wife than they could make him unrelated to his sister. The civil contract may be revoked; but the relationship created by moral law, which decrees that they who marry become "one flesh," can never be recalled.

See Matthew, xix:4, 8—"Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother and shall cleave to his wife; and they twain shall be one flesh? Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." And see also Luke, xvi:18—"Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband commiteth adultery." Look, too, to Corinthians, vii:7, 10, 11—"Unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband; but and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife."

In the final assessment, we are judged by the laws of God; not by the laws of Nevada or the District of Columbia. Since God's laws are meant to procure our happiness, and have been defined for us by One who knows in what man's happiness consists, it behooves us to realize that happiness can never be promoted by man-made laws which ignore or contradict the laws of God. Having long been a reader of your excellent column, Miss Haworth, and having admired the judgment you display in handling the many urgent problems presented to you for solution, I write in the hope of preventing that column from giving a one-sided picture of the question of divorce. Especially when the side that has been omitted is the side of God.

We Americans pride ourselves on being, as we think, preservers of Christian civilization: protecting it against forces which would destroy it. But we had best not parade under false banners. Along with Maria M., "I hope that all fair-minded women in Washington will get behind you in a crusade for justice in human relationships." However, it is important that we first make sure we know what brand of justice we are crusading for. Sincerely,

A. J. M.

Wedding Attire

QUERY—What is the proper attire for both the guests and the members of the bridal party at a 5 o'clock church wedding?

ANSWER—An afternoon church wedding during warm weather indicates summer formal attire for men and women in the bridal party. Guests at a formal daytime wedding wear informal afternoon clothes. Here is the proper attire at a glance.

Jane Driscoll

BRIDE—Wedding gown with train and veil. White or pale tints. Gloves, unless long sleeves are worn. Matching sandals. Bouquet or prayer book. Real jewelry in good taste.

BRIDESMAIDS—Dresses of formal length. Gloves optional. Matching or contrasting colors and accessories. Shower or stylized bouquets. Maid of honor may be in contrasting color.

GROOM, USHERS, BRIDE'S FATHER—Cutaways always correct for daytime, spring or summer. For warm weather, only, white linen or white gabardine suit (or a similar fabric in white), or a dark blue or gray coat with white or gray flannel trousers; white shirt. White shoes or combination of white and black or white and brown when white suits or white trousers are worn. White socks preferable. Four-in-hand tie and boutonniere. With cutaway, groom wears boutonniere of lily of the valley, and ushers carnations.

MOTHERS AND WOMEN GUESTS—Mothers' dresses of formal length — guests of street length. Hats and accessories to match or contrast.

Silk Problem

QUERY—Since the fourth wedding anniversary is "silk," and we are boycotting this fabric, what would you suggest as a substitute?

ANSWER—As has been stated before in this column, there is no need for boycotting any Japanese silk or product thereof you may find available in this country.

Any silk merchandise found here was bought and paid for before importation was halted. It is perfectly American to use up stock on hand so it will not be a total loss to merchants.

If you still have your scruples, however, there is available real Chinese silk by the yard and miscellaneous pieces made of Chinese silk. It would be preferable to scout about for something silk from China, rather than change the anniversary gift.

Soap-and-Water Hint

Hollywood, Calif. — Geraldine Fitzgerald has a suggestion for the woman who swears she cannot use soap and water on her face. "Soap and water are absolutely necessary to thoroughly cleanse your skin. But if a person feels that it makes her skin too dry or leathery in texture, apply a good coating of vaseline to the face and neck before washing," Miss Fitzgerald advises.

Women to Keep Home Trucks Rolling

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT is going to happen when all the able-bodied men who drive the trucks and buses have left for the Army? After seeing how the Motor Transport Service for the AWVS functions, I am convinced that the women can take over—and that there will be an end to those slighting remarks about women drivers.

I asked Mrs. Margaret Furst, commander of the Transport Service for Greater New York, whether she believed women capable of handling such heavy vehicles, and her succinct reply to that was: "And how." She ought to know. She took a course in truck driving as part of her training.

Just to give you an idea of what women can do, I want to tell you about this branch of the American Women's Voluntary Services. There are about 1000 women in this particular unit and the ones I saw are outstandingly healthy specimens. If they were not, they could not pass the rigid physical examination which is one of the requirements.

Healthy Specimens

There are no height-weight rules but a good percentage seem to be well over the average 5 feet 4.

The vehicles include ambulances, mobile kitchens—"chuck wagons" out West—and private cars. The commander says it's not a question of strength so much as good steady nerves. One of her favorite tests for drivers is to have them take a mobile kitchen, which consists of a truck and trailer and is between 40 and 50 feet long, and weave in and out between the pillars supporting the elevated railways.

Another difficult test is blackout driving—no street lights, no headlights, not even a moon. You have to be able to drive a quarter of a mile in pitch black. You might be called on to drive much farther in an emergency. Unless you had been getting your share of vitamin A regularly, your eyes would not adapt readily to the dark and you would flunk.

Convoy Driving

The drivers with their own cars are at the disposal of various Government agencies. Their special trick is convoy driving. While driving you may have to find your way around by compass, read road maps at a glance, and, if necessary, change tires and take care of minor motor troubles. None of it sounds like a pleasure jaunt.

New Diplomatic Hostess Has Press Conference

Lady Dixon, Wife of Australian Envoy Intrigued—and Baffled—By Speed Here

By Carolyn Bell

She has traveled the length and breadth of Australia but has never seen a kangaroo—except in a zoo! And that from the delightful wife of the new Australian Minister, Lady Dixon, who arrived here only several days ago with her four children, after a month-long trip aboard a United States troop ship.

Yesterday Lady Dixon received the ladies of the press in the pleasant Australian Legation with its British-country-house atmosphere of cool green walls and chintz covered divans. Although the wife of Sir Owen Dixon said with a laugh, "I've always dodged press conferences before," she was not only ready and willing to answer all questions but quite able. Queried on a variety of subjects—from Koala bears to American soldiers—Lady Dixon had answers for all.

"Washington is the most beautiful city I have ever seen," she said with a note of sincerity. "Such trees." It is her first trip to this country and on the train across the continent she was impressed by the vast "empty" spaces. Although her country is noted for it large, unpopulated sections, she somehow was not prepared for the desert areas in America. With all large trunks in Australia "frozen," the five Dixons had something of a luggage problem on their hands, but managed to get here with most of their belongings.

On board ship, they didn't sight land between Sydney and San Francisco, except for an island or two—they were subjects of wartime regulations, including blackouts and the lack of fresh water for bathing. The youngsters seemed to enjoy the trip and Lady Dixon added laughingly that "Australia's debt to America was largely increased by the children's candy bill." The Dixons have two sons—Franklin, aged 20, and Edward, aged 18. Their older daughter, Betty, who, is 13, made her appearance yesterday morning in what her mother termed her first American frock.

Daughter in School With MacArthur Child

The youngest daughter, Ann—who has just passed her eighth birthday—could probably tell you a lot about Arthur MacArthur, young son of General and Mrs. MacArthur, for the youngsters went to the same school. Lady Dixon said shortly after the arrival in school of young MacArthur there was a great hulabaloo in a larger school next door. All the students yelled, "Please give us a look at Arthur." And they were rewarded with a glimpse.

Sir Owen Dixon, who left Australia the same day as his family but by air, was formerly one of the five judges of the High Court of Australia—which is comparable to our Supreme Court. However, because of his knowledge of international law, the wool industry and the shipping business he was drafted into war work. He was chairman of the Shipping Control Board of Australia as well as the Allied Shipping Control Board, before being named as Minister to this country.

According to Lady Dixon you can find any woman in Australia—no matter what her station or financial position—doing the most menial housework in the morning and elegantly turned out in the afternoon ready for war work or entertaining. There is virtually no domestic help now that the girls have been absorbed by the munitions factories; Land Army; Waafs or clothing factories.

Rationing There Serious Business

We in America don't know what the word rationing means if we are to judge by other countries. In Australia a person is allowed 4 gallons of petrol (pardon, gasoline) a month—not a week. There is an acute paper shortage and and most people take their purchases unwrapped or carry them in string bags. Tea is strictly rationed, as are clothes and shoe polish, bluing and matches are almost impossible to buy. If you live within a mile of your butcher you go to get your meat—or you go hungry.

Lady Dixon said that she could quite truthfully say that the United States troops had created an excellent impression in Australia. "And their uniforms," she laughed, "are the envy of all the Aussies." There has been some talk of redesigning the Australian uniform but Lady Dixon agreed that it would be a shame to do away with the rakish hat—a badge of honor, the world over. Many of the cafes are trying to prepare American food to please the Yankee soldiers, she said.

Lady Dixon was president of the Children's Hospital in Melbourne and has been doing a good bit of war work, but mostly "behind the scenes," she insisted. In the last war she was a member of the V. A. D. She has great enthusiasm for what is called the "Flying Doctors Service"—which is such a boon to isolated communities.

She is intrigued with the speed with which things are accomplished in this country and as a case in point told of a message she was to deliver in Washington. A nurse in Australia, who had been in the Philippines during the siege, asked her to tell another nurse's family in Washington that their relative was safe and well when last seen. Lady Dixon called to give this encouraging news, only to find that the nurse in question had arrived in Washington, several days before!

Mrs. Wade Guest of Honor At Luncheon

Even though farewells may not be in order—since, as her friends hope, Mrs. Leigh Wade may be staying on in Washington indefinitely—the luncheon given in her honor yesterday was a gala affair. Smartly turned out in a canary yellow suit and matching bow, Mrs. Wade chatted with first one group and then another telling the latest news of her husband, Col. Wade, who is now in Florida.

"Isn't this the loveliest view in Washington," said Mrs. Scott Lucas, wife of Senator Lucas. And indeed from the veranda of the Army and Navy Country Club a great deal of Washington can be seen. Hostess for the occasion was Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer, who was smartly turned out in chalk-white with a wide-brimmed white hat. Drinks were served in the long room adjoining the porch and later guests assembled for luncheon.

"Don't you just love crabs?" said Mrs. James J. Hughes, who hails from Delaware and likes her sea food. The wife of Senator Hughes will be off shortly for her summer home in Rehoboth where she plans to spend the summer. Mrs. Boncesco reports that she is now in the interior decorating business and loves every minute of it. Yesterday she wore a green and white polka dot frock. She chatted at great length with Mme. Chautemps.

"Now that every other celebrity has come to Washington, when is General de Gaulle coming?" someone asked of diminutive Mme. Tixier, wife of the Free French representative here. Mme. Tixier, chic in a red hat, replied "I only wish he would, for I have never met him myself." Mrs. Claude Pepper, smart in dark blue, discussed steak roasts with Mrs. Vernon Lowrey, who wore a tomato red linen coat over her printed frock. Mrs. George Belic was attractively turned out in a pale blue suit and pink and white striped blouse with matching hat.

Mrs. Walter G. Layman, whose husband is on "foreign duty," discussed China with another Army wife. Mrs. Molekamp, wife of the Dutch Minister, was there, as were Mrs. Al Ryan, Mrs. Charles McEnerney, Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mrs. Laurence Arnold, Mrs. Copeland Jones, and dozens of others.

Her bouquet was of gardenias and bouvardia.

Miss Betty Ann Hilliard, of Houston, Texas, was the maid of honor. Her gown of green marquisette was fashioned with bishop sleeves and a full skirt, and her cascade bouquet was of pink gladioli. Bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Ohler, Miss Mary Miller, and Miss Lois Barlow. Their frocks, patterned like that of the maid of honor were yellow, and their bouquets were lavendar gladioli.

It was more or less of a "President Polk alumnae" party, for many of the guests were members of a group that took a trip to Boston on that liner. Included among them were Mr. and Mrs. John Bouroughs, Mr. and Mrs. Max Truitt, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. David Scoll.

On Wednesday afternoon the Piersons will again entertain at an afternoon reception. This one will be in honor of Francisco Alves Santos and Senhora de Santos. Senhor Santos, who is head of the Bank of Brazil, is his country's representative here at the Inter-American Economic Conference.

Barbara Terhune Is Bride Of Lieut. R. L. Milner

From Pensacola, Fla., has come word of the marriage there yesterday of Miss Barbara Wright Terhune of Arlington to Lieut. (j. g.) Raymond Leslie Milner, U. S. N. R. She is the daughter of Lieut. Comdr. Howard H. Terbune, U. S. N. R. and the late Mrs. Terhune and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Milner of Rochdale, Mass.

Scene of the ceremony was the Christ Episcopal Church where the Rev. David Rose read the service at 8:30. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore traditional white satin, the train of which was edged in lace and a veil of tulle held with a cap of orange blossoms. Her bouquet of white orchids covered a white satin prayer book.

Maid of honor was Miss Emily Morrison of Pensacola, wearing a pale blue marquisette over taffeta and a coronet of yellow roses matching her arm bouquet. Attired in identical frocks and carrying yellow daisies were the bridesmaids, Miss Exine Addison of Jasper, Ala.; Miss Ruby Durrett of Bessemer, Ala.; Miss Belle Yonge and Miss Mildred McIntosh of Pensacola. Fay Brown was the junior bridesmaid.

Lieut. Howard Liebmann was the best man and ushers were Ensign H. W. Taber, Ensign J. C. Kaynor, Ensign R. L. Meierhenry and Ensign P. W. McDaniel.

Following the ceremony a reception was held with the bride's father, stepmother and grandparents receiving with the wedding party. After a wedding trip the couple will make their home in Jacksonville where the bridegroom is an instructor at the Naval Air Station.

The bride attended the University of Alabama, where she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority, and Lieutenant Milner was graduated from Worcester Polytechnic Institute in Worcester, Mass.

Notables Attend Preview for Russian Benefit

Many Washington notables were on the list of those who were planning to attend the opening of the Russian War Relief art exhibition at the Chamber of Commerce building last evening. The preview marked the showing of paintings by the famous American artist, William Gropper and a group of Russian-born painters. The exhibition is being held for the benefit of Russian War Relief, and proceeds will go toward buying medical supplies in this country for Russia.

Among those who came to inspect the paintings and to see Anna Sokolow, Russian dancer, give a dance recital in the patio of the building, were: Mme. Women's National Press Club Installs Officers at Inaugural Luncheon Tuesday

IT'S A special event when busy Washington newspaper scribes cover up their typewriters and take time out for a cohorts' celebration. But come 1 o'clock Tuesday you'll find these nonstop workers at the Women's National Press Club's inaugural luncheon at the Willard Hotel.

At that time Christine Sadler, Post reporter, newly elected president of the club, will take over the gavel from Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, retiring president. In keeping with wartime simplicity and good taste, the officers' initiation ceremonies will be brief and informal but traditional. Focus of attention will be on the transferring of the Cora Rigby silver bowl from the outgoing to the incoming president.

Clifford Prevost, president of the National Press Club, will represent that organization. Mrs. Prevost also will be on hand as will Louis Wood, president of the Gridiron Club, and Mrs. Wood.

Others representing the journalistic organizations, who are invited, are Douglas Cornell, president of the White House Correspondents

Betty Hynes Lily Lykes Shepard Ned Brunson Harris

Association, with Mrs. Cornell; Miss Alice Eversman, president of the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington; Barnet Nover, president of the Overseas Writers, with Mrs. Nover.

Also Dewey Fleming, representing Standing Committee Correspondents, and Mrs. Fleming, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sommerville. Not only will Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post, be on hand to witness the initiation ceremonies but so will many Post executives.

Officers-elect, who will be installed at that time besides Christine Sadler, the president, are: Betty Hynes, first vice president; Lily Lykes Shepard, second vice president; Estelle Welsh, corresponding secretary; Virginia Mannon, recording secretary; Katherine McKiever, treasurer. On the board of governors are Mrs. Tufty, Anne Wheaton and Katherine Lewis.

Mrs. Ned Brunson Harris is chairman of the luncheon committee. Assisting her are Mary Haworth and Beth Campbell. Members of the hospitality committee include Virginia Price, chairman; Carolyn Bell Hughes, Jackie Martin and Gladys Montgomery.

Estelle Welsh (telephone District 1118) is taking reservations for members and their guests.

Did You Know . . . ?

THAT—King Peter II of Yugoslavia asked that Sydney, the Mayflower's popular orchestra leader, be presented to him before taking leave of the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington's festive reception Thursday afternoon? This was the youthful King's gracious gesture to the musican for playing the Yugoslavian national anthem so ably and feelingly. Just as the King entered the ballroom where the party was being given in his honor, Sydney's Orchestra started playing the Yugoslav national anthem.

A few days before the party, Sydney called at the Yugoslav Legation to obtain and practice the music for the occasion. No doubt, Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Minister, who is an accomplished pianist, taught him the correct rendition of the national anthem.

And the playing of the anthem so moved the youthful monarch that he wanted to thank Sydney personally.

Kamp Kahlert Takes Advantage Of U. S. Transportation Ruling

With more demands than ever being made upon camps, particularly those close to cities which enable working parents to place their children in healthful environments, the Defense Health Welfare Services considered children's camps of sufficient importance to issue permits for transporting campers. Under the ruling of the ODT, buses may carry "persons under 18 years of age going to and from summer camps under supervision."

Chartered buses will transport more than 90 "bitzies" and teenage girls Monday, June 29, to the Y. W. C. A. Kamp Kahlert, located on the West River near Sudley, Md. The camp will open for its seventeenth season and will be supervised by Miss M. Florence Dunlap, director for many years.

Miss Louise Hatch, educational counselor in the public schools of Kansas City, Mo, will be program director at Kamp Kahlert again this year. She is a graduate of Morningside College, where she received her B. A. and of Columbia University, where she received her M. A. degree. Miss Hatch has been at Kamp Kahlert for a number of years and previously was junior camp director at Camp Brewston, Omaha, Nebr., and was at one time counselor and administrative director at Camp Okoboji in Iowa. Miss Mary Catherine Richardson, a teacher at Anacostia High School, will be back in the capacity of assistant program director.

Training Citizens

Kamp Kahlert has always laid emphasis on the child's needs—the opportunity to practice democracy in a community of the child's own age is considered valuable and the staff and the campers, therefore, work together in planning and carrying out the camp's program.

Water sports are especially popular at the Y. W. C. A. camp since the sheltered West River, an arm of the Chesapeake Bay, makes it possible for every girl to learn how to take care of herself both in and on the water. The camp is equipped with 16 rowboats, 5 canoes and a sailboat. Activities of the waterfront are at all times under supervision of registered Red Cross life-saving instructors, with Miss Elizabeth Blumenthal, American University graduate, in charge. Assisting her will be Miss Chlotilde Jarman, graduate of Farmville State Teachers College and physical education instructress; the Misses Anne Davis, Fairlee Lemly, June Martyn and Dorothy Snyder.

Sailing will be handled by a local experienced boatman familiar with the bay water.

Dr. Byrd Will Address Sigma Kappa

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will address members of Sigma Kappa Sorority at the international convention in Cleveland next Tuesday, June 30. His subject will be "The Universities in a War-Time World." He will speak at the luncheon meeting for Panhellenic delegates.

Miss Elizabeth Stratman, president of the undergraduate chapter at the University of Maryland, has been chosen a delegate to the convention, as well as Miss Dorothy Farwell, president of the George Washington University chapter. The local alumnae chapter will be represented by Mrs. Harlow C. McCord and Mrs. Barton W. Richwine.

Senate Reveals 3.69-Gal. Gas Ration Plan

out the area on July 9, 10 and 11.

Assuming the book holder's car gives him 15 miles to the gallon, the "A" book will permit 2880 miles of driving a year. Of this mileage, OPA regards 1080 miles as available for attending church, driving children to school, shopping, etc.

Therefore, the first requirement for obtaining additional gasoline rations is for the motorist to show that his "occupational driving"—to and from work, for example—is in excess of 1800 miles a year.

In its book of instructions to registrars and local rationing boards, OPA stipulates that before receiving supplemental rations the motorist must show that he belongs to a "car-sharing club" in which three or more persons join in driving to and from their jobs. If the autoist does not belong to such a club, he must demonstrate that his car will not carry as many as three persons, and that he is carrying as many as he can, or that his working hours make it impossible for him to form such a club and no other means of transportation are available.

Registrars will issue only the basic "A" books for autoists and the basic "D" books for motorcyclists. Supplemental books, "B" and "C," as well as books for commercial and other special classes of gasoline consumers, will be issued by local rationing boards. Applications for the books may be made to the boards beginning July 9, either in person or by mail.

Who May Get "B" Books

Applicants who have met or have explained satisfactorily their failure to meet the car-sharing requirements will be eligible for a "B" book if their "occupational driving" exceeds 150 miles a month (18000 miles divided by 12). The "B" book contains 16 coupons, each good for 4 gallons and to last three months, and would provide additional monthly "occupational" driving of 320 miles at 15 miles to the gallon.

If the motorist's needs are less than 470 miles a month, but more than 150 miles, his "B" book may be "tailored" to fit his driving by requiring the holder to make it last more than three months.

Applicants for the "C" book must not only be able to meet all the requirements of the "B" book, but, said OPA, their auto use "must be recognized as essential to the war effort and to the public welfare." Such services would include medical care, public utilities maintenance, carrying farm labor, giving religious comfort or assistance and making official trips on Government business.

96 Coupons in "C" Books

The "C" book will contain 96 4-gallon coupons; will be good for three months, but may also be "tailored" to fit particular driving needs. If necessary, more than one "C" book may be issued.

Two types of "S-1" books will be issued for trucks, taxis, ambulances and Government vehicles. The "S-1" book will have 96 coupons, good for five gallons each, and "S-2" books will have 384 coupons of the same value.

Additional "D" books, with coupons worth 1.5 gallons, will be issued motorcycle operators entitled to additional rations.

"E" and "R" books will be issued nonhighway users of gasoline, i. e., owners of inboard and outboard motorboats, farm machinery, gasoline engines, cleaners and dyers.

Dealers Must Register

Gasoline dealers and distributors will be required to register with war price and rationing boards. Dealers and intermediate distributors—but not licensed distributors—must report the amount of gasoline in their storage tanks as of the opening for business July 22. They will then receive inventory coupons covering the difference between supply on hand and capacity. Coupons turned in by the consumer must be used to obtain additional gasoline for sale.

Car owners who are away from home on the registration dates were advised by OPA to register at any school site, or, if out of the rationed area, with a local rationing board, but not before July 24.

Korean League Lists War Aims For State Dept.

War aims and activities of the Sino-Korean People's League, composed of four Korean political parties in the Far East, were sent to Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday in 11 points, one asking for a free and independent Korea —the first nation overrun by the Japs.

The points, as disclosed by Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the league, were, in part:

To overthrow Japanese imperialist rule and to establish in Korea a free, independent and democratic republic.

To summon a peoples' assembly which is to frame a constitution and make arrangement for holding a general election; to eliminate the vestiges of old feudal system, detrimental to the future welfare of Korea, and to confiscate the property of all Japanese imperialists.

Contained is a New Deal program—to be glimpsed in the 11 points. One aim, point six, is to institutte an agrarian policy and resdistribute the land among the tenants and farmers, and to reduce working hours and put into force various measures of social security for the benefit of the workers. Political, economic and social equality of the sexes is looked toward, along with freedom of speech, press, assembly and worship. There would be compulsory education, vocational training and social insurance at the expense of the state.

The program was handed the State Department with belief, Haan said, that it might help in the department's shaping of a policy toward Korea. "We need positive help from America, both moral and material aid," Haan stated.

Car Lots Get Order to Turn In Old Rubber

Automobile graveyard owners in the District, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia were ordered by the Office of Price Administration yesterday to turn in "every ounce" of scrap rubber by Tuesday night.

The order came as a tabulation showed Washington's contribution inrough Thursday to the scrap rubber stockpile amounted to approximately three-quarters of a million pounds.

Frank Montgomery, regional chief of the War Production Board's auto graveyard section, said each of the 18 graveyards in Washington, 305 in Maryland, 511 in Virginia and 63 in Delaware "must be scraped of every ounce" of rubber before the salvage campaign ends Tuesday.

'This Is An Order'

"This is not a request," he said. "This is an order and there will be no extension of time." He said letters had been sent to each owner and WPB inspectors were "following up the letters with visits to each establishment."

"And we don't want 50 per cent or 75 per cent of the scrap rubber in the auto graveyards," he added. "We want every bit—a flat 100 per cent. And we mean to guard against any chiseling."

Officials scanned the results of the collection campaign in Washington with varying reactions as to how well the Nation's Capital has done in helping the country to get rubber for its fighting machines.

Four charity agencies, the Salvation Army, the Goodwill Industries, the Volunteers of America and the Self-Help Exchange, reported hauling 55,000 pounds of rubber from shoe shops, police and fire stations, and garages from Tuesday through Thursday. The agencies will continue the collections.

Other developments on the home front's rubber sector included a proposal in the House by Representative Voorhis (Democrat) of California that salvage committees be established in Federal office buildings to ferret out items ranging from doormats to abandoned overshoes.

Chairman Somers (Deocrat) of Uew York meanwhile reported the House Coinage Subcommittee investigating the rubber situation was sending out questionnaires asking scrap dealers, salvagers and others for figures on present rubber stocks.

"The fact that our subcommittee is forced to send out these questionnaires is a sad commentary on the efficiency of those charged with our rubber program," he said.

Hundley Trial In Tire-Selling Case Opens

Opening statements for both sides were heard by a District Court jury yesterday in the trial of Hirma Ben Hundley, Washington tire merchant accused of selling new tires in violation of an OPA rationing order.

Assistant United States Attorney John L. Laskey told the jury that Hundley, whose business headquarters are at 3446 Fourteenth Street Northwest, had sold new tires, as used, to three District companies—the Evening Star Publishing Co., the Diamond Service Co. and the Premier Purchasing Co. He said the tires were known to be new because each one still has its "bead mark—a fine ridge of rubber running around the center where the two halves of the mould came together over the molten rubber in manufacture.

Laskey charged that the tires had been falsely marked "J. W. G.—O. K." to indicate that they had been inspected and approved as having been used for 1000 miles. He said also that 288 tires had been sold to a firm in Philadelphia that was found on investigation to be nonexistent.

Henry I. Quinn, representing Hundley, claimed that Hundley had sold the 288 tires to a man who represented himself as an agent of the Philadelphia firm, and that he was not required to investigate the man's background. He said Hundley, because of limited education, had regarded mistakes in the records as "honest mistakes," and left most business matters to others in the company.

The American Museum of Natural History in New York has sent several expeditions into the jungles of Java and Malaya seeking the skull of a rhinoceros sondaicus, a rare species. With the fall of the Dutch East Indies and the Malay States, the museum feared it would be years, if ever, before such a skull could be added to its collection. Yesterday one was found in the museum's own attic.

Rain Floods Many Cellars, Snarls Traffic

Intermittent showers followed by a downpour last night drenched the city, keeping equipment on the run answering emergency calls.

Traffic was disrupted generally; the sewer and fire departments had steady calls for their equipment to pump out flooded cellars, there were numerous washouts, and all District garage facilities were tied up handling stalled cars.

The Weather Bureau reported .78 inch of rain at 8:30 last night. Temperatures ranged yesterday between a low of 65 degrees at 6:15 a. m. and a high of 80 at 1:10 p. m. Temperatures around 70 degrees were forecast last night.

The Eastern Branch at the Peace Cross at Bladensburg overflowed its banks, flooding the intersection of Bladensburg Road and Defense Highway. Police reported Rock Creek had overflowed in the lower levels.

The American Automobile Association maintained emergency service throughout the night.

Trees and branches were reported down on many streets, and numerous washouts kept police busy rerouting traffic.

One washout was reported in the 4000 block of Beecher Street Northwest, necessitating the closing of that thoroughfare. Another was reported near the wooden Boundary Channel bridge between Lincoln Memorial Bridge and Lee Boulevard. High water blocked the intersection of Hobart and Irving Streets Northwest.

The downpour caused a minor washout of a road repair job on the George Washington Memorial Highway in Virginia.

Short-circuited underground lines on Ninth Street, near D Street Northwest, blew off three manhole covers. The only damage reported was the denting of a fender of a passing motorist. Police blocked off the west side of the street, holding up traffic temporarily.

Flooded cellars in all parts of the city kept Fire and Sewer Department vehicles at a constant pace throughout the night. Trees were reported down in the first block of Bryant Street Northwest.

'34 Escapee Again Gives Police Slip

No trace had been found last night of a 29-year-old robbery and extortion suspect who not only walked out of a Detective Bureau "bullpen" but escaped the so-called "maximum secured" Municipal Center Building as well. The same man escaped from the District Jail in 1934 and was at large for 18 days.

His latest disappearance was accomplished without an identification badge, a feat both the chief of police and the chief of detectives have not been able to perform. In fact, a United States Army provost marshal says no one may enter or leave the building without displaying a badge.

The prisoner, arrested Wednesday in connection with a $150 robbery and also for attempting to extort money form a Catholic priest, was taken to police headquarters in a patrol wagon shortly before 7 p. m. roll call.

There he joined some 16 other prisoners in the third-floor lock-up to wait for the line-up. But when his name was called later he didn't answer. He was nowhere to be found.

Near the bullpen is an elevator which is used to transport prisoners from the basement garage. It is an automatic drive-yourself type with no locks on its doors. Perhaps he went down that. No one knows.

But if he had, it was reasoned, the guard at the garage entrance would not have let him pass without identification badge.

Well, the front door then. . . . He could have walked through the Detective Bureau.

But no, the guards would have stopped him there for sure. Both Federal and District guards are posted at the only door used and all who come or go must show passes.

1934 Escape Still Mystery

Reasoning didn't find the man. Nor has it ever been determined how the same man escaped from the District Jail in April, 1934.

All other entrances to the building are locked after 5 p. m. and even the windows are all locked with keys.

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, police superintendent, ordered a complete investigation which means some policeman probably will go before a trial board for negligence.

In the meantime detectives and the entire force last night were searching for the audacious young escape artist.

Actor From Europe To Aid Russian Benefit

Joseph Bulov, European actor, will appear in connection with a concert tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the National Press Club under the sponsorship of the Washington Icor, organization of Crimean born American citizens, for the benefit of Russian War Relief.

Also included on the program will be music by the Washington Jewish Folk Chorus, under the direction of Mendy Shain, and a speech by Col. Pavel Berezin of the Russian Embassy.

Training Due To Show Results, Officials Believe

The air-raid test to be held for a less than half hour period this morning between 10 o'clock and noon is the second daylight test this month and the third air-raid test, and officials feel that the District has been well trained in following the general instructions.

When the air raid sirens sound all traffic on streets and sidewalks must stop. Everyone must take cover except persons on buses or streetcars, who will stay in their seats. This is the one unrealistic note acknowledged by defense officials—in an actual raid these vehicles also would be evacuated.

Air raid drills will be held in all large buildings. Customers in department stores and visitors to Federal buildings alike will be herded into designated shelters along with the regular personnel. Persons arriving in Union Station from trains during this alarm period will not be permitted to leave during the alarm no matter how urgent their business.

A tour of inspection will be made by chiefs of the various defensive services. John J. Hasley, deputy warden in charge of commercial establishments, will escort Col. C. J. Caphart of OCD training and inspection about the city.

All off-duty firemen are ordered to report to their stations on the first public warning. Only one company will actually participate in the drill, that being the company which regularly proceeds to the White House at the first air-raid alarm.

Chief Air-Raid Warden William J. Mileham will not direct the warden service tomorrow. In his absence from the city, Assistant Warden Max C. Schwartz will report to control center. Schwartz said there will be no simulated incidents during the raid.

Blackout Bill Seeks Property Requisition

The House District Committee will hold hearings Monday on the District of Columbia blackout bill, counterpart of the measure introduced in the Senate on Thursday, Chairman Jennings Randolph announced yesterday.

The bill authorizes the Commissioners to borrow money to finance defense operations, and grants them plenipotentiary powers over private property during the emergency.

The bill is actually an amendment to the blackout-authorizing bill already passed by Congress.

It provides that the local government may borrow an extra million dollars for defense purposes, over and above the million which the city has already been loaned by the Treasury.

It also permits the Commissioners to requisition any private property in the city, if they feel it is necessary for civilian defense, and empowers them to fix a fair price for the property. If the property-owner objected to the price set, he would receive half of it, according to the bill's procedure, and would be forced to seek court action to receive whatever extra compensation he thought justified.

Gen. Grant to Take Over OCD Job Next Week

Brig. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, who has been named director of protective service for the Office of Civilian Defense, is expected to take over duties of his office sometime next week, it was said at OCD yesterday.

General Grant, a grandson of the Civil War leader, is replacing Brig. Gen. L. D. Gasser, who has been given another assignment by the War Department.

In bidding General Gasser goodby, OCD Director James M. Landis yesterday termed him a "veteran of civilian defense in America" and praised his work in setting up the protective services and formulating their training programs.

Detailed instruction on machinery for setting up car sharing clubs, sent to regional OCD directors yesterday, are expected to reach local defense councils early next week. The civilian mobilization divisions will be in charge of club formations, in most instances.

In Washington they will be under the direction of Conrad Van Hyning, who heads civilian mobilization for defense. It was thought yesterday the recently formed "flying squadron" of 1000 volunteers might form mobile units and manage club registrations in the various neighborhoods.

Court Dismisses Negligence Coun Against Doctors

A District Court jury yesterday returned a verdict in favor of three physicians in a damage suit for $10,000 brought by Mrs. Beatrice Kennedy, who charged the doctors with dilatory and negligent medical practice in treating her husband, a Forestry Service employe, who died in 1939.

Mrs. Kennedy had originally included in her suit the Group Health Association, an organization providing low-cost medical services to Government employes, but a directed verdict June 22 exonerated the GHA.

The three defendants, connected with GHA, were Drs. Louis B. Bachrach, Charles J. Albright, and Gerald Long.

The verdict, ending a 10-day trial before Justice Jennings Bailey, upheld the doctor's claim that they had exercised diligence and care in treating an abdominal disorder of the patient, Monte R. Kennedy, who lived in Chevy Chase, Md.

Kennedy's death followed a surgical operation for removal of a gangrenous appendix.

Dick Mansfield Gives a Party for His Buddies

Girl Student, 16, Missing For Four Days

Pretty Joy Heinrichs, 16-year-old Eastern High School honor student who has been missing since Tuesday night, still has not been heard from, her mother, Mrs. Stephen E. Hall of 4445 Alabama Avenue Southeast, said last night.

JOY

Miss Heinrichs, who disappeared from the front porch of her sister's home at 427 Thirteenth Street Northeast at 11 p. m. Tuesday, is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and has dark brown hair and brown eyes. She was wearing a blue and white print dress, anklets, dark brown moccasins, and possibly a dark brown corduroy coat belonging to her sister.

Close inspection of Miss Heinrich's diary revealed no dissatisfaction or desire to leave home, her sister, Mrs. Harry Slagle, said. The missing girl was visiting Mrs. Slagle while her mother was visiting relatives in Iowa.

Because Miss Heinrichs, a junior last year at Eastern, had worked very hard at her studies and at assisting with gasoline and sugar rationing, her sisters fear that she may be suffering from overwork.

Her inerests outside of school have centered around church work, Mrs. Slagle said, and pointed out three books dealing with religious subjects which Miss Heinrichs had borrowed from a public library a few days before her disappearance.

She is believed to have been carrying a billfold with a few dollars and her Social Security number, which she had obtained when she worked for a local department store on Saturdays and after school hours.

Miss Heinrichs was seeking a scholarship to a college, and hence was planning to start summer school at Eastern next week in order to pick up a few credits.

Victory Sidelights

Red Cross Bandage Station Marks Anniversary Today

The second anniversary of the conversion of the old Senator Thomas Walsh mansion, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, into a station for Red Cross production of surgical dressings will be celebrated today at 4 p. m. at a party in the garden of the home. Mrs. Brown Harbold is chairman.

Replying to rumors that blood donations were not needed, the Red Cross Blood Donor Service yesterday declared that there is an increased demand for blood plasma to be furnished to the military forces.

Persons who wish to give blood may call the Red Cross Blood Donor Center at Twenty-third and C Streets Northwest, for an appointment. The telephone number is Republic 8300, extension 212.

15-Minute Bond Sale Period Set Wednesday

Nothing but war savings bonds and stamps may be sold in District stores between noon and 12:15 p. m. Wednesday, the Commissioners ordered yesterday.

In a proclamation designating Tuesday and Wednesday as "War Saving Rally Days" the Commissioners announced a mass meeting to be held Tuesday morning in front of the District Building. Post Square on E Street before the District Building will be roped off all morning because of this meeting. The two-day formal program is the Commissioners' part in the "Retailers for Victory" program.

AWVS Rescue Squad Holds Emergency Test

A "trial emergency" to test the night rescue squad of the American Women's Voluntary Services was staged last night at AWVS headquarters, 2170 Florida Avenue, with Capt. Alice Fowler in charge.

Forty-eight members participated following a 7 o'clock alert sounded through the cascade telephone system. The 16 members who operated two ambulances were detailed to "incidents" on orders from George Strong, chief of the rescue squad. Upon return from "incident duty" they were given fatigue treatment by Mary Parsons and her staff of nurses' aides.

Anita Phipps, president of the Washington Chapter of AWVS, was present as an observer and was enthusiastic in praise of the demonstration—the first of its kind at AWVS headquarters.

Institutional Outlay Bill Clears Senate

District institutions are slated to receive a total of $3,002,610 under the Labor-Federal security appropriation bill passed yesterday by the Senate. The sum is the same as that voted by the House.

In addition to the institutional funds, the bill carries a grant of $25,000 to the Federal Security Agency to be spent on the vocational rehabilitation of disabled District residents.

The institutions receiving the funds are Howard University, $764,000; St. Elizabeths Hospital, $1,418,300; Freedman's Hospital, $654,310, and the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, $166,000.

A District fund of $98,141, included in the second deficiency appropriation and passed by the Senate Thursday, was approved in the House yesterday. Passage of the bill, however, was held up pending further joint conferences on other sections.

Vandals Shatter 3 Store Windows

Police last night warned scout car and motorcycle men to watch all High's ice cream stores, following the breaking of windows in stores at 320 Cedar Street Northwest, 4431 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, and 1800 D Street Northeast.

Union members of the Highland Farms Dairy have been on strike since June 10, protesting against the refusal of the dairy to renew a closed shop agreement.

District Faces Dilemma Over Appeals Court

Unless Congress amends the new Municipal Court act within the next three days, appellants from lower courts, including some in District Court, will have no place to take their cases.

This new dilemma arose yesterday with the announcement that Senator McCarran's sub-committee on the White House judgeship nominations to the two newly-created courts will not hold its initial hearing on confirmation of the names until July 2—one day after the act is to take effect.

The act created the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia—a merger of the old Police and Municipal courts—and the Municipal Court of Appeals, which will hear appeals from the reconstituted lower court.

As of July 1, the United States Court of Appeals will cease reviewing cases other than those from the new Municipal Appellate Court and certain ones from District Court.

Thus, between this Tuesday and the time when the new judges are confirmed by the Senate and the new courts start operating, the United States Court of Appeals will have no jurisdiction in cases from the old Police and Municipal Courts—and there will be no other court in the District to which to shunt them.

The only assurance that there will be no break in the functioning of every phase of the court system is a congressional amendment changing ahead the effective date of the act.

Meanwhile, the District's legal circles viewed the President's long-delayed nominations with approval, though some of the names came as surprises.

Appointments Pleases Wood

Harlan Wood, attorney and co-author of the bill revising the court system, said:

"I am very happy over the appointments, and I am hopeful that the intent and spirit of the bill will be effectively administered. The personnel appointed to the bench seems to be of high caliber, particularly the chief judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals and the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia. They are all estimable gentlemen.

"The new system will undoubtedly aid in relieving congestion now existing in District Court and in the United States Court of Appeals. In District Court, powers are given by the bill to pretrial judges to certify cases which in his judgment are within the jurisdiction of the Municipal Court.'

Paul B. Cromelin, president of the Bar Association of the District, who had been highly recommended to the White House for one of the positions, but was not named, expressed confidence in the new judges and described plans for cooperation between the association and the courts.

Committee Heads Named

"I have already appointed committees of the Bar Association to work with the judges in the promulgation of the new rules," he said. "Louis M. Denit will head a committee on relations with the Municipal Court of Appeals, and John Carmody is chairman of a committee which will work in conjunction with the Municipal Court."

"I wish it were possible," he added, "that hearings on confirmation by the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee could consider the matter at as early a date as possible, to the end that the court could be completely organized and functioning as soon as possible."

Alexander Holtzoff, coauthor, with Wood, of the court bill, and special assistant to the Attorney General, issued this brief statement:

Glenn Dale Scored By Investigators

Sanatorium Getting Hasty Scrubbing As Probers Arrive

Despite evidences of a hasty clean-up, there is still a need for improvement of conditions at the Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium, a Senate District Committee investigating party reported yesterday.

R. F. Camalier, committee counsel, and Commisioner Guy Mason paid a visit to the sanatorium yesterday noon as a first step in the probe ordered by District Committee Chairman McCarran after he had received a petition from Glenn Dale patients complaining of the food they were served.

Find Scrubbing Under Way

They reported that they found the kitchen equipment—in fact most of the building—being given a thorough scrubbing, apparently in anticipation of their visit. The equipment itself, they said was excellent. Broken and chipped glasses and chinaware were in use, they added, and there were evidences of an "inexcusable carelessness" in the preparation of food.

The patients had complained that they frequently found hairs and insects in the foods they were served, and that the meals were often cold.

Chief recommendation made by Camalier was for an increase in administrative personnel. He asserted that Dr. Daniel L. Finucane, superintendent of the sanatorium, is too heavily burdened with the general supervision of the hospital to be able to oversee details.

An administrative assistant for Finucane is provided in the 1943 District budget, but Camalier said that it might well prove necessary to provide still further executive aid. He asserted that there should be an assistant on the staff with the particular job of overseeing the preparation of food and the serving of meals.

Nurses Scored

Mason also scored the sickroom attitude of the nurses, asserting that many of them treated their patients with a "you're here at the public expense, so take what you get" air. He also condemned "department charts" kept by the nurses, on which they allegedly blacklist patients who complain. Both of these situations should be corrected, he asserted.

Further investigation of the food situation was indicated after Camalier had reported informally on the trip to McCarran. He said that McCarran had suggested an inspection of food purchasing records to see whether the patients are actually receiving daily 42 cents worth of food—the basis on which the District pays for their keep.

'Not a Request'

Hankin Blasts At Criminal Taxi Drivers

Steps as to how to proceed further in clarifying Washington's muddled taxi rates will be taken Monday when a meeting of the House District Committee will be called by Chairman Jennings Randolph.

At the emergency session of the committee last Wednesday, a strike was settled temporarily, pending full discussion of the issues involved.

Before leaving to address the convention of the Reciprocity Clubs of America in Atlantic City yesterday, Chairman Randolph talked with Public Utilities Chairman Gregory Hankin, asking him to prepare a complete statement of the rate situation, to be laid before the committee.

The West Virginia member, expressing himself as deeply concerned over the situation, added that any action complicating the truce should be avoided.

The PUC chairman last night denounced what he called "definite criminal classes" among the District cab drivers, and said he was preparing an order requiring drivers who choose to retain the old rate to file a notice of intention with the commission.

"This is done for the protection of the drivers as well as the public," Hankin said. "We have already received complaints that drivers are taking advantage of our agreement with the House District Committee not to enforce the new rates and are gyping the public by charging whichever rate is to the driver's advantage.

"In fact," Hankin continued, "we have had definite information that right after we deferred to the committee's wishes one cab leader told his men that they were now free to charge whichever rate brought the highest fare. While I do not believe there is a large number of drivers who are out to gyp the public, there are some being misled into overcharging by a few taxicab men who definitely belong to the criminal classes."

Violate PUC Orders

When pressed to identify these "few taxicab men," Hankin said they were "those who want to see to it that drivers do not operate in accord with the lawful orders of the PUC or who resort to the kind of tactics which were witnessed in this city in the early hours of Wednesday, such as turning over cars, assaulting drivers and in general interfering with the operation of a utility."

The order to file an announcement of rates charged will probably be issued today. Failure of any driver to post such notice with the PUC means that he has accepted and can only charge the new rates, Hankin said. Whichever schedule is preferred must be indicated by displaying the proper map and rate scale in the cab and may not be changed until the outcome of the Congressional investigation sets one definite rate for the city.

The first Government department to have completed the PUC origin and destination survey is the War Department. Tabulation of these cards showed that it might be possible to run express buses from upper Sixteenth Street straight to the new Pentagon Building in Arlington, using a series of feeder buses to bring War Department workers from other sections of the city to the Sixteenth Street area, Hankin said.

He added that of all the Federal agencies the OPA was the only one which failed to "cooperate fully" in the survey.

D. C. Man Drowned In Chesapeake In Sight of Friends

William Dant, 25, said to live in the 1800 block of Monroe Street Northeast, truck driver for a bottling company, was drowned yesterday at Chesapeake Beach within sight of a group of friends on the shore. His body was recovered four hours later.

According to witnesses to the drowning, Dant was racing out to a pole in the water with a friend, Frank Burke of 2204 Lawrence Street Northeast. Burke reached the pole and looked about for Dant. Four hours later, at noon, Dant's body was recovered. He was thought to have gone down in a deep hole 60 yards off shore. Dant's wife, Mrs. Dorothy Dant, was present at the beach, it was reported.

The party had gone down to the beach early yesterday on a picnic.

Shakes Hands With Five Airmen Who Saw Pacific Action

By the Associated Press

Five wounded aviation heros of the Pacific campaign—three of them on the Doolittle raid on Tokyo—had a shy young Royal visitor yesterday, King Peter of Yugoslavia.

The Air Force chaps, four officers and a private, the latter a member of a ground crew, were seated in a semicircle in a large upstairs room in the Walter Reed General Hospital, where they are recuperating.

From their chairs the five watched eagerly as the King, a slim lad of medium height, wearing the olive-drab uniform of a cavalry officer, came down the hall.

The first to be presented was Pvt. Ramon A. Caroza of Palmerton, Pa., a dark-eyed youth not much older than the monarch. The two grinned at each other.

Caroza was wounded by a bomb fragment at Pearl Harbor on December 7 during the Jap, sneak attack. A new white glove covered his new artificial left hand. He gave the King's forefinger a hearty grip to demonstrate how well it worked.

Then there was the Tokyo trio—First Lieut. Ted W. Lawson of Los Angeles, First Lieut. Harold F. Watson of West Hartford, Conn., and Second Lieut. Charles L. McClure of University City, Mo.

Each was injured in helping deliver Uncle Sam's steel-nosed message to Japan. Lieutenant Lawson lost his left leg. Lieutenant Watson was recovering from a dislocated shoulder. Lieutenant McClure's shoulders were dislocated.

Another victim of that December morning that plunged the United States into the war was Second Lieut. Wallace F. Pickard of Forest Hills, N. Y. A bomb fragment injured his right hand. Extending his left hand, he rose to shake hands with the King.

The presentations over, the King stood back. It was time, of course, to say something. In formal approved monarch style he began:

"The world ought to be proud of your good work." He stopped. Perhaps recalling his own flight to elude German capture, he thought of the dangers in the air. Perhaps he thought of the Yugoslav guerilla fighters still carrying on. Impulsively he added:

"I—I'm proud of you." He flushed. He started to leave the room, but turned back: "Good luck, fellows."

High-Voltage Nonsense Marks Earle's New Bill

'My Favorite Blonde,' Starring Bob Hope And Madeleine Carroll, a Mad Melodrama; Stage Revue Has Color, Movement and Laughs

"MY FAVORITE BLONDE." Paramount picturization of a story by Melvin Frank and Norman Panama, adapted to the screen by Don Hartman and Frank Butler, costarring Bob Hope and Madeleine Carroll, with Gale Sondergaard, George Zucco, Lionel Royce, Walter Kingsford, Victor Varconi, Otto Reichow, Esther Howard, Edward Gargan, James Burke, Charles Cane, Crane Whitley and Dooley Wilson. Directed by Sidney Lanfield. At the Earle.

IT'S SURPRISING how much fun can come out of a first-class murder!

That's the first thing that happens in, but not to, "My Favorite Blonde," Paramount's new epic of the "chase," which yesterday had them hanging from the chandeliers at the Earle Theater to see Bob Hope and Madeleine Carroll in the costellar roles.

The boat is just docking in New York in a heavy fog when one of the nasty Nazis pistols the bearer of the bejeweled scorpion that contains the secret code message that is to enable that huge flight of bombers to evade a collision with the Messersmitts on its way from Los Angeles to the other side. The slug wasn't quite speedy enough to prevent the victim's passing the gadget along to Miss Carroll, but she was speedy enough, from there on, to stay inconsistently one leap ahead of violent death all the way across the continent. With Mr. Hope's connivance, of course.

Miss Carroll caught up with Mr. Hope just in the nick of time, as the saying goes, to avoid being nicked by the gunmen and knife-throwers Mr. Hitler had put on her trail. Up to then, Mr. Hope had been a "star" vaudeville performer who got $30 a week as trainer of Percy, the Penguin, who received the embarrassing sum of $300. Thereafter, he became an immediate accessory to a few more murders—of one of which he was accused—a million hairbreadth escapes, an unfortunate incident at the Teamsters' Picnic, a not too-inspired forensic adventure before a Mothers' Club and a final bit of whimsy in a mortuary establishment in which a coffin, of all things, becomes an instrument of slapstick comedy.

If you can find a laggard moment in all this—outside of that slightly retarded Mothers' Club meeting—it is high time to see your favorite psychiatrist and find out what it is that's inhibiting your risibilities.

Despite the normally lugubrious implements with which it carves itself out—murder, mayhem, funeral services and all the rest of it—and the fact that the whole thing is predicated upon the discharge of a valuable patriotic errand, "My Favorite Blonde," once it gets by that introductory gunning, is an uproariously fantastic farce. Its dialogue is nicely keyed to the gaggery that habitually spouts from the Hope chest and its action to the charmingly sturdy talents of his boisterously beautiful costar. None of it would, or could, ever happen off a studio lot, but who cares? Here are two fabulous funsters happily involved in the extravagant excitements of a cross-country chase to end all cross-country chases, and the results are something pretty special in the eyes and ears of those who love to laugh. If that lets you out, stay away from the Earle this week.

Everyone Plays Nicely, Including Percy!

Mr. Hope and Miss Carroll are ebulliently, spontaneously and often hilariously Mr. Hope and Miss Carroll and, at this point, that seems to be all that need be said about them. Not the least efficient and effective of their supporting cast is Percy, the Penguin, a comedian that need feel impelled to take a back seat for no one. On the side of enemy espionage, the picture has been cast with comparable skill, with George Zucco, Lionel Joyce and Gale Sondergaard lending ominous pantomimic villainy an exorbitantly sinister quality in roles that are muted almost to the point of wordlessness. Walter Kingsford, Victor Marconi, Edward Gargan, Charles Kane and James Burke are among others who help the thing along notably in both its comic and melodramatic aspects. And for a fleeting instant there in the Teamsters' Picnic sequence, Hope pauses to pass a few words with his old sidekick, Bing Crosby, then turns to the audience in bewilderment and gasps, "Couldn't be!" Deft touch, this. But how DID Crosby get in there?

The stage revue Managing Director Harry Anger has rigged up for the week fairly matches the breezy pace of the screen feature. It is touched off by Jo Lombardi's symphonic overture arrangement of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" and the introduction of the Roxyettes as a group of 16 radiant blondes, in compliment to Miss Carroll and the title of the picture she decorates. Lucille Page then gives a foretaste of the extraordinary acrobatic dancing in which she later is to double up with Buster West, and Gene Marvey, from the airwaves, unfurls his voice in a nice selection of songs, including a medley of long-neglected George M. Cohan hits. West and Page occupy the headline spot in their familiar, "Fleet's In" nonsense that never fails to register a solid hit, and the Skating Macks top things off with a valiant effort to break their necks on a tiny, elevated roller rink. Two men and two girls, incidentally. The Roxyettes are superlative, as usual, in their "Dancing Widows" and "Tulips" routines, with the "flash" accent on the former.

A Merrie Melodie cartoon, "Double Chaser," starring the bulldog, the cat and the mouse, and the newsreel complete a bill blueprinted exclusively for high-speed hilarity and jam-packed houses.

coquetting a bit over and above the line of duty, as if it were necessary to justify herself in the title role of something called "My Favorite Blonde." The popular vote seems to be that she is everybody's, anyway. At any rate, there she is, costarred with the exuberant Bob Hope, in the Paramount item now on the screen at the Earle Theater. "My Favorite Blonde" is easily the most obvious piece of titling of the present year!

HEDDA HOPPER

Boost for the Babe

Hollywood, Calif., June 26. Those who saw the sneak preview of "Pride of the Yankees" were amazed at the hand Babe Ruth got. The applause was so long you couldn't hear what he said. It's true that after all these years, Hollywood still doesn't know what the public wants.

HELEN GAHAGAN

Baseball is our national sport, and those stars were public pets long before we built our picture stars to pinnacles of fame. Who, of my vintage, doesn't remember Christy Mathewson?

In this picture both Gary Cooper and Teresa Wright get belly laughs.

I hear that Helen Gahagan, Democratic committee woman from southern California, is not at all pleased that Will Rogers, jr., is running for Congress. That was the job she wanted.

Fighter Lou Nova is in town, being tested for an acting job. I asked whether he'd had any experience, and he said, "Sure. I did some good parts down in Florida. And it may interest you to know that I didn't miss a line—and even ad libb'd a few."

They're lining up quite a cast for "One Man Army"—the life of Floyd Gibbons, with Bob Preston, Joan Bennett, Jimmy Gleason, George Tobias, and Lee Tracy.

Producer Director Sam Wood and Billy Menzies certainly gave their faces to their art. They all but blinded themselves in the snow up Sonora way, where it was plenty hot, with snow 8 feet deep!

After riding two hours, they had to walk an hour and a half to direct the bombing of the hilltop, and their faces are one big burn.

Will Price, Maureen O'Hara's husband, ever since before their marriage has been wanting to direct, and now, by golly, Twentieth Century's going to let him do her next picture.

I'm wondering what he'll do about the love scenes, because in her other picture, the minute some other man would start making love to her, Will walked off the set. He'll just have to grin and bear it.

While Mike Curtiz was directing Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman for "Casablanca," the comedian S. Z. Sakall was half hidden in the background. "Step out, step out!" yelled Mike, "You're too expensive an actor to only have half of you in the scene."

Nick Stuart wanted to remarry former wife Ruth Skinner. She said no, but she did need a job, so she's touring with his band back East.

MacDonald Carey, who had a nice fat part in "Wake Island," and a new contract with a sensational raise in pay, ditched pictures and has signed a contract with the United States marines.

When Cary Grant stepped out of his dressing room the other day and took one look at a live elephant painted pink, being used in the "Mexican Spitfire" picture, he stepped right back into his room and took five more minutes to compose himself. Said Cary, "I've seen pink elephants before, but never in the bright sunlight."

There never was such a lack of stars with color and showmanship, like Mabel Normand, Clara Bow, Jean Harlow, and Paulette Goddard, who've all had the qualities that built up our little village. But we've got one coming up that's making hay.

New York, June 26.

INVESTIGATION: J. P. McEvoy returned to his home at Suffern a few days ago and was given a message to call a N. Y. number which proved to be that of the FBI. "Are you coming to N. Y. soon, because we'd like to ask you a few questions," the G-man began . . . "No, I'm not coming to N. Y. for a while," said McEvoy, nervously . . . "Well, it's about one David Hopkins," the G-man explained. "We've got to check on all Government employes. Do you know him?" . . . "I know him ever since he was a child," said McEvoy. "What about David?" . . . "Do you know anything about his background? His patriotism?" asked the G-man . . . "Yes," was the answer, "but do you know about his father?" . . . "No," confessed the G-man "His father lives at the White House," McEvoy informed. "His name is Harry Hopkins."

MARLENE DIETRICH

MEMENTO: When the Japanese diplomats left White Sulphur Springs, one of Kurusu's aides asked for the autograph of Nathan Portnoff, the Meyer Davis organist who played for them during their internment. Portnoff obliged by writing out a few bars of "God Bless America." Kurusu and his aide thanked Portnoff, and took it back to Japan . . . Just before they left, they discussed the war with the organist. "Since we like your music, we feel that we can talk to you directly," said the Jap Minister of Finance. "The war—it's terrible. Why don't you stop it?" . . . "We didn't start it, gentlemen," replied Portnoff, "but you may be sure—we'll stop it."

EDUCATION: Rudy Vallee, who hopes to become a legitimate actor and to appear in movie roles which do not require him to sing, still is trying to discover a gag-expert to match the talent of the late Jackie Osterman . . . Vallee once invited Osterman to work for him in Hollywood. "It would be a great thing for you and I," Jackie agreed . . . "Not You-and-I," corrected Yale Graduate Vallee. "The correct form is You-and-Me" . . . "Listen, Rudy," said the theater-born Osterman, "the only difference between you and I is that when I went to New Haven, it was to the Shubert Theater there."

FASHION: During Marlene Dietrich's tour in behalf of the War Bond Pledge Campaign, she visited Chicago. There she was invited to be the guest of honor at a party given at the Rockford, Ill., home of Frank Wharton. Forty men attended the party . . . Wharton's 5-year-old son suddenly entered the room. He had refused to dress for the occasion, and his shirt-tail was hanging outside his trousers. Miss Dietrich patted his head and stuffed his shirt-tail back where it belonged . . . Miss Dietrich then turned to the guests. The 40 men were standing there—their shirt-tails out.

ZEAL: Alfred Lunt, whose cooking classes for the Theater Wing proved so successful, decided to make further culinary experiments at his farm. He therefore instructed his butler to go to the local library and get every cookbook available . . . The butler returned with a carfull . . . including the Somerset Maugham tragedy, "Cakes & Ale."

PREFERENCE: Doris Nolan went to Fefe's Monte Carlo last night, where she saw three movie men—Directors Edmund Goulding and Jean Negulesču, and Producer Arthur Hornblow. "Why don't you come back to pictures?" Miss Nolan was invited. Last week you opened in a play here—'The Cat Screams'—and it flopped. Come back to Hollywood" . . . "But the roles they gave me in Hollywood weren't good either," Miss Nolan replied. "And I'd rather do bad parts on Broadway than bad parts in Hollywood. On Broadway, the shows close quickly—and nobody sees 'em."

YOUTH: Beatrice Lillie hasn't abandoned hope for her missing son, Sir Robert Peel. He was 16 when he was here last, a few years ago, and when he told us of his backstage visits where the stagehands shouted to him: "Sorry, Lord, but you'll have to scram" . . . One night he appeared with a mustache painted on his upper lip. "That's not funny," Bea chided him. "Wipe it off" . . . The next day he again appeared with his painted mustache. "Wipe it off," said his mother. "That's not funny" . . . He returned to England, to complete his studies at Harrow. And when his mother visited him there, she discovered that he had devoted the year to nursing the growth of a scraggly mustache. "Well, mother," he greeted, "NOW is it funny?"

Metropolitan

"In This Our Life" has now moved to the Metropolitan Theater, where Bette Davis and Olivia de Havilland meet in the dramatic clash of two sisters who are emotional opposites. The story based on Ellen Glasgow's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel is set in a small town in the South where the once proud and wealthy Timberlakes are suffering the ignominy of poverty and loss of prestige.

Bette Davis, as Stanley Timberlake, steals her sister's husband and runs down a mother and child while speeding through the night before she meets her fate in another auto accident. The supporting cast is excellent, with Charles Coburn as the wealthy uncle who gratifies Stanley's every whim. Dennis Morgan turns in a nice performance as the husband tormented by two loves, and George Brent is seen as the family lawyer and second suitor.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Children, 'Educated for Death!'

Hollywood. June 26 (INS).—"Education for Death" is the startling title of Gregor Ziemer's best selling book, and RKO intends that it will be a startling movie that will make the world heartsick when the fate of the youngsters of Nazi Germany is revealed. Many anti-Nazi propaganda pictures have been made, but none has touched on the Godless educational system that is turning little boys and girls—the youth of a nation—into mechanical cogs in a war machine. This is the basis of Ziemer's expose and so powerful are his revelations that our own Government is having the book translated into all languages for propaganda purposes.

JOE E. BROWN

Edward A. Golden will produce and finance "Education for Death," and so eager is RKO to get it on the screen that production starts August 10.

Damon Runyon, ace King features syndicate writer, producer and raconteur extraordinary, moves his typewriter and his wit to Twentieth Century-Fox on a long term producting-writing contract, August 1. If I had listened to my favorite Beverly taxi driver I would have had the tip about Damon's New Deal last week. He told me he had driven Runyon from his hotel to Twentieth. "You mean to RKO," I argued, because he is producing his own story, "The Big Street," there. "No, I took him to Twentieth," insisted the driver

The first Twentieth Century-Fox picture lined up for Runyon has a military background (no title) and before Damon checks in he will leave for Washington, D. C., for local color.

I keep hearing it whispered that one of these days pretty Marguerite Chapman and Barrett O'Shea will consult a preacher. The other day, when I was on the Columbia lot, I heard not only that bit of news but that Maggie will have the lead opposite Joe E. Brown in "The Daring Young Man." This is the fifth picture she will have made in less then the six months she has been on the Columbia lot. Incidentally, Arthur Lake will play Dagwood Bumstead in the Joe E. Brown picture, with Irving Bacon doing his familiar stunt of Mr. Crum, the postman.

A line or two: a real friendship has sprung up between Rosalind Russell and Janet Blair on the "Sister Eileen" set . . . the friends of Anne Shirley and John Payne haven't given up hope of bringing them together again. Talk is John is willing but Anne isn't.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: In place of the usual presents, Jack Benny passed out checks to buy victory bonds to the crew of "George Washington Slept Here;" Maurice Costello, playing a bit in "Between Us Girls", (formerly "Love and Kisses Caroline") introduced himself to Diana Barrymore on the set and she whipped up one of those hand cooked lunches of hers for him.

Jane Withers, stepping out in Pittsburgh with 20-year-old Edward Bender, who wrote her the first fan letter she ever received; Mary Pickford called to say Buddy Rogers was sworn into the Navy today and leaves Saturday for Pensacola. She goes East to be near him as soon as she is feeling better.

Phyllis Otto Defeats Miss Row in Golf

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, June 26.—In the space of three weeks as a National Leaguer after 16 years in the American League, Jimmy Foxx ferreted out the chief difference between the two big leagues. "It's the umpiring," says James triumphantly, sounding a new note in a debate that has raged for years.

POVICH

Foxx points to the better pitching records in the National League and the higher batting averages in the American, and then expounds his theory in support of what the figures show.

"The whole difference," he says, "is in the strike zone which is much greater in the National League than the American from what I have seen of the two leagues. In the National, everything from your shoulders to below the knee, about even with the bottom of the pants, is a strike. In the American, the umpires seldom call a strike unless the ball is slightly above your knee and no higher than the letters of your shirt. That extra range in the strike zone makes a lot of difference in the hitting and pitching records of the two leagues."

Foxx's appraisal of the two leagues seems to be correct enough. There have been seasons when an American Leaguer hitting .350 wouldn't be among the half dozen leading hitters in his own league, but that same figure would have won the National League batting title.

Somehow, the bosses of the two big leagues have never aimed for uniformity in umpiring. Tom Connolly, the American League's umpire in chief, insists, for example, that all his umpires stand directly behind the catcher in line with the pitch the better to call balls and strikes. The National League umpires, bossed by Bill Klem, have orders to stand to one side of the catcher on the theory that their vision won't be obscured in that position. Each league considers its style best.

As a result of the leniency of National League umpires who, compared to American League standards, give the pitcher the best of it on balls and strikes, there is more low-ball pitching in the National League. As Foxx says, the same low pitch that would be called a ball in the American League, is called a strike in the National and thus, perhaps, the better pitching records in the National.

The fact that the National League umpires may be more lenient, too, on high balls doesn't make much difference. No pitcher likes to throw a high ball if he can pitch a low one. Except in unusual cases, the low pitch is the toughest kind for a man to hit and thus a low ball is aimed at his weakness. For most hitters, it requires an unnatural swing to hit a low ball; at least a swing that doesn't contain his maximum power.

Such as Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Dizzy Dean and Carl Hubbell have been essentially low ball pitchers and in the National League they would have been stupid if they didn't pitch low. American Leaguers have had to keep the ball up to get a called strike in the restricted American League strike zone.

A Chicago fan named Glenn Wilson, who admits he is a confirmed National Leaguer and contemptuous of American League batting records, takes delight in ridiculing the batting averages of former American Leaguers now in the National League. In a letter to Lloyd Lewis, who conducts the "Voice From the Grandstand" column in the Chicago News, Wilson writes:

"Isn't it interesting to see how those ex-American Leaguers now swinging at that soft National League pitching are murdering the ball? Terrific! And he submits the following evidence of National League pitching's conquest of 10 former American Leaguers.

Rollie Hemsley, who went from Cleveland to the Cardinals, is batting a mere .115. Gerald Walker, who traveled the same route into the National League, is currently hitting .180. Jimmy Foxx, released to the Cubs by the Red Sox, is hitting .184. Babe Dahlgren, once with the Yankees, is now a .188 hitter with Brooklyn. Billy Sullivan, formerly of the Tigers, is hitting .231 with Brooklyn. Dominic Dalessandro, formerly with the Red Sox, is a mere .253 hitter with the Cubs. Ernie Koy, ex-Yankee, is hitting .275 with the Reds, and Dixie Walker, ex-Yankee, Tiger, White Sox, is slugging for a .297 average with the Dodgers. Frenchy Bordagaray, now with Brooklyn, is hitting only .226.

The answer could be that the American League doesn't release its good hitters, a truth that may dawn on the National League any day now.

17-Year-Old In Western Open Finals

Miss Jameson Beats Jeanne Cline, to Play Youngster For Golf Crown

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 26.—Texas' Betty Jameson and Iowa's Phyllis Otto today won their way to the finals of the Women's Western Open Golf Tournament, which will be played over 36 holes of the Elmhurst Country Club tomorrow.

Miss Jameson, 24-year-old San Antonio girl, won her semifinal match from Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., 4 and 3, while Miss Otto, 17, of Atlantic, Iowa, had a scrap on her hands in subduing Marjorie Row of Detroit, 1 up.

The Texas walloper, whose qualifying 79 last Monday put her fourth in the 18-hole medal test, was only 1 over par with her 39 on the first nine today, and led Miss Cline at the turn, 2 up. For the six holes of the back nine she was 1 under par, aided by an eagle 4 which enabled her to take the fifteenth and end the match.

Cards an 80

Miss Otto carded a 40—40—80 to excel Miss Row's medal 40—42—82. On the outgoing nine each won two holes and halved the others to stand even at the turn. Miss Row notched a birdie 2 on the thirteenth for a monetary lead but Miss Otto came back to win the fourteenth and fifteenth, the latter with an eagle 4, and took a lead she held to the end. They split the last three holes.

The Jameson-Cline match was nip and tuck the first seven holes, Miss Jameson taking the first two and Miss Cline the third and fifth with superb putting to square the contest. They halved the sixth and seventh, each having birdie 2s on the latter, but Betty won the next two for a 2 up halfway edge.

Miss Jameson held the women's national championship, an event canceled this year because of the war, in 1939 and 1940. Miss Otto never has won a major title although she was Iowa State champion two years ago. She shot a 78 in Monday's qualifying to tie for runnerup medalist honors.

French Receives Credit for 10-Inning Game; Medwick's Streak Is Ended

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 26.—The Brooklyn Dodgers tripped the Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in ten innings today to give Larry French his seventh pitching victory without a defeat, but the batting streak of Joe Medwick was snapped after he had hit safely in 27 consecutives games.

Medwick went hitless in five appearances against a trio of Cincinnati hurlers, falling by six games to reach the National League record of 33 games, set in 1922 by Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals.

French, last of three Dodgers pitchers, entered the game at the start of the ninth inning with the score tied for the third time in the see-saw contest. He held the Reds to one hit in two innings and the Dodgers resorted to the old squeeze play to score the winning run.

Clyde Shoun, who took the mound for the Reds in the ninth and absorbed his first defeat against one win, was nicked for a triple by Billy Herman with one out in the tenth. He walked Mickey Owen and Pinch-Hitter Babe Dahlgren intentionally to fill the bases and Pewee Reese laid down a perfect bunt that squeezed Herman across the plate and ended the game.

The Dodgers opened the scoring in the second inning with two runs on a walk, a single by Augie Galan, an outfield fly, a double by Owen and a single by Kirby Higbe, who pitched one-hit ball until he was forced out by wildness after four and a third innings.

White Sox Stop Yanks, 4 to 2, Behind Smith

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 26. — Chicago's White Sox, who had lost nine straight games to the New York Yankees since last August 25, broke the string tonight with a 4-to-2 triumph. The victory was accomplished behind lefty Edgar Smith, who pitched the Sox to their last previous Yankee conquest.

A crowd of 25,934 saw Smith, the Sox hard-luck hurler, limit the American League leaders to six hits. One of the blows was Charley Keller's eighth homer which came after Joe DiMaggio's double in the second inning and accounted for all the Yankee scoring.

Smith, who last night was named to the All-Star squad despite his hopeless record, turned back a ninth inning challenge to clinch his second victory against 11 defeats.

With two out, Keller singled and Joe Gordon doubled him to third. However, Bill Dickey grounded to Second Baseman Don Kolloway.

The Sox got only six hits off Lefty Gomez, but took advantage of eight bases on balls. They got four walks in the second inning and aided by three singles scored three runs. Poor base running in this inning cut down additional scoring. Both Myril Hoag and Wally Moses ran preceding runners off the bases. Another walk and Tom Turner's single produced the other Sox run in the sixth.

All-Star Game Seen As Preview of Series

Nine Yankees, 7 Dodgers on Squads Meeting July 6; N. L. Battery Will Be Hard to Pick

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—The runaway races in the major leagues have caused a lot of joking about playing this year's World Series immediately after the Fourth of July, but the all-star game at the Polo Grounds July 6 may furnish a reasonable facsimile.

Nine members of the New York Yankees and seven of the Brooklyn Dodgers are on the all-star squads just announced by the American and National Leagues.

All of them won't be in the starting line-ups, of course, but the flavor will be there, even to the strategy of the rival managers—Joe McCarthy and Leo Durocher.

The most likely batting orders appear to be:

AMERICAN LEAGUE—Rizzuto, Yankees, ss.; Henrich, Yankees, rf.; York, Tigers, 1b.; Williams, Red Sox, lf.; J. DiMaggio, Yankees, cf.; Gordon, Yankees, 2b.; Keltner, Indians, 3b.; Dickey, Yankees, c.; Bonham, Yankees, p.

The American League line-up seems comparatively easy to pick except for shortstop and perhaps a

Breen Injured After Race Spill

Stanton, Del., June 26 (AP). Johnny Breen, a contract jockey for Joseph E. Widener, was badly hurt today when his mount, Wire Me, fell during the final race of the program at Delaware Park.

Attendants at Delaware Hospital at nearby Wilmington said he received internal injuries and possibly fractures of the skull and vertebrae.

Wire Me slipped on a turn, fell and rolled over Breen twice. Mrs. M. R. Lewis' Somali stumbled over Wire Me and threw Jockey Joe Dattilo, who received minor injuries.

Fred Apostoli, Overlin Fight 10-Round Draw

By the United Press

Norfolk, Va., June 26.—Freddie Apostoli and Ken Overlin, both former middleweight champions of the world, fought to a 10-round draw here tonight in a Navy relief bout witnessed by upwards of 10,000 rabidly partisan fans.

The decision was booed for several minutes, since Apostoli had delivered a number of hard blows which had Overlin almost exhausted before the end of the bout.

Newsom Blasted, Nats Take 8-5 Beating at Hands of Browns

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, June 26.—Big Buck Newsom got an unkind deal from the fates tonight and the Nates took an 8-5 licking from the Browns.

Newsom was throwing a terrific fast ball at the Browns. He struck out 10 batters before he retired at the end of six innings. He started one Washington scoring rally himself, batting lefthanded for the first time in his big-league career, and making a clean hit. But he got two brutal, bad breaks that licked him.

In two successive innings the Browns scored three runs against Newsom that were the gifts of the baseball gods. With two out in the fifth inning, George McQuinn tried to duck a pitch and a pop-fly single to center resulted, putting two men on base. Chet Laabs hit the next pitch for a home run.

Slips on Bunt

In the next inning Newsom again was apparently turning the Browns back scoreless. He had two out, with two on base, when Don Gutteridge hit a weak tap back to the pitcher's box. Newsom skidded as he fielded the ball, his spikes leaving a 10-foot trail on the sod, and Gutteridge beat it out for a cheap hit. Thus the Browns filled the bases and set the stage for a two-bagger by Harlond Clift that cleared 'em.

The Nats tonight ended their scoring famine by belting Elden Auker for 11 hits and at one point they held a 3-1 lead, but the Browns' luck-anointed assault score a half dozen runs against Newsom in the fifth and sixth and the Nats' losing streak grew to three straight.

Hot and perspiring despite the cool evening, Newsom was turning in one of his best pitched games until ill luck engulfed him. He make a show of it with his ten strikeouts in the first six innings and wrangled continually with Umpire Art Passarella behind the plate. Manager Harris retired him at the end of the sixth inning with the Nats trailing 7-3, because New-

Tribe Halted By Newsome, Bosox Win, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 26.—The second-place Boston Red Sox turned back the Indians' bid to gain on them tonight with a 3-to-2 victory pitched by Dick Newsome, who allowed the Tribe only six hits in taking his seventh win of the season.

Newsome's only nemesis was big Les Fleming, who celebrated his omission from the American League All-Star Team by getting four of the Tribe's safeties—three singles and a ninth-inning double in four trips—and running his batting average to .352.

The Red Sox grabbed a run in the first inning when Dom DiMaggio reached first on Ken Keltner's fumble, stole second, went to third as Johnny Pesky was out, and scored as Lou Finney went out. They added another in the fourth chapter on singles by Finney and Ulysses Lupien.

Whirlaway Favored In Brooklyn 'Cap

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—The Army, the Navy and Whirlaway tonight look like sure winners for tomorrow's racing festivities at Aqueduct, but Market Wise won't come to the party.

Whirly and eight other horses were named to start in the $30,000-added Booklyn Handicap, headlining the "floor show" for war relief at the Brooklyn racing plant. But Market Wise, who whipped Whirlaway in the Suburban Handicap three weeks ago, declined the issue for another chance at little Mr. Big Tail and the heavy sugar.

It was the second time in two weeks that Lou Tufano's Rags-to-Riches galloper had passed the same hand. After being entered in the Carter Handicap, he withdrew and Trainer George Washington (I Cannot Tell a Lie) Carroll said his horse was ailing with a cough.

With Lou Tufano's Rags-to-Riches runner absent, the chief threat to Whirly appears to be Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, who chased the Kentucky cannonball to a 1⅛-mile track record earlier this week before bowing by the width of a lip. But since the Brooklyn's run is an eighth of a mile longer, and Attention is not famous for his ability over a mile, this one looks like a shoo-in for Warren Wright's express, despite the fact he's packing 129 pounds to 122 for Mrs. Corning's speedster.

There'll be a $23,900 pay check ready for the winner in this fifty-fourth running of the Brooklyn. If Whirly picks it up, he'll skyrocket his earnings over the $400,000 mark and pull himself just $32,900 away from Seabiscuit's all-time bankroll.

Except for Whirlaway and Attention, there isn't much in the field of nine. Mrs. Payne Whitney entered a three-horse team consisting of The Rhymer, who won the Widener Handicap last winter; Corydon, who grabbed the Sussex at Delaware last week, and Swing and Sway. Then there are A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose, hooked up with Attention as Trainer Maxie Hirsch's entry, and John Clark's Waller, Tom Howell's Olympus and Harry M. Warner's Paperboy.

Secondary feature on the card, from which Army and Navy relief and the United Service Organizations will get the entire proceeds except for purses to horsemen, is the $5000 Great American Stakes for 2-year-olds, which drew a field of six headed by William duPont's Supermont to Jock Whitney's Four Freedoms.

Man at Arms, $19.80 Shot, Scores in Charles Town Sixth

Waugh Scout 2d, Braxton Runs Third

By Walter Haight

Charles Town, W. Va., June 26.—After being beaten off in two previous races, Man at Arms, a 7-year-old son of Stimulus, looked like Man o'War today and ran off with the sixth race, named the Doughboys Purse. Racing in the colors of Mrs. H. Brown and under the riding of Apprentice Jockey Al Bocson, Man at Arms finished a neck in advance of C. W. Spiker's Waugh Scout. Five lengths farther back came Mrs. Cy Butler's Braxton to head Mrs. A. S. Bowman's Brainchild out of third money.

With the crowd going hook, line and sinker for Braxton as the favorite, Man at Arms paid a $19.80 mutuel and was clocked in 1.22 2-5 over the slightly dull track.

Bocson took Man at Arms away in good fashion while Braxton almost walked the first part of it. Waugh Scout was the only horse to get close to the winner and he didn't move up until too late to catch the leader.

Jockey Buddy Root, hurt in a spill here more than a week ago, came back to the racing wars and rode W. B. Fockler's Never Home to victory. The 9-year-old mare was a $3 shot and won by a length from Oddree with Microplay third.

The daily double paid $32.20. R. E. P. Hoover's Aster Lady won the second race, taking command early and leading Dupliket and Golden Mayne to the wire. In the third race, Freetone, strongly handled by Jockey E. Carrillo, turned back Nyleve and Clifton's Dawn.

Overlin's advantage in weight over Apostoli—Overlin weighed in at 165½, Apostoli at 160½—seemed not to bother Apostoli at all, who carried the fight throughout.

The judges called it a draw. Dr. Eddie Myers of Norfolk gave his decision to Apostoli, George Bertram of Norfolk voted for Overlin, while the refereé, Elder Craft of Portsmouth, Va., called it a draw.

The supporting card offered four six-rounders. Warren Dean, 118¾, Richmond, Va., knocked out Johnny Bashare, 125, Baltimore, Md., in the third round; Bill Duffy, 149, Naval Training Station, outpointed Phil Enzenga, 145, Baltimore, Md.; Lou Bass, 159, Navy, outpointed Johnny Finazzo, 165, Baltimore.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

I would like to see each and every one of you on the rail today. This is a victory meeting in every sense of the phrase. The mutuel "take" admissions and concessions will go to Army and Navy Relief and West Virginia charities. Here's a chance to spend a day at the races and help good causes at the same time. Charles Town is "all-out" for the war effort. They only ask you to come out. There is a nine-race program with every event assured a capacity field. Danny Scocca continues to bat in tough luck as far as injuries are concerned. Yesterday he was forced to cancel his mounts after the second race. He was unsaddling Balkanese when the horse kicked him in the leg and bruised a muscle. His valet carried him back to the jockeys' room.

S. B. Webb has disposed of Romney Royal to a local merchant who will use the well-known plater as a saddle horse. E. Samaha has purchased the mare, Meetake, from Lou Cappo and G. A. Cook will do the training. Meetake used to be the top winner for the Bennings Stable. In answer to inquiry: Free Girl, winner here this week, is a daughter of Mafuta, the mare who won here last year. Mafuta won a short sprint on June 7, 1941, and paid $48.80. It is not uncommon for a mare to return to racing after having a foal.

At Bowie several years ago, mother and daughter ran in the same race. John E. Hughes owns both Free Girl and Mafuta. Starter John Morrissey would like to get in touch with Tom Cropper of Baltimore. If you know him or his address please pass the word along. It looked like the alarm clock went off when Five A. M. made that mad dash to the wire to win yesterday's fourth race. Hope to see you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—MALVOIS could be the right one in this abbreviated sprint. Gets in light and I'm going to string along. BUTTERMAN is good now and looms as the one to beat. NAVIGATION for the show end.

Second race—BILL BLEIWEISS has plenty of speed and may take the top from the outside position and stay there. CALOTTE has been tipped several times and, with the right ride, will be a keen factor. WAKE has early foot and is a threat.

Third race—PANDORAMINT has been threatening to whip a field of this sort and may have the right brand of track today. FALCONIERE is good now and belongs close. INDIA PASS is an upset possibility.

Fourth race—DISCRETION breaks off the rail and should make the most of the inside position. Has a bit of class and I'm going to be there. SATIN ROYCE runs honest races and will be a threat. VENDOR'S LIEN to take care of the others.

Fifth race—OWALLER gets my call in this short sprint. Gets only steadying weight and will be hard to handle. RED WINGS loves the route and will be right there. SAINT PYREWICK is dangerous despite the heavy assignment.

Sixth race—RANDLE'S QUEEN deserves plenty of attention in this field. She has not been overworked and will be the one to lick. IDA TIME has speed and belongs in the first flight. PIMLICO LADY to take care of the others.

Seventh race—BURNER won last out on a track that did not exactly suit. If the mud comes up this one should jog. TELLEVANE and PEP TALK for the place and show.

Eighth race—CRUSAND needs only some saddle help to down this gang. Gets in with feather weight. ELAMP begins to figure in this cheap company. SEA MISS for the show end.

Ninth race—ANNIKIN may be along in time to take the chief money in this distance affair. ALLEN CAID is as good as hands make horses. YANKEE to take care of the minor money.

Best bet—Owaller.

Burnett Nears 3d Md. Amateur Golf Title, Wins 2 Matches

D. C. Fireman In Semifinals At Baltimore

Meyer, Albertus And Wisner Survive State Play; Bassler, Pittman Are Beaten

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Baltimore, June 26.—Volney G. Burnett, par shooter from Indian Spring in his spare time and a fire fighter for the District Government in his working hours, is within two matches of retiring the Sherwood Forest trophy which has gone to the winner of the Maryland State Amateur golf championship since 1924.

Burnett, the bespectacled shot maker who won the State title in 1937 at Manor Country Club and again last year at Suburban, won his first two matches in the nineteenth annual tournament here today at Five Farms. He entered the semifinals with two members of the public links delegation and his victim in the finals last year, Bob Albertus, of the semipublic Bonnie View Club. Three victories retires the cup.

Burnett had four companions from his home town this morning but after two rounds which reduced the field from 16 to 4 they were all on the sidelines along with Baltimore's old guard amateurs who were cut down in morning and afternoon.

Melvin Survives

Kenwood's Dick Melvin was the only District player to survive the round with Burnett. Eddie Ault lost to the par shooting of Lawrence Wisner, a former professional now playing public links golf, 3 and 2. Ray Swearingen, the Middle Atlantic finalist from Columbia, was 3 up and 5 to play on Albertus but lost three holes in a row and the match on the nineteenth to a par 4. Gene Pittman of Congressional, could not match Burnett's steady shotmaking and bowed out, 3 and 1.

Melvin pulled a fine comeback to get past the first round against Association President Edgar Lucas. Three down and five to play, Dick won four straight holes, lost the eighteenth and then holed a 45-foot birdie putt on the nineteenth hole to win, 1 up. Melvin was hit by the stymie jinx in the afternoon, however, and lost, 5 and 4, to Eddie Meyer, a former municipal champion who was playing par golf and found three stymies on his side. Meyer upset Spencer Overton, 1 up, in the morning with a scrambling exhibition.

Meyer's opponent will be Wisner, who held grimly to an early lead and beat Don McPhail, last remaining host club player, 2 up, after beating Ault.

Burnett Drives Long

Burnett, rapping out tee shots a la Thompson, was 2 up on Pittman at the turn in the first round and with some timely putts interspersed with a few three-putt greens won on the seventeenth.

Volney caught a tartar in the afternoon, however, in Charles Bassler a steel-mill worker who learned as golf caddying for Overton. Bassler was 2 up at the fourth and again at the eleventh but his slugging tactics with short irons found trouble and Burnett finally evened the match on the fifteenth and with a one-two punch parred 16 and 17 for a 2-and-1 triumph.

Albertus advanced with comparative ease in the afternoon, beating Ray Heins, 4 and 2.

The three comedalists all lost in the morning and an afternoon playoff for the $25 war savings bond went to Spencer Overton, who was even par for 14 holes when Ken Scales, 7 over, and Eddie Ault 9 over, decided it was not worth getting wet to watch him finish the round.

Championship flight results:
First round—Lawrence Wisner (Mt. Pleasant) defeated Eddie Ault (Indian Spring), 3 and 2; Don McPhail (Baltimore C. C.) defeated Ed Finnessy (Mt. Pleasant), 1 up, 19 holes; Dick Melvin (Kenwood) defeated Edgar Lucas (Baltimore C. C.), 1 up, 19 holes; Eddie Meyer (Clifton Park) defeated Spencer Overton (Rolling Road), 1 up; Ray Heins (Mt. Pleasant) defeated Ken Scales (Mt. Pleasant), 2 up; Bob Albertus (Bonnie View) defeated Ray Swearingen (Columbia), 1 up, 19 holes; Charles Bassler (Rolling Road) defeated Bill Cole (Clifton Park), 2 up; Volney G. Burnett (Indian Spring) defeated Gene Pittman (Congressional), 3 and 2.
Second round—Wisner defeated McPhail, 2 up; Meyer defeated Melvin, 5 and 4; Albertus defeated Heins, 4 and 2; Burnett defeated Bassler, 2 and 1.
Pairings for tomorrow:
9:45, Wisner vs. Meyer; 9:50, Albertus vs. Burnett.
Results of Washingtonians in other flights:
Second flight—Joe Barse (Columbia) defeated Owen Mackin (Mt. Pleasant), 5 and 3.
Second round—Barse defeated F. J. Sperandeo (Forest Park), 3 and 2.
Third flight—Arthur Myers (Manor) defeated Carl Johnson (C. C. of Md.), 3 and 2.
Second round—T. Robertson (Clifton Park) defeated Myers, 1 up.

Victory Shoot Scheduled Tomorrow

Now that the War Department has given the "go ahead" signal to skeet shooting, in view of the proven value of shooting to armed forces and civilian population alike, ample ammunition and targets are available.

The grounds of the Victory Gun Club, 1 mile east of Forestville, Md., on the Marlboro Pike, have been groomed for tomorrow's "First Victory Shoot." The patriotic theme will be stressed, with all money in class events divided among the winners 50-30-20 per cent in defense stamps, replacing trophies as the customary awards.

Frank Huseman, firearms expert at Parker-Whalen sport store and manager of the shoot, says there will be two events; first, 100-target all-bore, entrance including targets and shells, $8.00; the second, a two-man race, shot concurrently with all-bore, entrance fee per man, 50c.

To reach the lub grounds, drive out Benning Road or Pennsylvania Avenue to Marlboro Pike . . . Out Marlboro Pike to club sign, 1 mile east of Forestville, turn left to Staubners Farm.

Finals, Carded Today, Postponed Until Monday

All finals berths in the City of Washington junior and boys tennis tournament were filled yesterday at Friends School courts, but owing to the rains which have left the courts unplayable today, title matches have been postponed until Monday morning.

Unseeded "Brownie" Baker joined defending Champion Bobby Bensinger in the singles finals of the junior tournament, and LeRoy Morgan and John Bucknell gained the boys' singles finals. Junior doubles finalists are Bensinger and John Waits, and Baker and Ed Sachs, while in the boys it's Bucknell and Morgan and Billy Bernard and Bob Smith.

Baker, 17-year-old dark-horse from Texas, and Britt Schweitzer, who was ranked fourth, both appeared off their games, but their match was nevertheless close and exciting. Baker won, 6-4, 8-6, but had to fight off a set point in the second session to prevent the match's going into an extra set.

In the boys' singles, Morgan beat Billy Hafferty, 9-7, 6-1, and Bucknell whipped Bernard, 6-3, 6-3.

Bensinger and Waits gained the junior doubles finals by defeating Joe Peabody and Jack Wright, 6-1, 6-1, while Baker and Sachs defeated Delos Smith and Williams, 6-0, 6-3. Boys' doubles found Bucknell and Morgan ahead of Brandes and Ong, 6-3, 6-4, and Bernard and Bob Smith beating Rafferty and Platt, 6-0, 2-6, 8-6.

An upset was narrowly avoided in the last-named match after it was interrupted for nearly an hour by rain at the end of the second set. Bernard and Rafferty, heavy favorite, were pressed to the limit in the deciding set.

JUNIOR RESULTS

Single (semifinals)—Baker defeated Schweitzer, 6—4, 8—6.
Doubles (semifinals)—Bentzinger and Waits defeated Peabody and Wright, 6—1, 6—1; Baker and Sachs defeated Smith and Williams, 6—0, 6—3.

BOYS RESULTS

Singles (semifinals)—Morgan defeated Rafferty, 9—7, 6—1; Bucknell defeated Bernard, 6—3, 6—3.
Doubles (semifinals) — Bucknell and Morgan defeated Brandes and Ong, 6—3, 6—4; Bernard and Smith defeated Rafferty and Platt, 6—0, 2—6, 8—6.

Lieut. Murray Will Manage Navy Athletics

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., June 26.—Lieut. H. Q. (Fid) Murray, Navy's 1933 football captain, was appointed today as graduate manager of athletics at the United States Naval Academy.

Murray succeeds Comdr. Lyman S. (Pop) Perry, all-America guard on Navy's 1918 eleven, who yesterday was elevated to the athletic directorship. Murray's appointment completed reorganization of Navy's athletic setup which began two months ago when Capt. T. Starr King, athletic director during the past year, was ordered to sea duty.

A Southerner, Murray hails from Newnan, Ga., and prior to his promotion to the graduate manager's job today had been assigned to the naval executive department.

Lewis Can't Play With All-Stars; Busy With Army

By the Associated Press

Pine Bluff, Ark., June 26.—John K. "Buddy" Lewis, former infielder-outfielder with the Washington Senators now an Army aviation cadet at nearby Grider Field, will not be able to participate with Lieut. Comdr. Mickey Cochrane's all-service team July 7 when it plays the winner of the major league all-star game.

Maj. Prescott Spicer, Grider commandant, said today that Lewis is now in intensive primary training and his absence "would so seriously jeopardize his training schedule that it is thought best he not participate."

Tatum Faces De La Torre in College Final

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., June 26.—Manuel de la Torre of Northwestern, a son of Spain, and Frank Tatum, jr., of Stanford, Phi Beta Kappa, will meet tomorrow for the National Intercollegiate Golf Championship.

Tatum eliminated Harold Gjolme of the University of Washington, 4 and 2, today in one 36-hole semifinal match, while the native of Madrid disposed of Yale's Bob Kuntz, 6 and 5.

In the 36-hole final, which begins at 9:45 a. m. (Central War Time), "Sandy" Tatum, an engineering student, will be shooting the works for his first major golf championship and his last in intercollegiate play because his college days are over. The closest the Los Angeles youth ever came to a big title before was twice as a finalist in the Southern California Junior Tournament.

De la Torre, groomed into a stylist by his father, a former Madrid pro and European tournament competitor, became the third Big Ten player to make the final in the meet's 45-year history and the first Northwestern golfer ever to get through the quarter-finals. He's as anxious to win his first championship as he is to get his final naturalization papers and become a United States citizen. John Fischer won in 1932, and Chuck Kocsis, both of Michigan, repeated in 1936.

Byrd, Smith And Kirkwood Pace Mahoning

By the Associated Press

Girard, Ohio, June 26.—Setting a blistering pace, Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick shot artist now playing from Abington, Pa., and Sam Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder, today tied Horton Smith with four-below-par 64's for leadership of the $5000 Mahoning Valley Open golf tournament.

Smith, early leader with 33—31, first was tied by Kirkwood with similar scores. Then Byrd moved in with a 33—31 to make it a three-way deadlock.

Kirkwood, who confesses his most difficult shot is a straight one, barreled them down the fairway in the opening session of the three-day, 72-hole medal play event.

With indications that the pace may be stepped up when Blazin' Ben Hogan gets hot after a 35, 32—67 today, Craig Wood's record of 264, set in the Metropolitan Open two years ago, appeared in jeopardy. Thirteen players bettered par 34, 34—68 and 21 were 70 or under.

Jack Miskell, youthful Youngstown pro, had 32-33—65 to tie Lloyd Mangrum, Monterey Park, for second. Jimmy Thomson, long hitting Californian, defending Champion Clayton Heafner of Durham, N. C.; "Dutch" Harrison, Harrisburg, Pa., and Rod Munday, Toledo, O., had 66's.

Billy Burke, Cleveland, had six one-putt greens on the first nine and finished 31-36—67, tying Al Smith, Martinsville, Va., Hogan, and Herman Keiser, Akron, for the next spot with 67's.

Lawson Little provided the early fireworks with a hole in one on the 215-yard No. 4—toughest par three of the course—but had 34-35—69 to finish even with Ky Laffoon, the Oklahoman; Jack Thompson, Youngstown; Ray Hill, Hershey, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. king from Evanston, Ill., and Sam Parks of Pittsburgh.

Jack Robertson, and John Cseh of Okron, O., and Steve Kovacn, Tarentum, Pa., finished in a three-way deadlock for amateur laurels with 71's.

Baltimore, June 26.—Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, of Manor Country Club, entered the finals of the Maryland women's championship here today and tomorrow morning will seek to add the State crown to her District title of last week in bidding for a grand slam of feminine golf honors in this section. The last of the three major women's tournaments is the Middle Atlantic at Congressional in August where the Washingtonian will have a chance to make local history if she wins tomorrow.

Mrs. Stokes stepped into the title round today with a 3-and-1 victory over Elizabeth Bonthron, an all-round athlete from Hillendale C. C., in a match which the latter unexpectedly lasted until the seventeenth after being dormie 4 down on the fifteenth tee.

The other finalist is the medalist from Woodholme C. C., Mrs. Maurice Glick, who is making her debut in the title round of a championship tournament. The vastly improved player from the Pikesville club won the last two holes with bogeys to defeat Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore C. C., 2 up, in a well-played and even match for the first 16 holes.

Mrs. Stokes will be bidding for her second State title in three years tomorrow to add to her two District championships and one Middle Atlantic crown which she has collected in a three-year victory spree which started in the spring of 1940.

The poker-faced shotmaker has been pounding the ball past all her opponents off the tee and has been using her powerful arm and wrist motion to get the ball out of the tough rough and making up for her few mistakes. In addition, Mrs. Stokes, putting has been virtually flawless. In ousting defending champion Mrs. Meckley on Thursday she had 21 putts for 14 holes and yesterday from the eighth through the thirteenth she had a stretch of seven putts for six holes.

Lets Up Too Soon

Miss Bonthron made a match of it for six holes of the front nine yesterday. They halved the first five as the Washingtonian missed chances and Miss Bonthron finally turned aggressor and won the sixth. Mrs. Stokes seemed to get in the groove at this point and hit two booming shots to the 435-yard seventh hole and won it to square the match. It was one up for the eventual winner when a 40-foot chip shot dropped in the cup on the eighth for a deuce and 2 up at the turn as her opponent was in trouble.

Coming back Mrs. Stokes scrambled out of a trap and dropped an 8-footer for a halve on the tenth, won the eleventh with two more fine wood shots which reached the green (yardage 420), won the twelfth with one putt and was trapped off the tee on 13 but again one-putted and was four up and five to go.

The Manorite let up too soon after being 4 up and 4 and had a brief scare. Two topped wood shots off the hard fairway in succession cost the fifteenth hole and a drive into honeysuckle and an unplayable lie cost the sixteenth. Mrs. Stokes was only 2 up and 2, but it was over on 17 when Miss Bonthron was in all kinds of trouble and finally picked up.

Mrs. Glick had an even 80 in winning her match. She won the first three holes, lost the next three and then they halved nine straight before Mrs. Schludersburg finished 6-6 against a par of 3-4 to lose. —WHITTLESEY.

Bucs' Errors Give Giants 4-2 Victory

By International News Service

New York, June 26.—Cliff Melton tallied his ninth victory today as the New York Giants beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 2. Five infield errors by the Bucs let Cliff cakewalk to victory in the first contest of a four-game series.

Fletcher, Elliott and Anderson made one error each and Coscarart two. The miscues allowed the Giants to tally two unearned runs and hand Truett Sewell, who permitted only six hits, his sixth defeat. Vince DiMaggio's seventh homer of the season accounted for both Pirate runs.

Benton Wins 4th as Tigers Beat A's, 3-1

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 26.—Big Al Benton, who lost five games in the first five weeks of the American League season, finally reached the .500 mark today by setting down the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 1, on six hits for his fourth straight victory.

Benton, celebrating his selection to the league all-star team, fanned eight, striking out the side in the ninth when the Macks had the tying run on second base on two singles and an error. Dee Miles doubled and Dick Siebert singled for the lone Mack run in the sixth.

Jack Knott, who was charged with his eighth defeat against two victories, yielded seven hits, including two decisive doubles by Pinky Higgins, leading producer of two-baggers in the majors. Two errors and Higgins' double brought two runs in the second, and Jimmy Bloodworth's single sent Higgins home after another double in the fourth.

The two clubs now have divided ten games this season.

Segura Reaches Tri-State Finals

Cincinnati, June 26 (AP).—Francisco Segura of Ecuador, top-seeded foreign star, reached finals of the men's singles event in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament here today with a straight-set victory over Joe Davis of Nashville, Tenn., 6—1, 6—2, 8—6.

The 21-year-old South American student's baseball-bat grip had too much power for Davis' usual steady placement style.

Capital Store Sales Up 28% During Week

Washington department store sales in the week ended June 20 continued to show a sharp gain, despite a noticeable slackening in retail volume throughout the rest of the country. The week's volume here was 28 per cent above the same week last year and 10 per cent heavier than in the previous week this year, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Store sales for the week in the Fifth District were 23 per cent above last year and only 3 per cent heavier than in the previous week this year.

For the four weeks ended June 20 Washington store sales were 15 per cent more than in the same 1941 period, while the Fifth District gain in the same period was 12 per cent.

Nationally, the Federal Reserve Board estimated that department store sales in the week ended June 20 were 9 per cent higher than in the corresponding week last year.

In the week ended June 13 sales were 3 per cent less, and in the four weeks ended June 20 they averaged even with that of last year.

By Federal Reserve districts, percentage increases last week over a year ago included:

Boston 19, Philadelphia 7, Cleveland 7, Atlanta 16, Chicago 3, St. Louis 14, Kansas City 12, Dallas 10 and San Francisco 21 per cent. In the New York district sales were even with a year ago.

How an Individual or Corporation Would Fare Under the Three Proposals to Revise Gains Tax

(Fifth of A Series of Six Articles)

At the present time the House Ways and Means Committee tentatively has agreed on modification of the capital gains and loss tax. The agreement does not go as far as the Boland Bill in liberalizing the much-harangued internal revenue act but does go somewhat farther than the Treasury proposals for revisions.

How do the three proposals compare, as far as major revisions are concerned? Julius Sinker, a local certified public accountant, has prepared specially for The Washington Post an illustration of how an individual or a corporation would fare under each of the three proposals.

Mr. Sinker is a tax consultant of many years' experience, a member of the American Institute of Accountants and of the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants. He is editor of the Certificate, official publication of the latter organization. Mr. Sinker's hypothetical case for an individual investor (not a securities dealer) follows:

John Smith is the owner of the following securities which he acquired by purchase on the dates indicated below at the costs shown. He is desirous of knowing what his tax liability will be if he sells these stocks at this time.

Stock	Acquired	Cost	Mkt. Price Today	Length of Time Held
100 C	2- 8-41	4500	5000	16 "
100 D	9- 4-41	5000	2500	9 "

To simplify the illustrations, it is assumed that Smith has had no capital gain or loss transactions during the past three years and that his normal surtax rates are high enough to warrant the use of the optional gain rates.

Present Law

An analysis of these transactions under the present law indicates the following:

The sale of A stock shows a profit of $2000 of which amount $1000 (50 per cent) is reportable as a long term capital gain. B stock sold at a loss of $600 of which amount $400 (66 2-3 per cent) is reportable as a long term capital loss. The net result of these two sales is a net long term capital gain of $600 which is taxable at 30 per cent, giving Smith a capital gains tax of $180.

C and D sales both classify as short term, being held for not more than 18 months. C was sold at a gain of $500 and D at a loss of $2500. The net short term loss of $2000 may not be used as a deduction against the ordinary income but may be carried forward to next year only as an offset against short term capital gains.

Treasury Proposal

Under the Treasury plan, the percentages of long term items reportable are reduced from three (50- 66 2/3 - 100) to two (50 - 100). At the same time short and long term losses may be applied against short and long term gains. Taking Smith's situation again, we find a reportable net long term gain of $700 (1) and a net short term loss of $2000 (2), resulting in a net loss of $1300 (3) of which amount $1000 may be applied as a deduction against the ordinary net income and $300 carried forward for 5 years.

(1) Actual gain on A stock $2000
Actual loss on B stock 600
Net long-term capital gain $1400
Fifty per cent 700

(2) Actual loss D $2500
Actual gain C 500
Net short-term capital loss $2000

(3) Reportable short-term loss $2000
Reportable long-term gain 700
Net reportable loss $1300

Boland Bill

The provisions of this bill are quite simple, merely providing for a tax of 10 per cent of the actual net gains. Net losses may be carried over for two years against net gains.

Actual gains:
A $2000
C 500 $2500
Actual losses:
D $2500
B 600 $3100
Net loss $600
This loss may be carried forward for 2 years.

Ways and Means Committee Tentative Plan

The chief difference between this plan and that of the Treasury is the dividing point between long and short term items. There is 15 months as against 18 in that of the Treasury plan. This difference gives Smith a reportable long term capital gain of $950 (4) and a short term loss of $2500. This results in a net loss of $1550; $1000 of this loss may be used as a deducation against the ordinary net income, the balance of $550 being carried forward for five years. (The capital gains rate under the Ways and Means Committee plan is 50 per cent.)

Actual gain A $2000
Actual gain C 500
$2500
Actual loss B 600
Net long term gain $1900
Fifty per cent 950

Mr. Sinker's hypothetical case for a corporation follows:

The Squeakless Lawn Mower Corporation has two tracts of unimproved land which it acquired in March, 1940, and December, 1941, for $25,000 and $30,000, respectively. During the time the company owned these properties it has not capitalized the interest and taxes paid thereon, having elected to take these items as deductions against the ordinary income. Having no further use for these properties, it is the desire of the corporation to dispose of them. The first mentioned can be sold for $35,000 whereas the latter will only bring $25,000.

Present Law

Under the present law, the sale of the first tract (held for more than 18 months) results in a long-term capital gain of $10,000, which is taxable at the corporation normal and surtax rates. (Corporations do not have the benefit of percentage reductions og long-term transactions.) The sale of the second tract (held for less than 18 months) results in a short-term loss of $5000, which cannot be deducted from the ordinary net income, but may be carried forward for one year as an offset against short-term gains.

Boland Bill

Under this bill the net capital gain of $5000 is taxable at 10 per cent, giving a capital gains tax of $500. (Under this plan, net losses may be carried forward for two years.)

Ways and Means Committee Tentative Plan

The provision of this plan as to offsetting losses against gains is the same as in the two previously mentioned plans. However, as in the Boland Bill, a capital gains tax is provided—in this case 25 per cent. This would give the corporation a capital gains tax of $1250. The loss carryover provision in this plan is five years, the same as in that of the Treasury.

TOMORROW — Viewpoints of Washington tax authorities on the need for liberalization of the capital gains and loss tax.

Foreign Silver Lacking For Industrial Uses

New York, June 26 (AP).—Handy & Harman, major United States silver bullion concern, announced today it was unable to allocate any foreign silver to industrial and art uses during July.

Increased war priority demands for silver and orders from Allied Nations for coinage were the chief factors.

Foreign-mined silver has been the only practical source for industrial use, since it is priced at 35¼ cents an ounce while the Treasury by law must pay 71.11 cents an ounce for domestically mined silver.

Bank Votes Dividend Payable in War Stamps

Pitman, N. J., June 26 (AP).—The Pitman National Bank & Trust Co. today declared a regular 50-cent dividend—to be paid in war stamps.

J. Howard Morris, cashier, said Federal and State banking officials told him that the Pitman Bank was the first bank or corporation in the Nation to pay a dividend in war stamps. There are 5000 shares of stock held.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Grain prices broke out of the week's narrow range today when wheat tumbled as much as 2 cents a bushel to lows since June 9, carrying quotations of other cereals down varying amounts.

Selling increased in the wheat pit as the session progressed and the decline was not halted effectively until last minute short covering caused slight rallies.

Traders blamed most of the selling on hedging operations in connection with the new crop movement and reports of better harvesting weather in the Southwest, with receipts of new grain the first of next week expected to be somewhat larger. War news also caused some anxiety. Stop loss orders were forced into execution on the decline and some of the selling was attributed to liquidation of July contracts before the delivery period.

Wheat closed 1¼ to 2 cents lower than yesterday; July, 1.16½@1.16¾; September 1.19½@1.19¾. Corn, ¾ to ⅞ down; July, 85¼; September, 88⅝@88¾. Oats, ½ to ⅝ down. Soybeans, 2¼ to 2¾ lower, and rye, 1¾ to 1⅞ down.

N.A.M. Group Maps 9-Point Postwar Aims

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—Industry's first problem is to supply the goods that will win the war, but its secondary work is to plan a peacetime economy that will suffice for all, S. Bayard Colgate, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers' post-war committee said today.

Colgate presented a nine-point program on post-war problems to the N. A. M. board of directors at their monthly meeting. The program was the outgrowth of studies made by the special post-war committee and the economic policy committee of the association.

The report and recommendations for post-war prosperity urged that the Government avoid "piling up more trouble" by attempting to "spend its way" out of any necessary readjustments by "pump-priming methods."

The nine points include:

1. Encourage the accumulation of a backlog of peace-time demands.
2. Open up the capital market and prevent a sudden collapse of bank credit.
3. Promote a program of savings and investments.
4. Reduce the tax load.
5. Avoid cost-price rigidities.
6. Eliminate all emergency wartime regulation and control.
7. Prevent unfair and discriminatory use of governmentally constructed war plants.
8. Keep excess Army equipment off the open market.
9. Refuse to subsidize distressed industries.

In addition to these points, the committee recommended that private industry adopt four points of conduct. They were:

(1) Develop new products. (2) Provide dismissal wages for industrial workers. (3) Use earnings to strengthen capital position. (4) Work constantly for improved employee-employer relationships.

Industrial Alcohol Co. Earns $5.30 a Share

New York, June 26 (AP).—United States Industrial Alcohol Co. and subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended March 31 reported today net profit of $1,996,077 after $1,950,000 Federal income taxes and provisions of $1,500,000 for contingencies, or $5.30 a share. This compared with $836,305 after a $275,000 provision for taxes, or $2.14 a share in the like 1941 period.

The company said two plants and part of a third were being converted to the use of grain. They formerly used molasses.

Rail Shares Buoyant on May Income Reports; A. T. & T. Weak; General List Drifts Unevenly

New York, June 26.—Rails, aircrafts and selected industrials attracted modest buying in today's stock market but many leaders were ignored.

Specialized improvement appeared at the opening. Several blue chips then faltered and, at the close, trends were a trifle mixed. Fractional variations were the rule although spreads of 1 to 2 or so points were seen here and there.

Wall Street was cheered by the 1000-plane blast at Bremen but indecisive developments on battle fronts of Russia and Egypt, as well as continued doubts regarding the tax program at home, tended to accentuate market conservatism.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks again was unchanged at 35. Dealings picked up for a while but dwindled after midday. Transfers totalled 289,030 shares against 245,420 Thursday.

Rails were aided by a batch of May revenue statements disclosing a sharp upturn in net operating incomes over the 1941 period. Aviations had the benefit of the President's disclosure that the United States produced nearly 4000 planes last month.

Norfolk & Western advanced 2½, Douglas Aircraft 1½, American Airlines 1¼ and Dow Chemical 1¼.

Renewed weakness of American Telephone was a chilling influence, this bellwether dropping 2⅝ in the wake of more dividend cuts by subsidiaries.

United States Leather "A" went into new high ground for the year. In the front ranks were United States Steel, Chrysler, Woolworth, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, International Harvester and Kennecott.

The stock finished with a net decline of 1/32 at a new bottom.

Carrier bonds rose in the loans department. At Chicago hogs were up 10 to 15 cents at a new 18-year peak. Wheat fell 1½ to 2 cents a bushel and corn was off ⅜ to ¾. Cotton conceded 30 to 60 cents a bale.

In an irregular curb plus marks were posted for American Light, Fairchild Engine, Penroad and N. J. Zinc. Lower were Aluminum of America, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and Lake Shore. Turnover here aggregated 60,110 shares versus 44,460 yesterday.

North American Co. Plea Denied by SEC

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission denied yesterday the petitions of the North American Co. and two subsidiaries for rehearing and to set aside the commission's order directing the company to reduce its system to a single integrated unit under the Holding Company Act.

The commission, however, granted the two subsidiaries, Illinois Iowa Power Co. and Northern Natural Gas Co., permission to introduce further evidence relating to oil drilling facilities of Illinois Iowa and pipe line facilities of the gas company.

21 Firms Face Trust Charges On War Acids

By the Associated Press

The Justice Department announced yesterday that a Federal grand jury at South Bend, Ind., had returned six indictments charging 21 corporations, including such giants as duPont and Standard Oil of New Jersey, and dozens of individuals with antitrust-law violations involving acids important in the war effort.

Each indictment covered a particular chemical and charged in general that the defendants conspired to fix and maintain prices and to control production and distribution.

Military Chemicals

Chemicals involved were sulphuric acid, used in making explosives, steel, aviation gasoline, plastics, fertilizers and other products; bichromates of soda and potash, used in tanning leather and to prevent corrosion; oxalic acid, widely used by laundries, but important also in making military flares, rayon, tanning compound and plastics; muriatic acid, used in finishing steel products; formic acid, used in making airplane plastics (about three-fourths of the formic acid produced is used in war industries), and chromic acid, used to protect from corrosion airplane parts made of aluminum and aluminum alloys.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del.; Mutual Chemical Co. of America and General Chemical Co. both of New York, were named in four indictments, although not in the same four. Some other defendants were named in more than one charge.

The broadest indictment was that alleging violation in the manufacture, sale and distribution of sulphuric acid. It named 15 companies and 37 individuals.

Defendants Listed

The corporate defendants included, in addition to duPont, Standard of New Jersey, Mutual and General, Monsanto Chemical Co., St. Louis; American Cyanimid & Chemical Corp., New York; Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich.; Prior Chemical Corp., New York; Davis Chemical Co., Baltimore; Atlas Powder Co., Wilmington, Del.; Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia; Southern Agricultural Chemical Corp., New York; F. S. Royster Guano Co., Norfolk, Va.; Stauffer Chemical Co., New York; the New Jersey Zinc Sales Co., New York.

The individual defendants named were officials of the companies indicted, and in some cases, like the companies, appeared in more than one indictment.

The indictments resulted from the Justice Department's antitrust division's long investigation into alleged restraints involving the war production effort and which previously had led to numerous charges by Federal grand juries over the country, including indictments against some of those named today.

Eric Sevareid, who's been one of the news staff stalwarts for C. B. S. at WJSV, its Washington headquarters for the past 18 months, and who before that was one of Columbia's better known voices from such places as Paris and London, takes over a new assignment tonight.

Eric from now on, on Saturdays and Sundays, is to fill that brief, but important 5-minute news period at 8:55 p. m. over C. B. S. wherein the news of the world is summed up in capsule form, the news assignment which Elmer Davis filled so capably for the past three years until his appointment by President Roosevelt as director of the Office of War Information a few days ago.

Eric shares the new assignment each week with Cecil Brown, former C. B. S. foreign correspondent, who is heard at the same time of day from Monday through Friday.

Eric, 32 years old, has had a varied carrer as a newsman. When he was 18 he became a reporter for the Minneapolis Journal while studying political science at the University of Minnesota. He went abroad for further study in London and at the Sorbonne in Paris, later worked for a while as night editor of the United Press in the French capital and then was named city editor of the Paris Herald, a post which he held until he joined C. B. S.'s Paris staff when things started popping in 1939.

Eric didn't leave Paris until a few hours before its fall to the Germans and was one of the last Americans to get out of France before the Germans took over.

Opening lead: A ♠.

With the assistance of the adversaries, he succeeded in trumping two of their aces to set up tricks for himself, and then end-played his left-hand opponent, who held five trumps, including the queen, nine. Result: South lost only two diamonds on the hand to win an overtrick.

Here is what our contributor says:

"West, fortunately for me, led his ace, which I trumped, and a small heart was led from the board, inducing East to jump up with the ace to prevent me making a possible singleton king. I trumped, and by cross-ruffing I trumped another spade on the board and returned to my hand to lead the ace of trumps, East showing out.

"A club to dummy allowed me another heart ruff, dropping West's king. A second club lead built a bridge to the heart queen, on which I dropped a third spade, West ruffing and returning a spade, which I took with the king. Now I led the spade nine, which West had to ruff, and forced him to give me his last two trumps. Result: one overtrick."

PLAY, SWIM OR STROLL IN THE SUNSHINE AT THE BEACH OR AT CITY POOLS WITH NATIONALLY FAMOUS JANTZEN SWIM TOGS

Remember the song, "The Best Things in Life Are Free." Take sunshine, for instance. It helps to build and maintain strong bones and teeth . . . and it prevents rickets in children. Get out and get under the sun more often this summer. That's one thing that can't be rationed and it's yours for the taking. Take your sunshine vitamin "D" the healthy, Jantzen way. It's the smart, comfortable way, too. For famous Jantzen swim trunks and suits are scientifically designed to fit the curves of your body without any binding or irritation. And to leave plenty of open spaces for the tanning rays of Old Sol. The Hecht Co.'s MODERN SPORT SHOP—Main Floor.
